Lovers of Dickens, and their name is legion, and those who are always deploring the fact that film producers prefer the present-day piffle to the world's old masters, will have cause to rejoice at West's Company's latest masterpiece. It takes the form of nothing less than the filming in its entirety of Charles Dickens' celebrated story "A Tale of Two Cities."

WHEN THE RED GODS CALL.

BY BEATRICE GRIMSHAW.

PART I.—HUGH LYNCH'S STORY.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

I believe the trial was fair enough, according to the peculiar laws of British New Guinea. There were plenty of witnesses—the resident magistrate from Nivani Island, who had seen Sanderson's schooner go by on its way to Rossel, and had afterwards seen myself, and given me direction about Horakiraki Passage; a couple of Rossel natives who had drifted down to Nivani in a canoe, driven there by a storm, and told the story of the white man's fight; five of the guides who had accompanied me through the forest, and—Garia.

Yes, Garia was in it, and an important witness too. The mind of the Papuan native is almost the mind of a child. My servant could scarcely have been made to understand—even had anyone tried—that his boastful account of my prowess in hunting down Sanderson was likely to do me a mischief. He told all he could readily and fluently, and—though he never knew it—drove not a few good nails into the coffin of my dying freedom.

I refused to plead; indeed, I do not think I spoke at all during the trial. Carolan, in discharge of his office as chief magistrate, tried me, without a jury, after the preliminary hearing by the resident magistrate of Port Moresby. That is the law of the colony. I do not say that it is a good law, or that the proposed alterations will not be for the better; but I have, personally, no just cause for complaint.

Carolan was quite prepared to hang me, I think, and would not have been sorry for the necessity—his judicial horror over my killing of the man who took my girl from me seemed to be kept in a sort of water-tight compartment, quite unconnected with his strong personal desire to kill me for an exactly similar reason.

But the magisterial inquiry turned somewhat in my favour, and so did the native evidence, during the trial itself. I could have wished that the real facts of the fight in the glen had been made a little clearer; as it was, Carolan, in his address before passing sentence, was fit to charge me with meanness and treachery in "hunting down an unarmed man by means of a superior force," and obliging him to fight me.

My strength, he was pleased to say, made a fight between myself and any ordinary man a mere murder under another name; the intent to kill had been plainly proved, and nothing but the want of clearness in the interpreted evidence as to who struck the first blow prevented his passing a sentence that would once for all, put an end to lawless violence among the whites of the territory.

As it was, he did not feel justified in treating the case otherwise than as manslaughter, or in passing sentence of more than four years' imprisonment, to be served in Port Moresby gaol.

He hoped that even this comparatively light punishment might have some effect on the deplorably lawless spirit that he had long been pained to observe was prevalent in British New Guinea.

Well, to give him justice, he might have done worse. I had killed Sanderson of set design, and he knew it. A little stretching of the evidence—a little intimidating of the wild Rossel islanders who were terrified nearly sick by their strange surroundings, and ready to say almost anything put into their mouths—a little more stress laid on the half-spoken acknowledgment I had made to Garia of my intentions—and the knot than tangled all our lives would have been shorn through once for all.

I shall not cease to hate him till the grave closes over us both—but ever since then I have respected Carolan.

The trial lasted three days, and the tin match-box they call a Courthouse was packed with almost every soul in Port Moresby all the while. It is curious, but true, that I did not suffer much during that time. The ceaseless fire of staring eyes, the interminable question and answer, interpreting and re-interpreting of the evidence, seemed to hypnotise me into a kind of stupor.

The Governor came every day, and sat close to Carolan, a silent, wooden, watchful figure. There was more white in the grey of his hair than there had been a few weeks before, and the two straight lines on either side of his mouth were cut deeper, but his face, on the whole, told little of what he felt.

He spoke to me once only, on the last day of the trial, when my sentence had been pronounced, and the gaoler was waiting to take me away. Then he came up to me, looking frail and old, and addressed me in what was evidently a prepared speech. I don't remember all he said, but it was in general to the effect that Stephanie desired never to hear of me again, that she had been ill, but was getting better, and that he (the Governor) had only been waiting the end of the trial to take her down to Queensland at once. As soon as the cable could set him free, he said, he would resign his post and start for England, taking his daughter with him.

"And if there's law in the British Empire," he added, his voice shaking a little, "I'll have her freed from you."

"Don't buoy yourself up with false hopes, sir," began Carolan, but I interrupted him.

"Sir," I said, "you have spoken; now it's my turn. I killed Sanderson; everyone knows that. I'm not sorry for it; but I never expected your daughter to understand, and—I'd have kept it from her all her life if I could. I didn't suppose, either, at the time, that I was putting himself in peril of what has happened—there was no law to speak of in the old days here—but if I'd known that this was really hanging over me, I'd have put a bullet through my head before I'd have dared to look at her."

I stopped a moment; it was hard to speak. Wilks waited. The Governor waited. The honey-birds fluttered and twittered in the doorway against the blue; the hot wind beat in the eucalyptus trees.

"I want you to believe," I went on, "that I'd free her now if I could. You may do anything you wish; I'll not oppose you, and I'll never—try—to see her again——"

I had to stop a second time.

"I have a message," I said presently, speaking with some difficulty now, for I seemed strangely short of breath. "Will you give it to her?"

"It will make no difference, I warn you," said the Governor coldly.

"It's not meant to," said I. "You will tell her this, if you please, from her husband. She vowed, before the altar of the God she believes in, to keep to me for better or worse, till death. The worst came, and she failed me. She may have been right according to her lights and yours—I don't know—but I shall not forgive her—living—or dead—or in the hereafter, if there is one. Tell her that and go."

PART II.—STEPHANIE'S STORY.

CHAPTER XII.

If I had not gone into the church that spring afternoon it would never have happened.

Springtime is so hard when you are unhappy. It was spring just then; the parks were green, and there were lilac buds peeping out between the bars of the squares. I used to wonder, walking under the sweet bunches of the blossom, how many people hated them in spite of all their beauty—as I did. You may forget about miserable things more or less in the summer and winter; but in the spring, when you see the green leaves breaking out again, and the laburnum turning gold again, and the lilac buds coming out—again—while you are still unhappy—you hate the innocent flowers so much that you could break them down and trample on them. I can't explain; I am not clever—but I know it to be true.

It was the tenth spring since the days of my trouble, and I wondered that day if the old pain was going to come back again every spring, for thirty or forty years more, or whether it would wear me out sooner. I hoped it would.

No one, of course, is unhappy all the time. Since I spoiled my life for good, long ago in New Guinea, I had had quite a fair share of happy days—when I was taking great care of my dear father, in the years before he died; when I was travelling with my aunt, Lady Lillaby, on the Continent, and seeing many wonderful and beautiful sights (though nothing, I think, as beautiful as the land I had left forever)—when I was ill, most of all, as I was once, and could not think or trouble about anything. That was happiness—or peace. I suppose they are the same.

Many of my happy days had been given me by Walter Carolan, who followed us to England, and settled down to practice at the Bar, and who was always, always kind. Poor Walter! When I thought how his life had been spoiled (for I knew he had remained unmarried because of me) it hurt me worse than my own loneliness. He had done everything for me that a true friend could do. He kept the whole miserable story out of the papers, home and colonial—how, I do not know, but I was most thankful, for it saved me from talk that I could not have endured. Papa, besides, had such hopes of getting me set free that he would not allow me to use any name but Hammond. And when he found that there was not the least hope of breaking the marriage, it seemed too late to begin explanations. For myself, I did not care. I nearly went mad with wretchedness during that long voyage home (the passengers thought I was broken down with New Guinea fever, and as I really had had an attack I let them think so)—and for months and months I only wanted to die.

I used to kneel against my bed at night trying to say my prayers, but all I could say was—"I have got to live—oh, I have got to live." And I could not even fall into a decline, as they do in books. I grew thin and nervous, and lost some of my looks, but I was able to dress and dance and go to parties, just as I had done two years before, when I had never seen New Guinea, or got my heart broken. My aunt, Lady Lillaby, Walter, and papa were the only people who knew, and they all insisted on my going out. I used to dance all night in those years, dance myself tired, and take away the other girls' admirers, and not mind at all—I did not care for anyone else's troubles.

Then I would drop down on the hearthrug beside the dying ashy fire left for me to undress by, and cry myself nearly ill. And in the rain beating outside the tight-shut window-panes, and the cold London wind roaming among black roofs and lonely spires, I would hear, again and again, those words spoken long ago under the jewelled skies of Papua, above Port Moresby Bay—"I killed him."

And the last, dreadful message brought me by my father:

"I shall not forgive her, living or dead, or in the hereafter."

Hugh had said that—Hugh, who would have been tortured to death to save me a moment's pain—once. But that was the other Hugh, who existed no longer. The other was not a murderer (as I put it to myself in those days). The other had not been married to a black. The other was just the best and bravest and most loving heart in all the world, and I would have died for him.

If he had not sent that message, and if I had not gone away knowing that his love was turned to hate, I might—I might—I do not know what I might not have done—later, when he was free, and I was older, and knew more of the world. The shock of hearing that he had killed the man who carried away his native wife came upon me so suddenly that I had no time to think. I was only terrified. I had always felt that there was something untameable, formidable, even in my lover—something that made other men fear him; perhaps I did not love him the less for that.

But he hated me. He had said as much.

And papa, and Walter, and Aunt Lillaby all took it so much for granted that I never could wish to see him again. And I let them do as they liked, for I was heart-sick—life-sick.

I am sure we all thought that "something would happen." It seemed unbelievable that year after year would go by, and make no change, except for the death of dear papa—that I should go to live with my aunt, and continue going out, and travelling, and reading, and hearing concerts, and seeing Walter almost every day—that I should get older and older, and less and less miserable (except in those dreadful days of spring), and that still, still, still nothing would happen! As for Walter, I am afraid he counted on the chances of the New Guinea climate and the unhealthiness of prison life—later, on the wild inland tribes and the dangers of the coasts—to free me. For myself, I counted on—I never quite cared to acknowledge what. But we were both alive, and soon, both free, and it was hard to believe that so much love could altogether die.

But we all counted fruitlessly, in our separate ways. Nothing happened—nothing ever happened. I was Stephanie Hammond to all my friends, Stephanie Lynch to myself, at the end of nine years, just as before. I had worn through one gold chain, and marked another, carrying a little plain ring, that no one ever saw, round my neck, under my dress. My girl friends were happily married, nearly all, and they had children, darling children.

I don't know if my friends ever suspected why I would not play with their little ones. I do not think they did; they seemed to suppose that I did not care for children. I let them think so.

THE PREMIER'S BIRTH.

MR. M'GOWEN TELLS THE STORY OF HIS CAREER.

The Premier of New South Wales, Mr. James Sinclair Taylor M'Gowen, M.L.A., has been telling the English people the story of his career. His father was a Scotsman settled in Liverpool; his mother a Manchester woman who had worked in the cotton mills. She is 81 now—"Too old," said Mr. M'Gowen in an interview, "to make the journey, or my wife and I would certainly have brought her with us to see the old country again." Mr. M'Gowen's father went out to Australia in the middle of the last century, under contract to the Government of New South Wales, to work at bridge-building. He decided to stay, and sent for his wife. It was the time of sailing ships, and Mrs. M'Gowen went out in a vessel called the Western Bride.

Somewhere on the vast bosom of the Pacific the ship lay becalmed for several days, and during that time the present Premier of New South Wales was born. At the very hour of his birth a favourable breeze sprang up, which carried the Western Bride to her destination in a short three weeks. It is proverbial that sailors believe in omens, and as an omen of good fortune the babe was hailed by the master and crew of the ship that was his birthplace.

"The skipper's name was Captain Sinclair," said Mr. M'Gowen, "and I was christened after him. He prophesied that I should have a fair wind with me all my life." As a child born at sea under the British flag in a ship belonging to the Port of London, Mr. M'Gowen's birth was registered at Stepney. And now comes a very curious coincidence. Since he landed at Sydney in his mother's arms 55 years ago, Mr. M'Gowen had never been out of Australia until he left to take part in the Coronation celebrations, and his voyage coincided with the taking of the census. Somewhere in the Indian Ocean he was counted as a British-born citizen, and again the fact was recorded at Stepney.

A WORLD PEACE DAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—We are rapidly approaching the completion of a century of peace between Great Britain and the United States, and it is earnestly hoped to have your sympathy and support in bringing about the establishment thereafter of an annual peace holiday to commemorate it.

It would be an inspiring thought to see Great Britain, South Africa, the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, and the smaller colonies of both Powers united in one annual peace holiday, a day that would unquestionably have a powerful influence on world peace, and the curtailment of excessive expenditures on armies and navies, especially in Europe. While we have made wonderful progress towards drawing our nations together, so much so that at London, Washington, and Ottawa statesmen think the time is ripe to consider a permanent arbitration treaty between Great Britain and the United States—something which even a few years ago would have been impossible—do you not think that an annual peace holiday will be one step further, and are you not willing to have a share in bringing it about? I do not claim that such a day would absolutely prevent war, but I do feel that with every observance of it (especially when adopted by other nations as well) war would be rendered just that much more difficult. The united power of the Anglo-Saxon nations is so overwhelmingly great that such a day would not fail to have a powerfully beneficent effect upon the rest of the world. World peace sentiment grows stronger, and it is the hope that such a holiday would in time bring into the celebration many nations with and between whom war is practically impossible, with the result of an increasing pressure upon the balance of the nations to curtail war expenses.

As to the day of the year. In the United States, the most numerous branch of the race, we have observed Decoration Day, May 30, for 40 years, and what greater compliment can the Empire pay the great Republic than by changing Empire Day, which has only been celebrated for a dozen years, to May 30? But the day is a minor consideration.

Having received very favourable replies from a number of the leading men of this country, Canada, and Great Britain, I hope to have yours also, and I trust you will be good enough to give me your views as to how this plan can be carried to a successful end. In the United States the matter is now in the hands of a special peace centenary committee of the Lake Mohonk Arbitration Conference, the chairman of which is United States Senator Burton, of Ohio.

I am, etc., J. W. HAMILTON.
Secretary Anglo-Saxon Annual Peace Holiday Plan.

St. Paul, Minnesota, U.S.A., May 5.

SCALP WAS BADLY AFFECTED.

"I am more than gratified by the successful results I obtained by the use of the Cuticura Remedies. For several years my scalp was very badly affected with dandruff and scales. My scalp itched terribly at times, and my hair fell out. My coat collar would be actually white with the dandruff that had fallen from my head. My profession being that of a barber, I was particular about having my hair in good condition and was also in a position to try many lotions, etc., for the scalp. These had little or no effect. I had heard so much about the Cuticura Remedies that I was resolved to try them. I shampooed my head with Cuticura Soap twice a week, and after drying my head thoroughly, I anointed parts of my scalp with Cuticura Ointment. I was pleased from the outset, and continued to keep up this treatment. To think that only three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one and one-half boxes of Cuticura Ointment rid my head of this annoying trouble, made me feel quite contented. I have now a thick growth of hair, and I am never troubled with any dandruff or itching of the scalp. There is no question but that the Cuticura Remedies cured me. I frequently recommend them to my customers, and they think a great deal of them." (Signed) John F. Williams, 307 Norfolk-street, Dorchester, Boston, Mass., U.S.A., July 29, 1910.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world. Send to R. Towns and Co., Sydney, N.S.W., for liberal trial box of Cuticura Ointment, and latest 32-page booklet on skin and scalp diseases.—Advt.

THE WEEK IN LONDON.

AN AUSTRALIAN'S NOTES.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

Australian Speakers in England.

LONDON, May 12.

An exceedingly interesting comparison in public speaking was afforded to the large audience, half British, half Australian, which listened to Sir George Reid's lecture on Australia at the Colonial Institute on Monday night. Sir George Reid, Sir John Forrest, and Sir John Downer spoke, besides Lord Denman and General Hutton. Sir George Reid was not at his best that night. Perhaps he has had to repeat his facts and statistics so often that he is tired of them. He was amusing, always, but his theme seemed sketchy and unprepared. He took the oportunity of lecturing the British press somewhat incisively over the amount of space devoted to Australian affairs. The size of the audience was undoubtedly due to the fact that he was the lecturer—he invariably draws great audiences in England—and he certainly kept his audience amused; but equally certainly, for some reason or another, it was not his night. Nor was it Sir John Forrest's—he certainly was not at his best. One could hardly believe that the man who made a few hesitating remarks, without any particular point, rather in the style of an amateur addressing a parish meeting for the first time, was Sir John Forrest at all. Lord Denman made some friendly and pleasant remarks, but in spite of some rather exaggerated accounts that have reached Australia, he is not one of the first clas of speakers, and he does not pretend to be. He impresses one with the idea that he feels, in these first few speeches to Australians, that he is to some extent on his trial, and that when he has less anxiety he probably speaks more freely. Sir John Downer, when he rose to speak, put his foot into it heavily—the incident is mentioned later in this letter. None of these speakers seemed at their best. The success of the evening—to the surprise and, it may be said, the great pleasure, of the many New South Welshmen present—was the speech of Mr. J. S. T. M'Gowen, the Premier of New South Wales. Mr. M'Gowen had only just arrived in England; he came along to the meeting at the last moment—most people did not know he was present. He was called upon by Lord Carrington quite unexpectedly. He made no pretence at fine phrases, but stood up and quite simply and bluntly, but with considerable force, made his first speech in England.

When Sir George Reid claimed for Australians that they were British to their hearts' core, he said he spoke the truth. We Australians claim no other country for our kith and kin than the old country, which gave birth to our fathers and mothers. Sir George Reid claims that Australians have not deteriorated in physique or courage or resourcefulness. Why should they? They come from a race that have made their name glorious throughout the world by those qualities. The Australian has to be resourceful, and so had the man and woman who came from the old country years ago, and settled miles away from the dressmakers and carpenters and builders. If they wanted houses they had to build for themselves, and, by experience, they became fairly good builders; and I think there is now a possibility that we shall do credit to the race in the nation-building that is taking place in the southern seas. (Cheers.) We are the same race on both sides of the ocean. I know I am a shade darker than the majority of my audience, but I think that we Australians are just as white as the rest of the British Dominions. (Cheers.) I feel, and I believe all my hearers feel, proud of the country of their birth. I know no other country. I have been interviewed to-day from 2 till 6 by the newspapers. . . . I am willing to tell them everything I know about Australia, what courses we have taken, and why we have taken them, and what has resulted from it. But, like Sir George Reid, I am not going to tell you that you ought to take that course, too. It is with a certain amount of temerity that I mention it; but, as the subject has been touched on to-night, I may say that women are no worse for being enfranchised in Australia, and without trespassing on dangerous ground I think I may say Australian politics are no worse for the women. It may be that your set of conditions are somewhat different to ours, but I give you the testimony of a politician who has taken an active part in Australian politics for 30 years. In conclusion, I can only say I am proud of the country that gave birth to my parents. I am glad to be here and to share in your glories; because we in Australia, to our hearts' core, are proud of the fact that we are descendants from the people of Great Britain.

It must be remembered this is the first speech ever made by an Australian Labour Premier representing his country in England—and it was obviously well received. By the time it ended one elderly gentleman near me was enthusiastically shouting, "Bravo, bravo!"

Sir George at his Best.

But if Sir George Reid was not at his best on Monday he carried off two days later what was probably one of the triumphs of his life. Probably very little will be heard of it, because only one English pressman was present—it was at the midnight farewell supper to Mr. H. B. Irving, at which only a select few of the brightest wits in England were present—about a hundred of them, famous novelists, dramatists, barristers, actors, politicians. There was Mr. W. J. Locke, of "The Beloved Vagabond," tete-a-tete with Mr. H. V. Esmond; Mr. W. L. Courtney hobnobbing with Mr. Marshall Hall, K.C., and Mr. Oscar Asche; Mr. Comyns Carr next to Mr. Weedon Grossmith and Mr. Israel Zangwill; Mr. T. P. O'Connor seated by Mr. Cyril Maude and Mr. Arthur Bouchier; Mr. Suto in rapt conversation with Lord Willoughby de Broke; the faces of Pinero, Sir J. Simon, Clement Shorter, Alma Tadema, Frank Russell, Lewis Waller scattered all round the tables—one of the most interesting gatherings that have of late assembled in London.

For anyone who did not realise what a reputation Sir George Reid has won himself in England it was a revelation to see how eagerly he was expected. Before his turn came you could hear a famous King's Counsel whisper to an uninitiated friend: "You wait till Reid speaks; that will be something worth hearing." When Sir George rose he just told the story of his own connection, long ago, with an amateur dramatic society—how they chose the proper charity to perform for, and the distinguished actor to coach and lead them; how they rehearsed for six months until the great night came. His own part was not an elaborate one—it consisted, in fact, in walking on to the stage with another man to pick up from the floor the man, riddled with bullets, who had just saved his life. He performed his part very well until, as he was carrying his preserver off, he became mixed up with some scenery and dropped him—when the great performer, instead of playing up to his part and feigning death, gave audible evidence that he was very much alive. Before Sir George was half-way through that story he had the whole room rocking in their chairs—novelists, barristers, party leaders nearly helpless with laughter. He led them on, as only a consummate artist could do, from comedy to tragedy. The laughter suddenly stopped—he was dealing with the awful fire in the Empire Theatre, Edinburgh, the night before. He swayed that audience from one extreme to another—led them through laughter almost to tears and back again, and finally landed them back in their level spirits again. Mr. H. B. Irving and Sir Herbert Tree also spoke—and Mr. Irving is one of the most delightful speakers amongst all the actors on the English stage. But, after this and one or two other similar triumphs, it is doubtful if Sir George Reid would be put second to anyone as an after-dinner speaker in England.

An Incident.

At the meeting of the Royal Colonial Institute, which listened to Sir George Reid's lecture on Australia, there occurred an incident which has since attracted some attention. After the lecture Lord Carrington—who is a Minister in the present Liberal Government, and who was in the chair—called upon Sir John Downer, amongst others, to speak. The Colonial Institute is intended to provide a meeting place for persons interested in the oversea States of the Empire—it contains members possessing every sort of political opinion, and it is expressly assured to them before they join, by the rules of the institute, that it is a non-party institution, and that party politics are rigidly excluded from its discussions. The subject of the evening was the past, present, and future of Australia; but Sir John Downer, an ex-Premier of South Australia, on being called upon to speak, thought fit to wander into an impassioned oration on the object-lesson of the Australian referendum as applied to the present constitutional crisis in Great Britain—a matter of red-hot controversy at this moment in England, in which the Government, of which Lord Carrington is a member, is actively fighting on the opposite side apparently to that which Sir John Downer advocates. A good many Australians in the room probably agreed with Sir John Downer's views in favour of the Conservative proposals, and a good many were equally opposed to them—but it was not an Australian matter any way, and one can only say that a proportion of the Australians in the hall behind him were feeling supremely uncomfortable when Sir John Downer began to wander into this sort of thing—that if ever there were a period in the history of constitutional government when they wanted an object-lesson they had got it in the result of the referendum in Australia. "That lesson might well make the welkin ring in England, if only it were backed up . . ." At that point Lord Carrington, the chairman, stepped in. With some warmth, he said, "We cannot have politics here under any circumstances. This is a non-political meeting. I allow no politics whilst I am in the chair." There was some applause to this from those who had been waiting for it, and there was more applause for Sir John Downer when he retorted that he was unaware he had been transgressing—he had thought he was talking almost entirely to Australians, and he was sorry he had been called upon to speak. The room was obviously divided for the moment into Conservatives and Radicals, and probably the majority were Conservatives. But that is precisely the result which the rules of the Colonial Institute are framed to avoid. And quite apart from that, if Australian politicians in England cannot refrain from dragging in English politics to Australian discussions these unpleasantnesses are bound to occur.

EDUCATION.

SEWING MISTRESSES.

The monthly council meeting of the Teachers' Association was held on Friday evening, when many matters were considered, such as the case of sewing mistresses. Sewing mistresse attend technical classes at preent in the higher branches, especially in drafting patterns; but many are so situated that their domestic duties take all their time when not at work in the schools, while the expense of attending the technical classes has also to be met, because the fees go to the teachers of the special classes. The ladies of the council at a previous meeting had been deputed to place the case before the Education Department, and they announced on Friday evening that the Acting Director had promised immediate consideration.

TEACHERS' CONFERENCES.

The South Australian teachers always enjoy a midwinter vacation, and use a portion of it to hold their annual conference. They have this year, as is their usual custom, invited representatives from all the States to attend. New South Wales teachers are sending fraternal greetings, but are unable to send representatives.

The Bega branch of the New South Wales Teachers' Association has taken up the question of altering somewhat the nature of the conferences held annually in Sydney, and suggests that the time allowed for the discussion ofg rievances at the conference should be considerably curtailed, and more ample provision made on the agenda paper for addresses by educational experts and discussion of important problems of school work by the delegates.

It is customary for the council to appoint a conference sub-committee in July or August each year to draw up the programme of the December conference. On consideration of the resolution of the Bega branch, the council on Friday evening appointed a sub-committee so that more time would be available to effect the suggested alterations if the sub-committee recommended the course proposed by the Bega teachers.

TEACHERS' SALARIES.

The departmental boards chosen to make reports to the Public Service Board on the quinquennial regrading of salaries, have been engaged upon their work for some time past in all the different branches of the Public Service, and their work is now approaching completion. The conditions of teachers, although they are Public servants, differ somewhat from other branches, since teachers are paid by certificate, length of service, and class of school in which they teach. Their salaries also have undergone changes apart from any quinquennial period, as in the case of the increases and reclassification of schools in 1907, and the further increases to certain sections in 1910.

The quinquennial period of adjustment of all State salaries has, however, brought about a movement for a further general rearrangement, as there has also been for some time past agitation for higher salaries and better conditions for particular sections.

The promise of the £110 minimum also has an important bearing upon the situation, and makes the quinquennial adjustment a valuable opportunity for opening the whole question.

Every teacher in the service of the Department of Education has recently been afforded opportunity to supply the department with written information concerning length of service, classification, salary for past five years, qualification, and any special features desired to be noticed. But as teachers are affected in sections rather than in individual cases—any one of which may be personally heard—the rearrangement of salaries will be made in sections. The Education Departmental Board on regrading has therefore requested the council of the Teachers' Association to supply information on salaries in all sections for the board's consideration. The council's representatives will attend at the department for that purpose this afternoon. The representations to be made occupied by far the greater part of the council's deliberations on Friday evening.

CORONATION WEEK.

Coronation Day falls upon a date when the continuation schools are open. Next week the schools will be open on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. During the following week all the State schools will enjoy a special vacation. The pupils of the continuation schools are at work through the day. It has not yet been definitely decided whether these schools shall close in Coronation week.

SCHOOL LIBRARIES.

The Department of Education does not provide the libraries that exist in the State schools, nor are the libraries subsidised by the department. Schools of Arts receive subsidy but not State schools. The Department of Education has, however, during the last two or three years, very liberally supplied for general reading purposes an excellent selection of volumes by the most approved authors for general class use in reading by the pupils. These books have supplanted the old school-reader and are doing much (as Mr. Dawson, Acting Director of Education, said in an address on Friday night last) to reduce the sale of "Deadwood Dick" literature.

The school libraries are the result of local effort, mostly the outcome of school entertainments, and occasionally founded by persons—their number is too few—who have the welfare of the young at heart.

The most recent reports of inspectors throw much light on the circumstances and conduct of school libraries. The following are some of these opinions:—

"During the year these have been closely inspected. No works of an objectionable character, or offensive to any section of the community, have been discovered. . . . It is, however, noticeable that the books are not well graded. They commence, as a rule, too high, and end in works beyond the capacity of even the most intelligent pupil. But the thoughtful teachers, and they are in the majority, are building up good libraries of clean, wholesome, and inspiring literature."

"The home reading of children is well attended to. At nearly every school there is a library. The most successful libraries are those divided into class libraries; this leads to more individual interest on the part of teachers, and consequently stronger influence over the children."

Many persons find themselves affected with a persistent cough after an attack of influenza. As this cough can be promptly cured by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, it should not be allowed to run on until it becomes troublesome.—Advt.

A clear skin results through the taking of "Golcryst." "Golcryst" is the "greatest of a" blood purifiers, 3d, 6d, 1s.—Advt.

Sres. Ashton & Parsons, Ltd.

"TRUTH," the world famous exposer of false trading, writes:—"Phosferine improves the appetite, energises the system, and acts beneficially upon the general health, renewing exhausted vitality. It is not an expensive remedy, nor has it a disagreeable taste, the latter quality making it especially useful for the children, who, you will find, will derive great benefit from it."

SIR JOHN KIRK (the Famous Chief of the Ragged School Union), writes:—"I cannot withhold my spontaneous testimony to the value of a remedy which, from personal experience, I have found to be so efficacious. In the neuralgic and other nerve disturbances consequent on long continuous brain activity, Phosferine fulfils its curative functions most successfully."

FROM CIRCULAR QUAY TO SUSSEX-STREET.

ROADWAY 100 FEET WIDE.

WHARF IN COURSE OF ERECTION AT DAWES POINT. THE ROCKY HILL SIDE IS BEING CUT AWAY TO FORM THE 100FT. ROADWAY.

BIG WHARFAGE SCHEME.

PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

THE GASWORKS BLOCK.

There is a scene of great activity at present between Dawes Point and Miller's Point, where the Harbour Trust Commissioners are proceeding with the construction of new roadways and the building of three new wharfs.

Within a year or so there will be a splendid road, 100 feet wide, running from Circular Quay along Dawes Point, Miller's Point, and Darling Harbour to the Australian Gaslight Company's works, and giving easy access to piers which, it is claimed, will rank among the finest in the Commonwealth. The Commissioners have not yet abandoned hope that arrangements may be made for the removal of the gasworks from their present position, and when that block has been removed the roadway will be continued right into Sussex-street. This second half of the scheme provides for the widening of Napoleon-street and continuing it across Margaret-street, the lower portion of which will be closed, into Kent-street. In other words, access to the wharf will be given by a level roadway 100 feet wide and about 1½ mile in length, which will run from Sussex-street round the whole foreshore to Circular Quay, and so into Pitt-street. The scheme involves the erection of three concrete bridges, each with a span of 80 feet at Miller's Point. Two of these bridges have been put in hand.

The resumption of the gas works was referred to by the Commissioners in their 1909 report as a most important and pressing necessity. In that report it is set forth that "as soon as this resumption is effected the Commissioners will be enabled to construct three jetties, capable of accommodating five of the modern type of interstate vessel. Owing to the continued extension of the interstate trade, the demand for wharfage accommodation for vessels engaged in that trade is very persistent, and such accommodation must, of necessity, be in close proximity to Sussex-street. The resumption of the gas works would thus enable the Commissioners to provide accommodation which could not be afforded in any other way. It is also essential that the resumption should be effected in order to admit of the completion of the roadway round the foreshores of the port, from the head of Darling Harbour to Circular Quay, and without which the full use of the new wharfs between the gasworks and Miller's Point cannot be realised. In this connection it may be mentioned that the Commissioners are carrying the railway in tunnel through the neck at Miller's Point, which will be a great convenience to the traffic. Provision has been made for railway lines through the tunnel, and the Commissioners express the hope that the extension of the railway system to the deep sea wharfs in this vicinity will be proceeded with at an early date."

The illustrations we publish this morning show the progress that is being made with the work in the vicinity of Dawes Point. The baths and the old military barracks have been removed, and excavation work on an extensive scale is being carried on to obtain the required width for the road. Part of Parbury's Bond and of Dalton's Bond will have to be cut away, and this will involve the resumption of both buildings. All the old wharfs between Dawes and Miller's Point are to go and in the erection of new ones care will be taken to make the best possible use of the opportunities for adding to the convenience of the port. The Commissioners point with pride to what has been done on the site of what was known as M'Lean's Wharf. Here the ground sloped down to the water's edge at so sharp an angle that Captain M'Lean proposed to handle cargo by a lift system, which was found to be too expensive in operation, with the result that the wharf was little used. The Commissioners, however, cut portion of the hill away, and then erected a commanding brick building, with a frontage of nearly 900ft. This building provides office and shed accommodation for three new piers, each 500ft long and 100ft wide, with ample berthing accommodation on each side. These piers have been leased to Dalgety and Co., the Norddeutscher Lloyd Co., and M'Ilwraith, M'Eacharn, and Co. At the foot of Kent-street a wharf is being built 600ft long by 130ft wide, and on this there will be a shed 90ft wide, and having two floors. The upper floor will be approached from Windmill-street by a bridge over Hickson-road, this being the name of the road under construction around the foreshore. Office and storage accommodation in connection with the new wharf will be provided by a three-storied brick building, having a frontage of about 400ft. All these works take time and involve heavy expenditure, but the Commissioners point out that they form part of a comprehensive scheme, which will add enormously to the shipping facilities of the port.

TREE-PLANTING CAMPS.

PRISONERS ON THE LAND.

THE NEW ZEALAND SYSTEM.

TWENTY-THREE MILLION TREES IN TEN YEARS.

"The tree-planting prison camps are undoubtedly an experiment quite new to penology, but we in New Zealand find that the men work well, while the discipline of the camps is on the whole very good."

That, in a nutshell, is what the Dominion officials think of the prison camp scheme after 10 years' experience. The statement was made yesterday by the Rev. J. L. A. Kayll, visiting adviser to the Prisons Department of New Zealand, who has been commissioned by his Government to study the Australian systems at first hand. He has already visited Pentridge (Vic.), Darlinghurst, Goulburn, Bathurst, and Long Bay, and is convinced that New South Wales has "a very highly organised system, the general discipline being excellent."

"Before any country adopts the tree-planting system," he went on to say, "the country's conditions and requirements should be thoroughly mastered, because the scheme would have to fit in as part of a carefully constructed penological system. In New Zealand we are specially favoured for the carrying out of such a scheme. We have isolated spots which lead as it were, to nowhere, and from which escape would be almost impossible. During the last five years only one prisoner got clean away, and I believe he is now serving a sentence in this State. We have three tree-planting camps—Waiotapu, 21 miles from Rotorua, Waipa, on the shores of Lake Rota-Kakahi, and Hanmer Springs, 90 miles north of Christchurch. The first, which is the largest, has accommodation for 70 prisoners, but at present contains only 56. About 10 per cent. of the total number of convicts are at present engaged in tree-planting. The prisoners are housed in weatherboard structures—one hut, with two distinct rooms. Each room has a window, and the prisoner is supplied with mattress and blankets. Some years ago a fireplace was provided, but the prisoners used to go out, trap rabbits and birds, and roast them. Of course, that had to be stopped.

"Yes, the utmost care is exercised in selecting prisoners for tree-planting work. Only men who are in gaol for the first time are eligible. If a man who has been at tree-planting is convicted the second time, he has no possible chance of being sent to tree-planting again. He wouldn't have a show, even if his conduct on the first occasion had been exemplary. I choose most of them myself, and in choosing them I consider each case on its individual merits. No one convicted of a very bad crime is sent to a tree-planting camp. We had one man who was sentenced to ten years—that is the longest. That man, while drunk, shot at his wife, who recovered. He was the best prisoner we ever had. As a rule, a man is not sent away tree-planting until he has served a third of his sentence, and has proved that he can be trusted.

"Very few of our prisoners attempt to escape. Twenty-six got away from the camp during five years, but 25 of them did not remain away for long. The men appreciate being sent away tree-planting, and work hard with the object of obtaining some remission of their sentence. Some of them work all public holidays and on Saturday evenings, but if they work eight hours overtime they are not allowed eight hours remission. For various reasons that would not do; but in determining the remission the whole of the overtime is taken into account. The working day consists of seven hours. The prisoners are attired in ordinary convict dress, but their food is a little better than that served out in the ordinary prison. For instance, they get a more liberal supply of meat and vegetables.

"There isn't a rifle on the place. In the early morning a warder is sent out three miles over the hills with 10 prisoners. The warder is unarmed, while the prisoners take out with them long 'slashers' and other implements. What would be the use of arming a warder when there are 10 men with slashers? A slasher is about four feet long, and very sharp. The men could overpower the warder if they wished, but the point is that they don't desire to do so.

"Since 1901 we have planted over 23 million trees. One prisoner alone planted 2000 in a day—that is the record. The men take an interest in the technical side of forestry. There is a common room, where the prisoners congregate at night-time. Some of them make glove-boxes with inlaid woods; others go in for making watch-chains, and so forth. They work with a small knife. Our gaolers declare that there are far fewer returns to prison of men who have been engaged in tree-planting than those who have been in an ordinary gaol.

"By the way, we are getting ready an agricultural prison. Twelve hundred acres of land have been secured in the King Country—most of it fair to good second-class soil. Of course, it is all in its rude state, and has never been cultivated. This prison will be for men who are serving indeterminate sentence. No prisoner will be allowed to leave until he has gone right through the agricultural course, and then not until we find a farmer willing to take him. But no difficulty will be experienced on that score, as the man who has received the training which has been mapped out at this prison will be just the man for whom the farmer is looking.

"Quite recently the Minister for Justice stated that he intends to make provision whereby certain prisoners may be able to receive a certain proportion of the monetary value of the work they have done while in gaol. As to whether the results of the tree-planting scheme have justified the expenditure, it must be looked at in this way. If you see what that work has cost us by prison labour, and then ascertain what free labour would have required for the same amount of work, you will find that there has been a considerable saving. There has been no yield from the timber, so far—that is a matter for the future. But in years to come the millions of trees planted by the prisoners will be a valuable asset to the Dominion."

CHEAP FRUIT.

PROPOSAL BY THE LORD MAYOR.

For the purpose of making better provision for supplying the public with fruit and of preventing the great waste that is often caused at present, the Lord Mayor has been giving the matter consideration for some time.

He proposes that a conference should be held as soon as possible of fruitgrowers and others interested with a view of going into the whole question of supply and demand. The Lord Mayor expressed himself in favour of persons being allowed, under certain restrictions, to provide fruit stands in certain streets of the city which are not congested by traffic, as consumers would thus have an opportunity of getting good and cheap fruit, which they do not possess at present. The arrangements in force now prevented the growers getting an adequate return for their labour, and very often they were unable to get their produce on to the market at all. Alderman Taylor is quite aware that these proposals are likely to be canvassed, but he holds strong views on the subject, asserting that the suggestions are in the interests of all parties concerned, and that fruit, instead of being a luxury as at present, should be a common article of diet, which his proposals would help to bring about.

QUESTION OF NOTIFICATION.

PROPOSED ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS DISPENSARIES.

ALARMING DEATH-RATE.

A deputation representing the National Association for the Prevention and Cure of Consumption waited on the Acting Chief Secretary (Mr. Flowers) yesterday, and made a request for an annual grant of £2000 with which to establish anti-tuberculosis dispensaries.

Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald, in introducing the deputation, referred to the terrible ravages of consumption, and explained that it was communicable, preventable, and curable. The eradication of the disease, he contended, was a challenge to civilisation and to humanity, and the association was prepared to do the work. It was not intended to call for private subscriptions, however, as the association looked upon the matter as one affecting the whole community. Under the circumstances it was felt that the Government could fairly give a subsidy.

Sir Philip Sydney Jones (president of the association) said that no more important question than the prevention of consumption could engage the attention of the Government. Five million people died annually from tuberculosis, and the death-roll in New South Wales alone was 4000. During the past 33 years no less than 42,912 people had died in this State from the disease, the ages of the majority ranging from 15 to 40. If a life between those ages was worth £200 to the State then those lives represented a pecuniary loss to the State of half a million pounds. The death-rate was alarming, but there was the comforting assurance of scientists that the disease was preventable, and, if taken in the early stages, curable. It was the hope of the association that an Act would be passed making notification compulsory throughout the State. The City Council had passed by-laws seven or eight years ago, making notification compulsory within the city area.

Mr. Flowers: Are you satisfied with those by-laws of the City Council in respect to notification, or do you think they should be uniform throughout the State?

Sir Philip Sydney Jones: They have worked very satisfactorily.

Mr. Flowers: What happens after notification?

Sir Philip Sydney Jones: An inspector is sent to the house, and afterwards, if necessary, the house is disinfected.

Mr. Flowers: If it is a boarding-house does the proprietor give notice to the boarder to quit, after he learns of the boarder's condition?

Sir Philip Sydney Jones: What are they to do? If the disease is in the early stages the patient can go to a sanitorium; or if it is in an advanced stage there is the Government Hospital at Waterfall to which he can go.

Sir Philip Sydney Jones (continuing) said that the association was in need of a grant of £2000 annually for the establishment of anti-tuberculosis dispensaries, and to inaugurate an educational crusade. He explained that an anti-tuberculosis dispensary was not a place where a man simply got a bottle of medicine and drank it. It did much more than that. It was open to everyone. The poorest could go and be examined. The case would then be diagnosed, and treatment recommended, and a physician and trained nurse attached to the dispensary would visit the patient. They would see that the patient was properly disposing of his expectoration and observing the necessary cleanliness at his home, and advise him how to live to avoid infection to others. Then, again, the people in the house were advised to go to the dispensary to be examined, for it had been proved that cases detected in the early stages could be cured in a sanitorium. There were 286 anti-tuberculosis dispensaries in the United States, and a few in Scotland and England. Ignorance, he contended, was the greatest obstacle to the eradication of consumption. If people knew the dangers they incurred and the simple measures to be used in preventing infection, then they would very soon get rid of consumption. They did not know of these simple safeguards, and they should be informed. Therefore, the association proposed to organise an educational crusade by distributing literature bearing on the subject and forming a travelling exhibition, in which models would be shown, maps and lantern slides, as well as cinematograph films illustrating the ravages of this terrible disease, and showing how it could be combated. A popular lecturer would be attached to the exhibition, which would move from town to town, and he was satisfied that the result would be most satisfactory. Such a scheme was inaugurated in Ireland three years ago, and since that time the mortality had decreased. He hoped the Government would be able to grant the sum they desired for they were anxious to open the dispensaries at the earliest possible moment.

Dr. Zlotkowski (vice-president) said they were ready to commence immediately, but without Government aid they could do nothing. It was not a matter of charity, it was a matter that affected the whole of the State, and was of national importance. The medical profession were willing to give their services free of charge, and all they asked was for the Government to help them establish the dispensaries. If, at the end of twelve months, the association could not show that it had done something to help humanity, and for the eradication of the disease, then it was willing to quit the field.

Mrs. Dwyer said they recognised that the Government had enormous claims with regard to charities and hospitals, but the present request was one that should receive sympathetic consideration.

Mrs. Goldschmidt hoped they would not allow the slur to become possible that they were neglecting the health of the people in regard to this matter.

Dr. F. G. Griffiths said that fortunately the death rate in New South Wales from consumption was very much lower than in any other part of the world. But still the death-rate was higher than that from all the other infectious diseases put together. He was in favour of compulsory notification.

Mr. Flowers: Suppose we make notification compulsory, what is to become of the people who are shifted from pillar to post?

Dr. Griffiths said there would be hardships until the community recognised that a consumptive was only dangerous through dirty habits. They wanted to teach everyone the filthiness of spitting. If no one spat there would be little danger of consumption. Once they taught the people that consumptives could live in their midst without more than trifling danger to the community, then much of the fear of consumption would be dispelled. He knew that some patients had to suffer many hardships, and were driven from pillar to post by the action of neighbours.

Dr. Constance D'Arcy said that leprosy, which was isolated, was not nearly as infectious as consumption.

Mr. Flowers, in reply, said he realised that no more important matter could be dealt with than that to which his attention had been drawn that day. He did not think any Government had devoted the time that the present Government had in considering the treatment of the sick and the general administration of the hospitals, and it had been driven home to him that the Government would have to do a great deal before they could say that the treatment of the sick was satisfactory from the State point of view. They, however, had advanced a special case, something that could not be treated in the general hospitals, and which must be considered altogether apart from the general treatment of the sick. He agreed with most of the planks of the association's platform, but he was not firmly convinced of the necessity for compulsory notification. He had given the matter some little attention, and he would certainly like to feel that no injustice was going to be done. Notification might serve two purposes. One was to help the person affected, but the most important was to protect those from infection who were not infected. But in trying to protect the healthy they had no right to forget their humanity. He was as anxious as anyone to try to remove the cause of the disease and prevent cases. He felt very doubtful, however, about placing consumptives on the same level as lepers, and, therefore, thought they should move slowly in the matter. If general notification was insisted upon there must be some means of preventing the cruelty that would inevitably follow. If some scheme was adopted whereby sanitoriums were established where patients could be instantly removed when they found that they could not find comfortable lodgings, or if they found that they could not secure employment, then much of his opposition to the proposals would disappear. No better work could be done than opening dispensaries, and that had his hearty support. It seemed to him a very modest sum that they had asked for, and if Mr. Carmichael was in sympathy he did not think the Government would stand in the way of the association. He was sorry he did not see eye to eye with the deputation with regard to notification. The time might come when it would be necessary, but he thought much more could be done at the present time by demanding that houses should not be let or built that would in any way lend themselves to the spread of consumption.

BUILDINGS AND WORKS.

PROGRESS OF THE TRADE.

WATER SUPPLY FOR GRAFTON.

Grafton and South Grafton are to have a new water supply. The Public Works Committee last session went fully into the question of a water supply for Grafton, and approved of a scheme for a supply by means of gravitation from the Nymboida River. The work was estimated to cost £68,000. Parliament sanctioned the expenditure, and the Department of Works called for tenders to construct the inlet works and also the laying of gravitation and service mains, building of a service reservoir and reticulation works for both Grafton and South Grafton. The tenders were opened yesterday. Three were received, and the lowest was that of Mr. John Lorrimer, £22,449. Under an arrangement with Messrs. Hoskins, the Government will supply all the pipes required, the contractor having simply to place them in position; and the cost of the pipes, machinery, etc., will, it is thought, bring the total cost up to the estimate given to the Public Works Committee, viz., £68,000. The matter has yet to be decided by the Minister for Works, to whom the tenders have been submitted.

NEWCASTLE WATER SUPPLY.

It is proposed to erect pumping machinery at Walka to considerably improve the present water supply for Newcastle and the Hunter River district. Tenders were called for this work. Yesterday five prices were received, the lowest being that of G. Weymouth Proprietory, Limited, £7088.

COUNTRY SCHOOL IMPROVEMENTS.

In addition to the improvements in the school buildings of the metropolis mentioned last week, a large amount of money is also being expended in country districts. Not only are many of the schools being enlarged to meet the increase of population, but school buildings generally are being remodelled in accordance with modern methods.

The Grafton school is to be remodelled and enlarged on the classroom principle. The lighting accommodation is to be improved by increasing the length of the windows and inserting new ones. The classroom accommodation is to be increased, and a new weather shed is to be built.

A new school is to be built at Murwillumbah. It will be a large brick building of one story. The main entrance will be from a wide verandah, leading to a large assembly hall. Off this hall will be seven classrooms, with accommodation in each for 50 scholars. There will also be two rooms for the teachers and two hat and cloak rooms.

At Newcastle a workshop block is to be built in connection with the Technical College. It will be a two-storied brick building plainly finished on the outside. On the ground floor provision will be made for a wide entrance hall. From this hall entrance will be gained to a lecture and demonstration room 30ft by 24ft, and to a room for those engaged in electrical engineering, 25ft by 24ft. Fire-proof stairs will lead to the upper floor, which will be divided into a room for teaching trades. It will be an apartment of the same size as the room for the electrical engineers. There will also be a lecture room and a room for mechanical drawing, also teachers' rooms, stores, etc.

The Dubbo school is to be considerably enlarged. Two new classrooms are to be erected, also teachers' rooms, and hat and coat rooms. A new corridor porch is to be constructed. The whole of the present school is to be remodelled on the new classroom system. A cookery school is to be built. It will be a detached building, constructed of wood, and will contain a schoolroom 30ft by 25ft, with a large scullery, cloakroom, pantry, and fuel-room adjoining.

A school is to be built at Clear Hills. It will consist of one room, constructed of wood, with an iron roof, and will have provision for 50 scholars. There will also be a verandah and a hat-room.

At Morpeth the school and teacher's residence are to be overhauled and repaired.

Plans are being prepared for improvements to a number of other country schools.

GENERAL NOTES.

Builders who tender in the Public Works Department are complaining that their time is being wasted in estimating for Public school work, chiefly in the country parts, for time after time the answer comes from the Tender Board, "This job is to be reported upon." Eight jobs were hung up in yesterday's tendering for the same reason. That means that the whole of the tenders are above the departmental estimate for the work. The builders say that when eight and nine tenders are sent in, and all are very close, it shows that the departmental officers' estimate is very much out. The builders have wasted hours in tendering without any result. They think that when as many as eight and nine tenders are received the Minister ought to be able to say that the lowest price submitted is a fair value for the proposed work, and that the job ought to go on, irrespective of what an officer might think as to its value.

A drill hall is to be built at Singleton. It will be a brick building, with an iron roof, 60ft long by 30ft wide, and there will be a number of offices and stores at each end. The whole of the front will be enclosed with a neat openwork fence on a dwarf walling.

The Land and Survey office at East Maitland is to be overhauled, repaired, and painted, and a number of improvements internally are to be carried out.

Additions are to be made to the post and telegraph office at Trundle. A kitchen, side and back verandahs, a bath-room, etc., are to be added.

The main hall of the Young Men's Christian Association building, Pitt and Bathurst streets, is to have a concrete floor. A contract has been let to carry out the work.

Plans are being prepared by Messrs. Slatyer and Shiels for extended additions to the Sydney Paper Mills at Botany, and also for making additions and alterations to residential chambers in Lang-street.

Mr. G. W. Durrell, architect, is preparing plans for a hotel at Camperdown, for which tenders will be called this week.

Messrs. W. M. Nixon and Son, architects, have plans in hand for a residence at Strathfield and a cottage at Cheltenham.

Mr. B. Hadley, architect, is preparing drawings for additions and alterations to the Methodist Church at Ashfield.

Messrs. SURGICAL APPLIANCES AID SOCIETY.

The thirteenth annual meeting of subscribers to the Surgical Appliances Aid Society was held in the Town Hall yesterday afternoon, Sir James Graham presiding.

The report of the year was read by the chairman, and dealt fully with the work of the society. It stated that regular meetings had been held, and there had been constant applications for appliances of all kinds. With few exceptions these had been supplied. The list of appliances granted represents a total expenditure of £121 16s 2d, and included artificial arms and legs, boots, crutches, belts, and all manner of devices for the comfort of the invalided. The honorary medical officers had carried out their duties in a most satisfactory manner, and the secretary (Mr. Charles Bell) had in season and out of season attended to the needs of the society. It was a good work, and it had been highly appreciated.

The statement of finance showed the expenditure to be £192 10s 2d, made up as follows:—Petty expenses, £2 19s 6d; advertising, £4 11s 2d; salaries and commission, £62 17s 2d; surgical appliances aid, £121 16s 2d. The receipts, including a balance from the previous year of £178 19s 2d, amounted to £376 19s 2d, the following being the sources of revenue:—Subscriptions, etc., £116; Hospital Saturday Fund, £70; Government grant, £50; interest on Savings Bank deposit, £1 19s 2d; the credit balance at date being £183 8s 3d.

On the motion of the chairman, seconded by Mrs. Hugh Dixson, the report and balance-sheet were adopted.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—President, Sir James Graham; vice-presidents, Lady Harris, Miss Margaret Harris, and Mrs. Hugh Dixson; hon. medical staff, Drs. John Harris and R. H. Jones; directors, the Lady Mayoress (Mrs. Allen Taylor), Mesdames A. W. Weekes, E. C. V. Broughton, Eyers, and Lion; hon. treasurer, Mr. E. C. V. Broughton; secretary, Mr. Charles Bell.

RELIEF FOR "THAT OLD-AGE COUGH."

THE SPLENDID ADVANTAGES OF PEPS.

Most elderly people are troubled with chronic chest coughs, which have grown steadily worse year after year as the result of constant bronchial colds and coughs wrongly treated in the bad old way—by dosing the nerves through the stomach with drug-laden mixtures and lozenges.

It is a striking tribute to the true medicinal value of the Peps treatment that even in the most obstinate cases Peps have banished old folks' coughs. Even where the bronchial tubes have become brittle and have lost their elasticity through long decades of chronic inflammation, Peps have conquered the incessant irritation, cured the cough, and brought back restful nights and peaceful days. The beneficent Peps' fumes encourage easy and natural expectoration, stimulate the bronchial glands, and make breathing delightfully easy. One or two tablets when rising in the morning will clear the bronchial tubes of the accumulated impurities of the night, and, by preventing the terribly exhausting morning fits of coughing, help the old folks to begin the day in comfort.

Peps are indispensable to old folks everywhere, preserving the priceless strength so often wasted by incessant coughing, and ensuring the unspeakable comfort of clear and vigorous bronchial tubes.

Peps are obtainable of all chemists and stores at 1s 6d and 3s per box.—Advt.

SOME OLD THINGS ARE BEST AFTER ALL. There have been many advances in medicine, many new and valuable discoveries, but nothing in the line of bronchial discoveries that can compare with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for giving quick and permanent relief. All of the ingredients are well-known curative agents, and there is no experimenting when we recommend you to try this old and reliable remedy.—Advt.

LAW REPORT.

BANCO COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice and a jury of four.)

ST. DAVID'S CHURCH, ARNCLIFFE.

THE CONTRACTOR AND THE TRUSTEES.

Symon v Lambkin and others.

Mr. Windeyer and Mr. Young, instructed by Mr. J. W. Abigail, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Mann and Mr. Boyce, instructed by Messrs. Russell and Russell, for the defendants, who are the trustees for St. David's Church, Arncliffe. This was an action brought by John William Symon against Giles Lambkin, William Morgan Onions, John Hugh Rodin, Frederick Thomas Brooke, and Thomas Wright for alleged breach of agreement in reference to a building contract for the erection of a portion of the church referred to. Damages were laid at £800. The defendants had filed a number of pleas, alleging certain breaches by the plaintiff of the terms and conditions of the contract and plans and specifications, which entitled them, after due notice, to discharge the plaintiff. The latter replied to these pleas, asserting that any suspension of or delay in the work was caused partly by the action of the trustees themselves, and partly from circumstances not under his control, and that any deviation from the plans and specifications was brought about by the requisition of the municipality in connection with the building.

The evidence on behalf of the plaintiff was continued, and Percival Somerville, town clerk for the municipality of Rockdale, stated the course of events in regard to the approval by the council of the plans and specifications for the church building. He said that in December, 1909, a plan was sent in, and verbally approved. On August 4, 1910, the council was interviewed by the Rev. Mr. Price and Mr. Dunstan, the architect of the building, and after that interview a resolution was passed by the council approving of the plans and specifications then submitted. On the first of September the council received a communication from the plaintiff, complaining that he had been delayed by the action of the council.

At the close of the plaintiff's case Mr. Mann moved for a nonsuit, on the ground that the evidence showed that plaintiff had been guilty of undue delay. He received the second notice from the architect on August 5, or the following day, and, according to his own evidence, he took no steps at all until August 20.

The Chief Justice: He was stopped by the action of the council.

Mr. Mann said it was proved that the delay was not brought about by causes not within the control of the plaintiff, and he submitted that it was also established that the action of the council did not prevent him from going on with the work.

His Honor refused to nonsuit.

Evidence for the defence was then proceeded with, and the case stands part heard.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury of four.)

CLAIM FOR COMPENSATION.

Clarke v Woonona Industrial Co-operative Society, Limited.

Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Perry, instructed by Mr. A. A. Lysaght, of Wollongong (by his agent, Mr. B. A. M'Bride), appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Sheridan, instructed by Messrs. Owen and Champion, of Wollongong, by their agents, Messrs. A. J. Taylor and Greenwell, for the defendants. This was an action brought by Audrey Clarke, aged 6 years (by Ernest Albert Clarke, her next friend) against the Woonona Industrial Co-operative Society to recover compensation for injury caused, as she averred, by the negligence of a servant of the defendant. Her case was that on the afternoon of February 6 she was waiting for a coach from Wollongong to take her to her home at Woonona. Having hailed the coach as it approached on the way to Bulli, she was crossing the road to enter, when a horse ridden by a youth in the service of the defendant society came down the hill at the base of which the coach was waiting, and ran over her, and she sustained a fracture of her right leg. Damages were laid at £500.

Defendants denied the negligence, and the question also arose whether plaintiff had not been guilty of contributory negligence. Further evidence was given on behalf of the defendant society, and it was stated that the youth Browning was riding at a medium trot immediately before the accident and that the pony he was riding was an old and quiet animal.

The medical evidence went to show that plaintiff had now recovered the complete use of the limb.

The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff, with damages £50.

A DISPUTE AS TO FILMS.

Mason and another v King.

Mr. Piddington, instructed by Messrs. T. J. Dickson and Dickson, appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Coyle, instructed by Mr. J. W. Abigail, for the defendant. This was an action brought by Clement Mason and Mary Collett, trading as Clement Mason and Company, cinematographists, against Charles E. King, to recover the sum of £64 2s 3d balance alleged to be due by the defendant for cinematograph films supplied to him by plaintiffs on hire. Their case was that the films were hired to the defendant through his agent, John King, and were used by the defendant in a picture show business at the "Lyceum," Brisbane. Defendant had been supplied with accounts and invoices, showing the total liability, and had not disputed his indebtedness. There was an amount of £14 19s paid into court by the defendant, and plaintiffs admitted that £16 17s 3d had also been paid, defendant denying his indebtedness as to the balance sued for.

The case stands part heard.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

CLAIM FOR £1378.

Michael Joseph Connolly sued Roger Bullen, cattle and stock dealer, of Melbourne, for the recovery of £1378, for alleged breach of agreement in connection with the sale of 8000 sheep. Plaintiff, who lives at South Grawar station, near Walgett, alleged that he entered into a contract with defendant, whereby the latter was to purchase the stock. Defendant, however, repudiated the contract, and refused to take delivery of the sheep. In consequence of defendant's alleged repudiation, plaintiff further stated that he had lost the profits which would have accrued to him, and was forced to sell the stock at a loss, besides having to incur other expenses.

Mr. Rolin (instructed by Messrs. Allen, Allen, and Hemsley) appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. Garland, K.C., and Mr. Cowan (instructed by Messrs. Shaw and M'Donald, agents for Messrs. Dugdale and Creber, of Melbourne), appeared for the defendant.

Mr. Rolin in placing the plaintiff's case before the Court, said that Connolly sent instructions to Warden Harry Graves and Co. to sell his sheep. The sheep were then brought under the attention of another firm, in whose employ was a Mr. Dillon, who subsequently had a conversation with defendant, and the latter instructed him to inspect the sheep and make the best bargain he could. This Dillon did, and on August 23 he entered into a contract with plaintiff on behalf of defendant for the purchase of the sheep at 10s 7½d a head in the wool, delivery to be made in September. Early in that month plaintiff was asked to postpone delivery for a week, and later on plaintiff received a communication from Dillon to the effect that defendant had refused to accept delivery. Owing to dry weather and scarcity of feed, the sheep which had been in fit condition began to deteriorate, and at a subsequent sale they brought only about 8s a head.

Defendant pleaded not guilty, urging that he did not enter into the agreement alleged by plaintiff. Defendant denied having authorised Dillon to inspect the sheep. He had had frequent dealings with the firm which employed Dillon, but none in connection with plaintiff's sheep.

The case stands part heard.

TABOR v COLONIAL MUTUAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY, LTD.

In this matter, which still remains part heard, Mr. Ralston, K.C., and Mr. Watt (instructed by Messrs. Buchanan and Smithers), are appearing for plaintiff, and Mr. Wade, K.C., and Mr. Pickburn (instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co.), for the defendants.

IN EQUITY.

(Before Mr. Acting Justice Rich.)

PRESERVING FISH.

AN OLD CASE REVIVED.

Pacific Fisheries, Ltd., v Henderson.

Mr. Harriott (instructed by Messrs. Wilson and Harriott) appeared for plaintiffs, Frederick Lewis Stacy and J. W. Kettlewell (representing the shareholders of the company); and Mr. Maughan (instructed by Mr. H. B. Primrose) for defendants J. R. Henderson and F. T. Morton. There was no appearance on behalf of the Pacific Fisheries, Ltd. (which has been wound up), or for defendants H. P. Evans, E. D. J. Balfour, and F. H. Molesworth.

This was a suit brought by the Pacific Fisheries, Ltd., and Frederick Lewis Stacy and J. Kettlewell on behalf of themselves and all the other shareholders of the said company, plaintiffs, against Jonathan Rankin Henderson, Henry Percy Evans, Edwin David James Balfour, F. T. Morton, and F. H. Molesworth, defendants.

Plaintiffs' statement of claim set forth that on February 17, 1908, an agreement was entered into between defendants Henderson and Evans and Charles Dare Broadfield (as trustees for the Pacific Fisheries, Ltd.) whereby the latter agreed to buy the patent rights for New South Wales of a certain patent entitled "Kyle's means for and method of preventing the decomposition of fish," the consideration being the payment to Henderson and Evans of £2500 and 10,000 fully paid-up £1 shares in the company, which was duly registered on July 11, 1908. Of the directors appointed under the articles of association plaintiffs believed the following had resigned from office, namely, Alexander Jarvie Hood and George Armstrong, and that the other directors vacated their offices at the first general meeting on December 30, 1908, when defendants Henderson and Balfour, who were represented as the holders of one share each, and F. H. Molesworth and W. W. Bean (neither of whom held any shares in the company) were declared elected as directors. At the meeting there were only three members present in person, viz., J. R. Henderson, A. H. Prince, and T. E. Cansdell, representing 21 shares; proxies for seven members were held by Henderson, and represented 95 shares. Since the said meeting defendants Henderson, Balfour, Morton, and Molesworth had purported to act as a board of directors, though none of them held the number of shares required by the articles of association. Henderson, Balfour, and Evans, assuming to act as such board, on July 13, 1908, proceeded to appoint Henderson to be managing director, though he had not the number of shares required by the articles of association. At such meeting it was agreed that the terms of his employment should be submitted to a fuller board meeting, but such was not done. Henderson, assuming to act as managing director, purported to dismiss the secretary of the company, plaintiff Stacy, and forcibly took possession of the books of the company and the share register, and refused to produce any of them though repeatedly requested to do so. Henderson had from time to time received certain moneys from applicants for shares, and other moneys from allottees of shares, and had failed to account for the same to the company. The process mentioned in the memorandum of association had never been transferred to the company, and Henderson and Evans had now no interest in the patent rights of such process, and the company was unable to acquire the said patent. At a meeting, which purported to be a meeting of directors, held on January 22, at which Henderson, Molesworth, and Balfour were present, the alleged directors affixed the seal of the company to an agreement purporting to purchase from Henderson a certain process for heating fish entitled "improved process for heating fish for the purpose of preventing decomposition." In respect of which letters patent had, as Henderson represented, been applied for. Henderson presided at the meeting, and voted in favour of the agreement. The price expressed to be paid to Henderson was £6000, payable as follows:—£50 in cash, £950 as set out in the agreement, and £5000 in 5000 fully-paid shares in the company. Notwithstanding his lack of qualification, Henderson, Evans, and Balfour, assuming to act as the board of directors of the company, had paid to Henderson, as the alleged managing director, the sum of £7 10s weekly for his services. Plaintiffs believed that Henderson, Morton, and Balfour, assuming to act as such board of directors, had, since January 23, allotted to Henderson, in pursuance of the alleged agreement, 5000 fully-paid shares, in order that at any meeting he (Henderson) might be able to outvote the remaining shareholders, as he could voting in respect of the 5000 shares. The alleged directors refused to call a meeting for the purpose of inquiring into the prospects of the company, and to obtain an interim financial statement. Subsequently, on February 19, 1909, they called a meeting for other purposes. On February 15 a meeting of shareholders was held, at which Henderson and nine other members, representing 206 shares, and 39 members, representing 1005 shares, by proxies, were present. At that meeting the following resolution was carried:—"That in the opinion of this meeting the present position of the company and the attitude of those claiming to be directors of the company is so unsatisfactory that it cannot be allowed to continue; and the meeting appoints Mr. F. L. Stacy, of 14 Martin-place, Sydney, and Mr. J. Kettlewell, of Margaret-street, Sydney, a committee to take legal advice and all steps on behalf of the company and shareholders as they may be advised, to protect their interests." All the members present voted in favour of the resolution with the exception of Henderson, who abstained from voting. The assets of the company on June 23, 1909, consisted of about £30 on current account, £537 10s unpaid calls, and £1382 10s uncalled capital, and certain office furniture. Its liabilities amounted to about £163, and plaintiffs were afraid lest the alleged board and defendant Henderson might waste the assets, and call up and dissipate the uncalled capital. Plaintiffs had ascertained that the process entitled "improved process for heating fresh fish for the purpose of preventing decomposition" was not capable of being patented, and the company had never used the process, and had not since December 9, 1909, and could not, carry on business. Plaintiffs charged as a fact that the substratum of the company had gone, and they submitted it was just and equitable that the company should be wound up. Among other things, they prayed that defendants be restrained from using the seal of the company, and from dealing with the assets, and from operating on the banking account or doing anything to carry into effect the alleged agreement with Henderson; that it be declared the agreement was not binding on the company; and that defendant Henderson be restrained from voting in respect of or otherwise dealing with the shares purporting to have been allotted to him; and that he be ordered to refund to the company any moneys paid in respect of the said agreement, and deliver up for cancellation the scrip representing the said shares.

The defence was a general denial of the assertions in the statement of claim. It was claimed that what the board of directors had done was perfectly right and legal.

Mr. Maughan demurred to the statement of claim on the ground that plaintiffs had no locus standi to bring the action, which should have been brought by the company.

After argument, his Honor held that the statement of claim was demurrable, and dismissed the suit with costs, including costs of the interlocutory motion, such costs to be paid by defendants Stacy and Kettlewell.

PROBATE COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Gordon.)

BEATTY WILL CASE.

APPLICATION TO REVOKE PROBATE.

Mr. James, instructed by Mr. L. E. Cope, of Casino (by his Sydney agents, Messrs. Iceton, Faithfull, and Maddock), appeared on behalf of William John Irwin, farmer, of Ballina, and James Henry Allen, farmer, of Kyogle, in support of the application that probate of the will of Alexander Beatty, late of Kyogle, farmer, dated September 20, 1906, be revoked.

Mr. Maughan, instructed by Mr. H. Richardson Clark, appeared to oppose.

It was explained, when the matter was before the Court last week, that Alexander Beatty died at Kyogle on or about April 19, 1908. Probate was first sought of a will dated March 8, 1902, under which W. J. Irwin and John Henderson were appointed trustees and executors, and the widow, Sarah Jane Beatty, set up in opposition a will dated September 20, 1906, under which John Henderson and John Heslop were appointed trustees and executors of the Victorian portion of the estate, and the two applicants trustees and executors of the New South Wales portion. The ground of the application was that the will of September 20, 1906, had been proved to be a forgery.

Mr. Maughan submitted that the application was irregular, there being no jurisdiction in the Court to hear such a motion, the proper course being by suit.

Mr. James submitted that the Court had inherent jurisdiction to revoke its own order. Mrs. Beatty was the only beneficiary under the will, and she had been served with notice of the proceedings.

Mr. Maughan informed his Honor that a will dated 1907 had been set up in Melbourne as the latest.

His Honor said that since the application was last before the Court he had looked into the matter, and he was very doubtful indeed whether the Court had power to deal with the motion. The only authority he could find as to the English practice was Christian v Cooper, reported in Tristram and Cootes' Practice, page 476. He had, however, not the slightest doubt that the Court had power to revoke a grant of probate which had been wrongly made, and the only question was as to the proper method of approaching the Court. He was of opinion that the question at issue could not be properly tried by a motion of the kind now before the Court. He, therefore, dismissed it, and with costs, unless a suit to revoke probate was instituted within three weeks, in which event the costs of the motion would be costs in the suit.

Mr. James then moved for probate of the will which had been set up against the forged will in the previous suit, but his Honor directed the application to stand over until after the hearing of the suit for revocation.

INDUSTRIAL COURT.

(Before Judge Heydon.)

AUSTRALASIAN SOCIETY OF ENGINEERS.

In the matter of the Australasian Society of Engineers re constitution of a board, Mr. Coyle (instructed by Mr. P. K. White) appeared for the society. Exemptions from the operations of the board were asked for by the following:—Mr. Waldron (City Council and Metropolitan Board of Water Supply and Sewerage), Mr. E. S. Trigg (Meadow Bank Manufacturing Company, Clyde Engineering Company, and Ritchie Bros., so far as rolling stock men and general implement makers are concerned), Mr. F. Wallace (Pioneer Railway Spring Co.), Mr. Fawl (of Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co.) (Sulphide Corporation, Ltd., and Commonwealth Oil Corporation), Mr. G. Langley (New South Wales Laundry Association) Mr. G. J. Sinclair (Boilermakers, as far as angle iron smiths are concerned).

Mr. Coghlan appeared to ask that the board be appointed on the application of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers for the whole State.

After hearing argument his Honor said there were two societies registered which had the right of registered unions. He would prefer to see one society, but did not see that he was entitled to penalise either. He was prepared to recognise the weight of the amalgamated society, which was larger and more influential, but his Honor was not for that reason prepared to trample on the Australasian society. Both parties had the one interest as workers, though, unfortunately, not as trade unionists. His Honor was of opinion that both should meet and confer as sensible men, and come before him as one body.

The matter was postponed.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Murray and Juries.)

Mr. Herbert Harris was Crown Prosecutor.

A FIRST OFFENDER.

Edward Lathrope, pleaded guilty to entering the counting-house of John Cook and another, in Sydney, on May 3, and stealing therein £13 13s 3d in cash and other articles.

Accused was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, but released as a first offender on sureties being entered into.

ALLEGED BREAKING, ENTERING, AND STEALING.

Harry Stead and George Webb pleaded not guilty to a charge that on April 30, at Alexandria, they did break and enter the dwelling-house of Catherine Condon and steal therein certain jewellery and 10s in money.

Mr. J. W. Abigail appeared for the accused.

The Crown alleged that the premises in question, a grocer's shop, were broken into during the absence of the prosecutrix on the date named at about 8.30 in the evening.

Both the accused set up the defence of an alibi, and produced witnesses in support.

Addresses were not concluded till 5 o'clock. His Honor deferred summing-up, and the jury was then locked up for the night.

David Fealy appealed against a conviction and fine by Mr. Barnett, S.M., on a charge of insulting words. The appeal was dismissed, with £5 5s costs.

John Allen was unsuccessful in his appeal against the decision of Mr. Smithers, S.M., on a charge of insulting words, the appeal being dismissed.

A WIDOW'S CLAIM.

HIGH COURT APPEAL.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The High Court of Australia delivered judgment on the appeal from an order made by Mr. Justice Hood in a matter in which Mrs. Elizabeth Marcella Greenway, widow of Edmund Joseph Greenway, was appellant, and Hugh Victor M'Kay, of Sunshine, was respondent.

Edmund Joseph Greenway was killed while working at M'Kay's Harvester Works in September, 1909. The widow desired to claim damages from M'Kay for the loss of her husband, but it is provided under the Employers' Liability Act that such an action must be brought within 12 months of the happening of the accident. Within a few days of the expiration of 12 months application was made to Mr. Justice Hood for a limited grant of letters of administration to the widow, to enable her to bring the action against M'Kay. Mr. Justice Hood made the grant, but on an undertaking that Mrs. Greenway upon the issue of a writ for damages should notify M'Kay that he might move to have the order for grant of letters of administration set aside. The writ was issued on September 23 last year, and on the same day M'Kay obtained an order from Mr. Justice Hood revoking his order for the grant of letters of administration. Mrs. Greenway appealed against this decision to the High Court.

The Court unanimously upheld the appeal. The Court said that Mr. Justice Hood in the special circumstances made a proper order for grant of letters of administration, but his decision revoking that order was erroneous. Mr. M'Kay was an absolute stranger in the matter, he not being in any way interested in the estate of Greenway, and therefore the Court held there had not been any valid revocation of the grant of letters of administration. The order of Mr. Justice Hood revoking the grant was set aside, and the order granting letters of administration was restored, the costs of all the proceedings being ordered to be paid by M'Kay.

SHEARERS' CLAIM.

HIS HONOR'S POWERS.

AGREEMENT TO BE FRAMED BY HIM.

An application for an award to apply to the shearing industry in Australia, with the exception of Western Australia, was again before Mr. Justice Higgins in the Federal Arbitration Court yesterday. The case is that of the Australian Workers' Union against the Pastoral Federal Council of Australia. The claimant union represents 48,000 men.

Mr. Duffy, K.C. (of Victoria), and Dr. Brissenden, instructed by Mr. A. C. Roberts, appeared for the claimants, the Australian Workers' Union; Mr. A. J. Kelynack, instructed by Messrs. J. E. Fitzgerald and Power, of Brisbane, for the Pastoralists' Association of Victoria and the Pastoralists' Union of Southern Riverina; Mr. A. Kelynack and Mr. H. Jaques, instructed by Messrs. Stephen, Jaques, and Stephen, for the Pastoralists' Union of New South Wales; Mr. Fees, K.C. (of Brisbane), and Mr. Kelynack, instructed by Messrs. Fitzgerald and Power, for the United Pastoralists' Association of Queensland, the Pastoralists' Association of South Australia, and the Pastoralists' Association of West Darling.

His Honor asked if the parties had come to any agreement as to whether the conditions of the agreement to be signed by each employer and employee should be conditions of the award, and that breaches of the agreement should be breaches of the award. He thought that the claimants had taken up a rather unreasonable position in tying his hands so that he could not deal with conditions which were outside the claim.

Mr. Duffy intimated that he was willing that all the conditions, except that governing the test as to when sheep were wet by the Richardson and Gillespie wet wool determinator, should be dealt with by his Honor.

His Honor: The claimants say practically that all the conditions should be conditions of the award, and the respondents say practically that these conditions, with certain changes, should be conditions of the award. There is no issue taken that the conditions should not be in the award.

Mr. Duffy did not think that was the view the pastoralists took. He thought they said, "We will have none of your conditions, but we will mark out some of them which we do not contradict, and we mark some which we will alter, and add certain new ones, and these conditions ought to be conditions both of the award and the agreement."

His Honor: I think I am bound by the pleadings as they stand. If there was a dispute as to what should be in the agreement I would be free to say what should be in the agreement. It is the basis of the whole thing.

Mr. Duffy: It is quite unnecessary to look at what was the dispute, because there was a distinct admission on the pleadings that there was a dispute.

His Honor: I must find the limits of it. I cannot bind the respondents to the admission that there is a dispute as to the agreement, unless by consent, and I am not going to assume consent where it has not been fully granted. I never thought, when both parties were leaving to me such questions as wages and so forth that the question whether wet sheep shall be determined by one system or another could not be left to me also. In the Merchants' Service Guild case I found I could make no award, and I was going to dismiss it unless both sides left it to me to settle the agreement as an agreement, and, although they have millions of pounds invested in the great shipping industry of Australia, they left it to me, and my hands were absolutely free. They have been working under the agreement since, and, as far as I know, happily. But here I am tied up, and I cannot frame an award with free hands upon the subject under discussion.

After this intimation from the Bench, counsel for the claimants consulted with their clients. After a few minutes they returned into court.

Mr. Duffy announced that the shearers were willing that there should be an unconditional amendment.

His Honor: I am very glad to hear it. Otherwise I would have been led to draw a conclusion I should not have liked to draw. Both sides then leave it to the Court to say what conditions of the agreement shall be conditions of the award, and both sides admit that in fact there was a dispute as to what should be the provisions of the agreement to be signed?

Counsel: Yes.

His Honor: I am very glad to hear it.

Mr. Kelynack: It is still subject to the reservation as to station hands.

His Honor: The admission does not apply to station hands.

Evidence was proceeded with.

A question arose as to the position of contractors under the proposed award.

His Honor said that he could only settle the agreement as between the station-owner and the shearer, because it was only the station owners who were the respondents.

Dr. Brissenden: We are entitled to have the award extended in the way in which it was extended by the old award, that no member should permit any contractor to do anything contrary to the award.

His Honor: That the owner is responsible for the contractor's action?

Mr. Fees: Not exactly that.

The case stands part heard.

SMUGGLING OPIUM.

AN ARTISAN SENT TO GAOL.

James Ashby, who was temporarily employed on the steamer Empire, then lying at the E. and A. Company's wharf, Circular Quay, was charged at the Water Police Court yesterday, with having imported certain prohibited imports, namely six tins of opium suitable for smoking. The evidence for the prosecution was to the effect that defendant on Saturday morning was seen by a Customs Officer leaving the steamer Empire. He was stopped and searched, and one tin of opium was found in his pocket, two tins in his shirt, and three tins of opium in a bag of tools he was carrying. Defendant was an employee of Mort's Dock Engineering Company, and was temporarily engaged upon the Empire effecting some repairs. When asked defendant refused to give the name of the person from whom he got the drug, which was worth £25. Customs Inspector Donohue said that the authorities had great difficulty in dealing with the illegal importation of opium, and he asked for a heavy penalty. Accused, who pleaded guilty, said that he could not account for the possession of the opium, and that the tins in his bag must have been placed there by some Chinaman, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment with hard labour.

POLICE COURTS.

STATION HAND'S EXPERIENCE.

ALLEGED THEFT IN A DWELLING.

Charles Debonnair, 22, was charged at the Water Police Court yesterday, before Mr. King, S.M., with having, on June 1, in the dwelling house of Robert Dolman, at 114 Upper Fort-street, stolen £6 in money, a watch and leather ..., and a razor, valued in all at £6 15s, the property of Leo. William Thomas Ayres. The evidence of the prosecutor was to the effect that he was a station hand recently from Hay, and on arrival in Sydney met accused, with whom he had several drinks. At the time he had £6 in his pocket, beside the watch, guard, and razor. Accused accompanied him to his rooms, where he (prosecutor) fell asleep. When he awoke he found his money and property had disappeared. Evidence was also given by an acquaintance of the accused named Rust, that when accused was leaving Sydney he told Rust that in the fireplace of the room which he had occupied was a parcel which he (Rust) could do with as he liked. The parcel contained the stolen articles minus the money. Accused, who reserved his defence, was committed for trial.

KITCHENMAN'S LOVE FOR LITERATURE.

Before Mr. J. L. King, S.M., yesterday, at the Water Police Court, George Martin, 42, was charged with stealing two books, valued at 10s, the property of the trustees of the Public Library. It was stated by an officer of the library that the two books, one of which was on criminal procedure, were exhibited for reference only, and no one had any authority to take them away. They were subsequently found in the possession of the accused, whose rooms had been searched by the police, when making inquiries with regard to another charge. Accused denied taking them from the library, and said that he found them in a room at the place in which he resided.

He was further charged with stealing two spoons, valued at 6s, the property of Hart's Ltd. It appeared from the evidence that accused was employed at Hart's restaurant as a kitchenman, and in consequence of the loss of several articles information was given to the police. As suspicion rested on accused, the rooms he occupied were searched, and among his belongings the spoons were found. Accused said that he, while employed at the restaurant, was in the habit of keeping the spoons for his own use, and that when he left he must have retained possession of them by mistake.

On both charges accused was convicted, but was remanded for sentence to the following morning to enable the police to make further inquiries concerning him.

DON'T NEGLECT
A COMMON CASE OF PILES. IT MAY LEAD TO SERIOUS RESULTS.

Mr. Geo. Risby, grocery store, corner Hunter and O'Connell streets, Parramatta, says:—"For some considerable time I suffered from itching and protruding piles. Day and night I got no ease. I could not sleep for the pain and irritation, and during the day I was worn out for want of sleep. I was tortured with this ailment, and I used so many remedies without getting relief that I thought I would never get better. However, I had the good fortune to get Doan's Ointment, and this was the beginning of the end of my torture. The first application gave me ease, and two pots cured me absolutely and completely. I let some time go by before writing you, to be quite sure my cure was permanent. It is now six months since I used Doan's Ointment, and I am still well; so can safely say Doan's Ointment has cured me of itching and protruding piles."

Two years later, Mrs. Risby says:—"My husband has had no return of the Piles. We are very grateful to Doan's Ointment for his cure."

Doan's Ointment is sold by all chemists and storekeepers at 2/9 per pot, or will be posted on receipt of price, by Foster-McClellan Co., 76 Pitt-street, Sydney.

But, be sure you get DOAN'S.—Advt.

IT IS SIMPLE WISDOM

We find in the axiom that prevention is better than cure; yet how many give it practical attention. This negligence of so clear a truth is as common as it is amazing. "For want of a nail the shoe is lost; for want of a shoe the horse is lost; for want of a horse the rider is lost." Does not the Spanish proverb drive the nail home? For want of a dose of Beecham's Pills serious illness may overtake you. What is to-day merely a symptom, suffered as temporary a cause of irritation—an unpleasantness—a low-spirited condition—may, if neglected, result in complications requiring much attention, time, and money to set right. Would it not be far better at the first hint of anything wrong with the digestion—with any ailments arising from disorder of the stomach, liver, bowels, or kidneys—and be wise in time? When you feel headachy, bilious, dyspeptic, run-down, and not up to the mark, why not set about the cure at once? Do not wait until the trouble grows great—until it looks like developing into something serious—until your vitality is lowered and your energies largely impaired. See to it at once. Preserve your health. Take Beecham's Pills.

TO TAKE

He will also place a pound of butter in the same chamber. He will roast the meat, and will not melt the butter, which will be two hours in the stove. In fact, one part of the stove is a roasting chamber, and the other part is a butter cooler. In the name of common-sense come and see this wonderful test, and after seeing it you can then make a bee-line in a hurry and buy an English gas stove before they are all gone. If all the rings on an English gas stove were alight they would have no more effect on the interior of the stove than a mustard blister would have on a wooden leg.

CHEAP FRUIT.

The statement made last week by a section of the fruit trade that it was quite a mistake to imagine that fruit was dear in Sydney is not likely to carry much weight. This is a domestic matter upon which the majority of people are well able to form their own opinion from painful experience. It does not require any particular expert knowledge apart from the necessary knowledge of "having to make ends meet," which is the daily experience of the majority. And the opinion formed in the minds of most people is undoubtedly that fruit is dear in Sydney, far dearer than it should be in a country such as this. Those who have the opportunity of going further into the matter and learning the results of fruitgrowing will likewise be satisfied that there is something radically wrong somewhere in the present system of fruit distribution. While a limited number of fruitgrowers certainly do obtain good prices on the whole for their produce, this is not generally the case, and growers are kept continually to the grindstone. Without going any further than the Cumberland district, a great disparity will be found between the price paid by the public, even in the so-called cheap shops referred to at the above meeting, and that received by the grower for the bulk of his fruit. It is true that a few cases will realise prices more in harmony, but the bulk of the consignments comes down to absurdly low figures, and someone is evidently getting a big profit, as far as the growers are concerned. The average grower has to pay the agent just as much commission on this low-priced fruit as on his high-priced cases, and is also continually suffering loss from the no-return of his cases, which circumstances bring down net returns severely. Knowledge of existing conditions emphasises the necessity of some other system than that prevailing being adopted if the small growers at least are to have a chance of making a decent living.

Apart from the very important matter of the general public being supplied with fruit at a reasonable price, the matter is an important one from an agricultural standpoint. It is a matter of common comment that many of the citrus orchards, for instance, in the neighbourhood of Sydney should be kept in a much better condition. The ground could be better worked, the trees kept in a healthier state, and more attention paid on modern lines generally to the industry. The slovenly methods are at times made an argument against the grower not receiving better prices, on the ground that he should produce better fruit. There is some confusion of cause and effect in this point. While better results could often be obtained by better methods, it has to be remembered that the grower is handicapped very often by the miserable prices he obtains. Slovenly or careless methods are not always due to ignorance by any means. Better methods in most cases mean expenditure, and it is the matter of expense that causes the trouble when returns are poor. There are orchardists in the Cumberland district who are doing the best they can, but painfully aware that more should be done if it was possible. But that means labour and material, both of which cost money, and the money seems to get into other hands to far too great a degree. Speaking to the writer recently, such a grower said that to obtain full results he should employ two men permanently. As it was, he could not afford to do any such thing. One man occasionally and his own work had to keep things going. After fourteen years he was going back, finding it difficult to renew his trees and keep his orchard in anything like proper condition. In fact, he could not. There was a great deal that wanted doing if the money was available to do it. Consequently his fruit was only of medium quality. But—and this is the point that has to be remembered—for that fruit he was obtaining a price that was cruelly low compared with what the public is paying for the same class of fruit in the suburbs of Sydney. While that is the case, it is futile preaching the practice of better methods to such growers, and in the interests of agriculture, of better farming, and better handling of our resources, it is imperative that the fruit industry should be placed on a more satisfactory basis from the standpoint of the consumer and producer, whose interests are of far more importance than those of the trade.

It is to be hoped therefore that the conference of fruitgrowers to consider some means of remedying the present position, that the Lord Mayor suggests holding, will be productive of good results. The subject is a live one, and there should not be any great difficulty in surmounting the troubles that now oppress both the consumer and producer. The fruitgrowers in the main appear to be thoroughly in favour of a change to other methods of marketing the fruit locally, and should be able to furnish the Lord Mayor with some definite working details founded on practical experience, which the energy and acumen of that gentleman would make the most of. He will certainly earn the goodwill of the citizens of Sydney if he is responsible for an alleviation of present conditions, and will also effect a much-needed reform from the growers' standpoint.

ITEMS.

An experiment with seven varieties of clover is being carried out by the Department of Agriculture on Mr. W. Harris's farm at West Dapto. This should prove of considerable interest to farmers on the South Coast.

LONDON WOOL TRADE.

OPENING OF THE MAY SERIES.

PRICES GENERALLY IN SELLERS' FAVOUR.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, May 12.

The event of the week has been the opening of the May series of London sales, and all things considered a satisfactory start has been made. The usual large contingent of buyers filled the Wool Exchange last Tuesday; in fact, there was hardly standing room, due to the presence of an extraordinary number of buyers home from Australia, including also several colonial squatters and representatives of the wool trade of the Commonwealth. The selection on the opening day was only of an average character, but for all that there was a brisk sitting; and, while prices were not in the majority of cases quotably dearer, competition was keen and well sustained throughout the entire sale. Results altogether did not come up to general expectations. I am saying that very advisedly, simply because we seem to have reached a rather critical time, consuming centres both in England and on the Continent looking on at the moment with more than ordinary interest and concern. The sharp recovery in prices since March has made many people sceptical, and knowing that a large number have bought big quantities of tops and yarns somewhat speculatively—that is, having covered their prospective requirements for many months to come—they are naturally concerned about London supporting and seconding their recent actions. However, I am satisfied that the opening was creditable, and infinitely better than if prices had bounded forward, as they did in March. No doubt the question is open for two opinions, but at the present juncture more good will be done if values remain firm at to-day's level than if they are carried materially higher. The present temper of Coleman-street is certainly against sensibly higher rates; in fact, nobody wants them.

MERINOS AGAINST THE BUYER.

The show of merinos this week has been on the whole fairly good. The home trade is very strongly in evidence, and as usual they are the leading factors of the series. Neither France nor Germany is operating so far on the same scale as at last series. Both say that they are not hungry for supplies; trade with them is nothing near so healthy as it is in Yorkshire, and they do not like having to pay more money. However, two or three Continental firms are well to the front, and buying on a moderate scale, though the weight of wool so far taken is distinctly below what it was the first week last series. Prices were generally ½d more on good average topmaking sorts, but neither superior merinos nor faulty sorts were dearer than last series. Wools that were selling between 11½d and 12d in March are to-day commanding ½d more; but anything from 8d to 10½d are no dearer, though there is keen competition for the entire lot. I cannot see scoured merinos any higher, and neither faulty pieces, bellies, or locks are fetching more money. However, there seems to be about the market a general state of healthiness which is very commendable. The most noteworthy feature so far this series is the general competition of the home trade, and nothing sticks, though the advance is somewhat limited. I cannot see good 64's tops costing less than 2s 3½d to 2s 4d, though Bradford buyers are valuing on ½d less basis. America has done nothing, and it is significant that last Thursday we had about 20 lots of superior merinos and comebacks which had been sent back from New York to be re-offered in Coleman-street. These were bought in Melbourne and Geelong towards the end of 1909, consequently they will mean a sensible loss to the owners. We are having each day some fair quantities of speculators' lots submitted, and on the whole they are selling well. There is general confidence felt in the position of merinos.

CROSSBREDS SLIGHTLY DEARER.

There has been a fairly good show of crossbreds, and again Bradford buyers have been well to the front. The opening was considered satisfactory, fine half-breds and medium crossbreds being generally quoted par to ½d dearer, with coarse descriptions (36's to 40's) also ½d higher. I think to-day it is generally recognised that the two former qualities are firm at last sale's rates, it being the latter which can only be called ½d higher. There is a big weight crossbred wool selling at 8½d to 9½d according to the condition of the lots. New Zealand pastoralists do not show a great deal of enthusiasm in preparing their clips for market, particularly the little men, there being too little skirting, the result being that due allow[ance] has to be made when buyers are valuing. Competition is keen for all descriptions of crossbreds, but so far America has done nothing, and up to Thursday night I don't remember seeing more than two lots realise over 13d. So far as the character of the wools is concerned, although those offered last series were certainly better, still Bradford buyers are all operating on a very liberal scale, and they are therefore occupying a fairly sound position. Neither France nor Germany is rendering much aid to this section, and in that respect competition is rather disappointing. At the same time there is a fairly confident feeling expressed over the future. Some seem a little dubious, but Bradford seems quite prepared to take the wool, though there is not any feverish excitement, there being no disposition on the part of any one section of the trade to exceed their limits. The market is steady, wool sells freely, and few withdrawals take place.

TASMANIAN WOOLS.

This week we have had the first show of Tasmanian wools this season, and as usual they stood out in strong contrast last Wednesday to the general average of Australian merinos. These wools must be called a speciality, and it is a pity that Tasmania does not produce 50 per cent. more of the fine-haired merinos, which are undoubtedly a growing scarcity. Here we have excellence of quality, a nice staple, soundness of fibre and spinning property in a maximum order. These wools are taken by those who must have a superior article, and it is noteworthy that practically all went to the home trade. Those making specialties in woollens were the principal buyers, the top lots mostly going to a well-known Huddersfield firm. We are getting nowadays a more mixed lot of wool from Tasmania than was the case a dozen years ago, and, while finding no fault with pastoralists, still it does seem a pity that there should be such a departure from old methods and the universal adoption of the crossbred. There will always be a keen demand for merinos after the order of Tasmanian, and it is to be sincerely hoped that those producing these excellent wools will never sacrifice the characteristics of their flocks, which have taken a lifetime to make, and which are so much appreciated by the trade. Where crossbred sheep are kept there is not the classing of the fleeces which one could desire, and, seemingly, with such good prices forthcoming for comebacks and lower qualities, sheep farmers are satisfied to go on in the same careless way. Below I show what well-known clips have sold for this week, compared with a year ago, when they were last offered:—

KEEN DEMAND FOR SLIPED CROSSBREDS.

Sliped crossbreds from New Zealand are meeting with a very keen inquiry, and, taking things on a whole, the advance is as pronounced as in any section of the market. There is a strong demand for wools of carding length, and also blanket manufacturers are particularly keen on strong Lincoln clothing lots, these oftentimes being ½d to 1d dearer than last series. Business is evidently very good for these classes, and as far as one can see the quantity of slipes to come forward will be no more than the trade can comfortably lift. The home trade is giving the most support, and consumption is large.

BRADFORD'S RESPONSE TO LONDON.

Thursday's market in Bradford brought out nothing new, and the response to Coleman-street was somewhat disappointing. The advance had not been emphatic enough for the majority, and little business was done. Somehow I have an impression that no matter how London goes, users at this end have bought quite as much as they are going to do. Sixty-fours tops have been sold this week in fair weights, as low as 2/3 and 2/3¼, notwithstanding London's firmness. It is really surprising how topmakers can afford to accept such prices, and they must have either cheaper wool by way of imports, or they are resorting to a fair use of skin wool. So far as crossbreds are concerned, there is no change to report. Topmakers on the whole are firm, but there is not a great deal of new business changing hands. The most satisfactory feature continues to be a full maintenance of consumption, and tops are going out fairly freely. Business is good at the spinning end, although not many new contracts are at present offering.

BUTTER EXPORT TRADE.

ENORMOUS EXPANSION.

RECORD QUANTITY FOR STORAGE.

MATTER OF SHIPPING FACILITIES.

LONDON, May 13.

The imports of Australian butter from July 1, 1910, to April 30, 1911, and comparative figures, were:—

	1910-11.	1909-10.	1908-9.
New South Wales, cwts.	201,210	156,563	109,161
Victoria, cwts.	362,094	249,359	123,112
Queensland, cwts.	116,092	83,444	45,745
South Australia, cwts.	30,678	14,055	9,000
Totals	706,009	504,230	288,717

These figures for the present season, as compared with those for any previous one since the Australian butter trade was inaugurated, show an enormous expansion, and the magnitude of the shipping must, of course, have prepared the Commonwealth factories and merchants for the possibility of a serious slump in Australian butter prices in May. Since October 1 last about 1,488,000 boxes from Australia have arrived, the weekly import is about 70,000, shipments are still being briskly made, there are about 300,000 boxes afloat, and in store here and unsold at wharf and on floor there may be another 100,000.

The weather has turned very warm, and local production in Europe may now be expected. Irish, Siberian, and French butters are on the market, and are beginning to drive Australian out of the field. Danish butter is now quoted in English markets at 111/ to 113/, Irish creamery is 106/ to 108/, dairy 84/ to 94/. New Zealand butter: Holders want 106/ to 108/; bidders offer 104/ to 105/, and sales are being made at 104/ to 106/. Australian butter: Choicest salted sells up to 106/, unsalted 98/ to 106/, "dead fancy" grades, and the proportion of such goods in the shipments is not more than 10 per cent. There is Victorian butter, inferior, selling from 88/ to 94/.

With the advent of May Australian butter weakened, with a sensible decline in the market price. The fresh grass butters coming along have a touch of sweetness that cannot be emulated by frozen butter, however good it may be, and boxed butters always hang fire a bit under these circumstances. Especially is this the case this season, with the abnormally heavy imports. I have given the factors in the situation, as they strike me, of the Australian butter trade, and I think the prospects for the next few months, during which Australian butter is likely to arrive, suggest a period of stagnation, the outcome of a lack of demand. But can importers afford to hold? The financial aspect, which is such an important phase of the wool market in periods of marked depression, is beginning to assert itself in the butter trade. The mass of butter will be too great to be held, and merchants say that it will have to be "let go for what it will fetch." The big Tooley-street houses have commitments in Continental butter, and they cannot afford to let their capital be idle in stored "colonial." Last week saw the first severe check to Australian butter; the arrivals did not clear, and from then onwards a goodly proportion of the weekly imports will either have to be put away or slaughtered. In the street they talk of a carry-over of 250,000 boxes till next season, but such talk is, of course, wild, for no one can advance any detailed statements reasonably. One can only expect that a record quantity will be stored for the autumn, for it will be difficult, if not impossible, to sell boxed butter in June.

Mould still appears in New South Wales butter, and the impression is becoming fixed that factories in the State are using an inferior kind of parchment. I am informed that careful examination shows that, where this mould has appeared, the butter is clean and the wood shows no signs of sap; so it is difficult to resist the conclusion that the paper is the offender.

Importers have been remarking upon the fact that Queensland butters ex Cufic and Suffolk were not up to the ordinary Queensland standard; the butter was said to be rather "rank."

The apple season sadly disorganises the butter trade. About April 1 the first mail steamer arrives here with apples, and from that time onwards butter is shut out heavily. The 50,000 butter box steamers bring alone only about 12,000 or so, the balance having to be despatched by the outside boats, arriving irregularly. The regular arrival of the weekly mailship is a boon to the trade, and much of the success which has attended the Australian butter business is owed to the fact that large buyers know that, on a certain day every week, Australian butter is placed on the market. Just at the time when this break occurs, April 7, and when, consequently, buyers cannot depend upon getting their favourite brands, the Continental butters begin to be pushed here. The result is that there is much risk of these regular customers of "colonial" being forced on to other descriptions at this early period. The idea held here is that, if the mail boats are comparatively rendered useless for the butter trade, some special inducement should be offered to the outside lines to accelerate their services.

MEAT EXPORT TRADE.

LONDON MARKET DISAPPOINTING.

LONDON, May 12.

Market rates for frozen meat are very disappointing, and, compared with 1910, show a very heavy decrease: Australasian and South American meat about ¼d a lb all round. Importers of mutton and lamb from all quarters are close on a million carcases increase for the first four months of the year. South America's contribution to this increase amounts to 396,050 carcases. Then a weakening tendency was the fact that at the beginning of the year there were rather large stocks on hand, and, again, the New Zealand people refused to accept reasonable prices at the opening of the season, say, March 1, entertaining the notion that prices would be on the 1911 level. The points mentioned are the obvious causes for the severe fall which has taken place. The New Zealand lamb position, usually so bright and prosperous at this time of the year, has been and is still very flat and dull; Australian shippers of lamb may congratulate themselves upon the good prices which they secured for their shipments. New Zealand North Island lamb is quoted at /4 per lb, whereas the average top quotation for 1910 for Australian lamb was /4-16. New Zealand lamb this season has shown signs of want of quality, the result of the dry weather experienced in the Dominion. Although imports of Australian mutton and lamb have been light lately, there is a fair quantity in store. Australian mutton is about /3½, and lamb about /1 per lb above.

The Meat Trade Association has been engaged of late in prosecuting its claim upon the corporation regarding the irregular—likely illegal—plan adopted of refusing to hand over to owners the proceeds of condemned meat. The leading firms importing frozen meat have been awake to this arrant injustice for some time past, and the association has organised a plan of campaign. Conferences between the corporation and the association have been held, and I hear that it is exceedingly likely that this most reasonable claim on the part of the frozen meat trade will be admitted. The agitation for the simplification of the "marks" on Australian and New Zealand carcases, conducted by the association on behalf of the storekeepers and the shipowners—whose operations are much hampered by the great mass of letters and figures placed on the meat wrappers—has fallen through, owing to the passive opposition of the meat works in Australasia.

During the month of April the following meat sundries were imported from Australia and New Zealand into London and Liverpool:—17,096 legs, 2799 cts legs, 2616 haunches, 353 cts joints, 117 cts loins, and 5905 cts shoulders mutton; 100 sides, 40 cases bacon; 2 cases hams; 3028 boxes kidneys; 126 crates sweetbreads; 532 carcases 864 qrs and 106 sides veal, 222 boxes meat extract, 9335 cases meat, 178 boxes hearts, 56 boxes tails, 87 cts ducklings, 171 sides pork, 144 boxes ox cheeks, 2700 cases preserved rabbits, 709 bags tripe, 401 crates tongues, 6 cases livers, 576 boxes boned beef, 7 casks rabbits in tallow, and 1295 boxes sundries.

COUNTRY POLITICAL PARTY.

At the last meeting of the Hay branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association Mr. M'Arthur, an ex-member of the executive, said, in his opinion, the time had arrived when a moderate party in politics was absolutely necessary—a country party, not so conservative as the present Liberal party or so socialistic as the present Labour party. The branch delegate was instructed to support a resolution sent by the Carrathool branch,—"That the metropolitan branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association, together with the executive, form a political committee, and to meet at least fortnightly."

NOXIOUS WEEDS.

ALBURY.—At a meeting to-day of the Hume Shire Council to consider the best method of dealing with a number of noxious plants which are making headway in some parts of the district, a lengthy discussion ensued. It was finally decided that individual action on the part of one local body would be unavailing, and it was resolved to invite all shire and municipal councils between the Murray and Murrumbidgee, and all Victorian councils on the border, to send delegates to a conference at Albury in September, with a view to deciding upon a common line of action.

INSPECTION OF DAIRIES.

WAGGA.—The existing system of the administration of the regulations of the Dairies Supervision Act came in for considerable adverse criticism at a meeting of the Wagga branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association, presided over by the president, Mr. T. Strout. There was a large attendance of members, including a proportion of dairymen and those who had been dairymen, but had since given up the business on account of the difficulty they had in complying with the regulations as administered.

On the motion of Mr. E. Crouch, it was decided a resolution be submitted for consideration at the forthcoming annual conference that the police be relieved of the administration of the Dairies Supervision Act, and that in their place properly qualified inspectors be appointed.

DAIRYING.

PARKES.—During May the Parkes Dairy Company manufactured 6652lb of butter, for which suppliers were paid at the rate of 8½d per lb net, the total amount distributed being £251. The cream supply is decreasing owing to the wintry conditions, and the whole output of the factory is being sold locally.

WOLLONGONG.—The question of the hour amongst the dairy farmers of the district is the probability of milk supplies being stopped on account of the low prices at present ruling for that commodity. At this period of the year the task of the farmer in keeping up the standard and supply of milk is difficult, on account of the scarcity of feed for stock and the coldness of the weather, all of which militate against the quantity and quality of the article. Opinions on the point of the prices paid by various companies are divided. That several of the suppliers, particularly in the southern end of the district, have entered into contracts to supply a certain company for a stipulated term is viewed with alarm by other suppliers. Prominent unionist farmers assert that the time is ripe, on account of the diversity of opinion amongst suppliers, for the milk association to step in and bring them all together, so that when the price is fixed by the executive each company will have no alternative other than to pay the price demanded, which would be on a fair and equitable basis. The fact appears to be generally recognised that it would be unreasonable to expect one or two of the distributing companies who were not participants in the contract system to pay a higher price than those who, by virtue of their contracts with the suppliers, can undersell them all the time. In this end of the district the dairy farmers are emphatic in their intention to pull off the milk unless they get 9d per gallon. What turn events will take within the next few days is difficult to at present say, but it is probable that a strike will take place.

Mr. F. M'Caffrey, secretary of the Illawarra Dairy Cattle Association, has been requested by a representative of the Government of the Dominion of New Zealand to secure illustrations, enlarged if possible, of the best types of the Illawarra breed of dairy cattle.

During the week several farmers on the South Coast installed milking machines. The scarcity of labour, and the inefficiency in many cases of that procurable, will no doubt in the near future have the effect of causing many others to instal machines.

Additions are about to be made to the premises of the Central Co-operative Creamery at Albion Park. This has been rendered necessary on account of the increased supply of both cream and milk for pasteurisation. The turnover of the company is in excess of that for previous seasons. Over 5500 gallons of pasteurised milk are daily put through the factory for city consumption.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

BLACKTOWN.—Prevailing westerly winds have largely increased the number of windfall oranges. Fortunately the fruit is not very ripe, otherwise the damage would have been fourfold. So far very few mandarins are blown down. Although in the second week of June the exceptional growth of grasses have saved farmers from opening their haystacks and silos about half of the fodder crops have only been used so far. The spread of waxy scale appears more pronounced in partly-cleared lands and on headlands than in the bush which has not been thinned by the timber-getters.

BLAYNEY.—The weather for the past month has been much more severe than for many years. There were 17 wet days, including snow, which on Sunday night fell heavily, but was followed on Sunday by a gradually increasing gale, which decreased next morning. It was the roughest spell of weather known here for many years. Rabbiting and potato-digging were paralysed for a week. There are still huge quantities of splendid potatoes waiting to be dug. Every fine day sees diggers hard at work. Unfortunately, soft weather has made the roads in some places almost impassable. Early-sown crops are looking well. The weather has been extremely rough on stock, but losses are few, though condition has been knocked off all classes of stock.

CANOWINDRA.—Good rains have fallen in the district, and early-sown crops are growing well. A good area has still to be sown.

DELEGATE.—During the past few weeks we have had some very cold weather, with snow and rain. Stock are in good condition, and able to stand the cold snap. Winter prospects are good, as the grass continued growing until quite recently. There is no shortage of feed.

DAPTO.—The cold westerly winds experienced during the last week have had a serious effect upon the pastures in this district, which are brown and dry. Green feed has disappeared, and dairy farmers are feeding their stock on planter, of which fortunately there is abundance. A large quantity of silage has been stored in this district, but so far farmers have not found it necessary to fall back on conserved fodder to any great extent. The supply of milk is steadily decreasing, the production being small, unless in the case of newly-calved cows. Rain is needed to give the young oat crops a start.

GLEN INNES.—The Red Range Farmers and Settlers' Association has voted £5 towards assisting the executive in fighting the claims of the Rural Workers' Union.

KEMPSEY.—Mr. John Perry addressed a meeting of farmers on Saturday on behalf of the Farmers and Settlers' Society. He has also addressed meetings at other centres, where branches were formed. Mr. Sheppard, representing the newly-formed Dairymen's Union on the South Coast, also addressed the meeting, with a view to forming a branch on the Macleay. So far no branch has been formed.

LISMORE.—The absence of rain is being felt, particularly by dairymen. The crops of winter feed is at a standstill. The frosts during the week cut down the late-planted crops.

PARKES.—Mr. R. T. Job, of Kamandra, shot an exceptionally large dingo on Wednesday evening. The animal measured six feet from tip to tip, and had been responsible for considerable damage among the flocks in the neighbourhood. Hitherto, however, he had successfully eluded all attempts at capture.

SINGLETON.—The Government Guernsey bull Royal Rose has been leased by Messrs. Bowman Bros., of Archerfield, for six months. Two Jersey bulls are on the way out from England for Mr. G. H. Greene, of Fordwich, who is also importing two Shire stallions and three Shire mares.

TEMORA.—Messrs. D. J. Cavanagh and V. Pike, of Sebastopol, have been chosen as delegates to the annual conference of farmers and settlers in Sydney next month.

WEST WYALONG.—The demand for farming and grazing properties in the Wyalong district is strong. Sales are of weekly occurrence, some of the properties having been sold and resold within a few weeks at large profits. Areas that were in the market at less than £1 per acre three years ago have been sold recently at £3. The purchasers are mostly Victorians, some of whom express surprise at the high quality of the land in this district and the low prices by comparison with land of similar quality and with a lower rainfall where they previously resided.

WERRIS CREEK.—Cold westerly gales have prevailed here since the first of the month, but no needful rain has fallen since March. The wheat areas need an immediate downpour.

PROPERTY SALE.

GUNNING.—Bureong Estate, about 3000 or 3500 acres, the property of Mr. J. D. Hill, has changed hands, Messrs. D. and J. Leahy being the purchasers.

WHAT FRESH AIR MEANS.

At the Town Hall yesterday afternoon an interesting lecture, entitled "New Air for Old," was given by Dr. F. S. W. Zlotkowski, under the auspices of the Health Society of New South Wales. The lecture was the first of a fortnightly course of addresses to be given during the winter. Mrs. W. A. Holman presided, and briefly introduced the speaker. Dr. Zlotkowski, in his opening remarks, pointed out the great strides that had been made in modern times in the matter of the introduction of the doctrine of fresh air for the treatment of all diseases, especially lung complaints; the more open they kept the doors and windows of their dwellings the less chance there was of disease. In order to combat disease they required to have abundance of air and sunlight in their homes, and to enforce cleanliness in every possible way. Parents should have no fear in submitting children to risk of cold from open doors and windows. Custom died hard, but it was gratifying to see that the Educational Department was issuing instructions in regard to open-air treatment, as well as constructing open-air schools. The lecturer referred to the Government Post Office as being woefully deficient of all facilities for providing ventilation, the conditions reigning there being startling and pathetic, and it was a wonder that the employees put up with it. A similar complaint was found with the telephone boxes, the stench from which was beyond words.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the lecturer.

STORAGE OF EXPLOSIVES.

NEW REGULATIONS.

A deputation waited upon the Acting Treasurer (Mr. Carmichael) some time ago in regard to the storage of explosives, and certain recommendations were later forwarded to the Railway Department, with a view to their being carried out, as far as that department is concerned. The same was done in regard to the Public Works Department, these two being the principal departments of the Government dealing with explosives.

The Acting Treasurer, as Minister for Railways, has now received a communication from the Chief Railway Commissioner, stating that he has given instructions that the suggested regulations in regard to the future use and storage of explosives should be carried out. The following were the suggestions sent on to the Chief Commissioner, and on which the new regulations have been based:—

1. That all explosives, except such quantities as are necessary for immediate use, be kept in magazine or receptacle constructed, situated, and licensed under the provisions of the Explosives Act.
2. That detonators be not kept in the same magazine or receptacle with other explosives on any pretence whatever.
3. That the operation of fitting fuses be carried out at least 25 yards from any magazine or receptacle containing other explosives.
4. That the ingredients of rackarock be kept in a store entirely separated from a magazine or receptacle containing explosives.

Referring to the recent sale of the historic residence of the late Mr. W. B. Dalley at Vaucluse, Miss Grace Hendy-Pooley writes that it was not Captain Dumaresq, but his brother, Lieut.-Col. Henry Dumaresq, who was brother-in-law to Governor Darling. The two Dumaresqs belonged to the Royal Veteran Corps, and came out to Australia with their corps shortly after each other. Another Dumaresq settled in Tasmania, where he died. Lieut.-Col. Dumaresq died at Port Stephens in 1838, and Captain W. Dumaresq died at Moreton Bay, Queensland, in 1868.

COAL VEND CASE.

A TELEGRAM TO PETER BOWLING.

YESTERDAY'S EVIDENCE.

The prosecution in connection with the coal vend—29th day—was continued before Mr. Justice Isaacs, in the High Court yesterday.

John Parry, Comptroller of Stores, N.S.W. Railways, was cross-examined by Mr. Knox, K.C. (for colliery proprietors).

Witness stated that the prices paid by the Commissioners for coal were 20s 6d in 1902-3, 19s 6d in 1903-4, 17s in 1904-5, and 15s 2d in 1905-6.

In their purchases of coal, do the Commissioners buy from the southern and western mines, as well as from Newcastle, for places other than Broken Hill?—Yes.

Do they make their purchases from north, south, and west?—Yes.

I suppose it would be correct to say that the Railway Commissioners go to four sources for their supplies of coal?—Yes.

How much southern coal do the Commissioners take in a year for locomotive purposes, 200,000 tons?—More than that. The total quantity of coal for the whole of the lines for last year was 654,577 tons.

The Sydney depot at Eveleigh is supplied from southern coal?—Yes.

And the bulk of the southern coal they get from the Metropolitan colliery at Helensburgh?—Yes.

What is the charge made by the Commissioners for carrying Metropolitan coal for shipment in Sydney?—1s 11d per ton.

And for local consumption?—2s 8d.

In 1908-9, what were the prices paid to the Metropolitan colliery for coal?

Mr. Wise objected that the question was irrelevant. They were concerned with the Newcastle coals.

Mr. Knox pressed the question. The evidence would be of importance later on. It was idle for the Crown to say that the public was prevented from getting steam coal below a certain price, because the Railway Commissioners were using southern coal, which was apparently quite good enough. The Crown could not say that 11s was an unreasonable price for Newcastle coal when coal of similar or less all-round value was being sold for as much or more.

His Honor overruled the objection, but noted it.

Witness said that the prices paid by the Commissioners for Metropolitan coal on their own trucks at the pit's mouth were 7s 9d in 1901-2, 7s 9d in 1902-3, 7s 9d in 1903-4, 7s 9d in 1904-5, 7s 6d in 1905-6, 7s 6d in 1906-7, 7s 6d in 1907-8, 9s in 1908-9, 8s 9d in 1909-10, and 8s 9d in 1910-11.

Mr. Knox: And the amount of coal supplied under these contracts with the Metropolitan Company was over 105,000 tons a year?—Yes; over 120,000 tons.

In 1901-2, did you have a contract with the Dudley colliery for Newcastle coal supplied at the pit's mouth on Government trucks?—Yes.

What were the prices?—In 1901-2 8s 5d, in 1902-3 8s 6d, in 1903-4 8s 6d, and in 1904-5, 7s 6d. In 1905-6 there was no contract. The quantities in each case were from about 20,000 to 30,000 tons a year.

Witness stated that the Commissioners had also got coal from a northern colliery known as Shortland, but in small quantities. In 1903-4 they paid 7s 10d, in 1904-5 7s 8d, in 1905-6 6s 6d, in 1908-9 8s 5d, in 1909-10 8s 5d. They got coal from Sneddon's in 1903-4, under contract, and paid 9s. In 1908-9 they paid 10s, but not under fixed contract. In 1909-10 they paid 9s 8d, and in 1910-11 9s 10s.

Witness, replying to Mr. Mitchell, K.C. (for shipping companies), said that Metropolitan coal was more suitable for tramway purposes at Broken Hill, because it gave off less smoke than Newcastle coal.

Harry Maurice Moore, who was a member of Kethel and Co., and subsequently became a member of Kethel and Co., Ltd., referred to a conversation at the Australian Club in 1906, between Messrs. Learmonth, Forsyth, A. R. Kent, Alexander Kethel, and himself. Mr. Learmonth said that he understood Kethel and Co. wished to join the associated collieries of the northern district. Witness answered that his firm did. Asked by Mr. Learmonth as to the amount of coal Kethel and Co. would require, witness replied about 100,000 tons for each colliery. Mr. Learmonth said that the association would consider the matter, and intimated that he thought he could get Kethel and Co. into the association on an allotment of 50,000 tons for each colliery. He also referred to certain benefits which Kethel and Co. would enjoy by being in the association; for instance, that in the event of a strike at either of Kethel and Co.'s collieries, its contracts for coal would be supplied from the other collieries in the association. Correspondence followed on the subject of prices for coal, but Kethel and Co. did not join the association.

Replying to Mr. Knox, witness stated that A. Kethel and Co., the Young Wallsend Co., and the Ebbw Main Co., constituted A. Kethel and Co., Ltd., and they took over the business and the assets of A. Kethel and Co. but not its liabilities. The liabilities were about £500 or £600 at the outside.

Mr. Knox: Wasn't a considerable sum of money owing for coal to the Pacific Company?—A small sum may have been owing for coal purchased about the time of the amalgamation.

Wasn't there a liability, which had been in existence since 1906?—No.

Wasn't your company indebted to the Pacific Company on a contract?—No.

Didn't the Pacific Company in January, 1908, demand payment of £679?—I believe they did.

Wasn't it unpaid for just on 12 months?—I don't think so.

Didn't the Pacific Company, in March, 1909, threaten to issue a writ for the balance unpaid?—I believe they did.

Did they issue a writ?—Yes; I believe they did.

Wasn't the matter compromised by the partners giving some individual promissory notes?—I can explain that. Kethel and Co. bought certain quantities of coal under ordinary contract conditions in 1909. The Pacific Company sued for breach of contract, claiming £1050 damages. That must be what you refer to.

And the matter was compromised by promissory notes, as I suggested?—Yes.

Did the damages include money unpaid for coal supplied?—No.

Witness further stated that he got a telephone message from his company's office at Newcastle the Friday before the strike, asking him what supplies were in his depots. The message urged him to advise the Miners' Federation, and he sent a wire to Peter Bowling, saying: "Stocks low." Before that he had taken steps on his own behalf to buy coal, anticipating a strike.

From a person named Waller?—No.

Have you a brother-in-law named Waller?—Yes.

He was an attendant at Callan Park Hospital, wasn't he?—Yes.

Did you have negotiations with Waller to buy coal before the strike?—None whatever. I did have a conversation with him six months before the strike.

After the strike began, did you instruct Mr. F. G. Clarke, solicitor, to write to Warburton and Sons?—I did.

Mr. Knox produced a letter addressed to Warburton and Sons referring to a contract with Captain Henry Waller, dated November 3, 1909, for the sale of a cargo of Newcastle coal, and containing the phrase: "I am instructed by Mr. H. M. Moore to inform you that he has purchased the coal, and to inform you that he requires delivery within 48 hours."

Witness, further cross-examined, said that he received a telegram from Mr. Cant on the Saturday of the strike, saying: "Strike inevitable now."

When Waller bought the coal the price was 15s 6d per ton f.o.b., wasn't it?—Yes.

And immediately after the strike the price of coal rose with a jump?—Yes.

Were not you selling coal yourself up to £2 a ton and over?—Yes.

Up to £3 per ton?—Yes.

And you paid Waller nothing for his contract?—No.

Did you suggest to Waller that he should buy this coal?—I told him some six weeks before the strike I thought a strike was going to take place, and that it would be a good investment to buy coal.

How long after the beginning of the strike on Monday, November 8, did you make the agreement with Waller?—Two or three days.

Witness, in an explanation, said that Warburton, who was selling Vend coal, was very bitter against Kethel and Co., and all the business about the Waller transaction was made to appear wrong, or illegal. Mr. Simpson, who was acting in the capacity of solicitor to those companies interested in the Vend, made the case appear as black as he possibly could against Kethel and Co., because at that time he was largely interested in those coal companies.

His Honor: I don't see the connection.

Mr. Knox: When you sent that telegram, "Stocks low," on November 15, what interest did you think that would have for the Colliery Employees' Federation?—I didn't think very much about it.

You didn't realise, I suppose, that the probable success of the strike depended upon catching stocks low?—No; I didn't.

Do you say seriously that you didn't realise it was of importance to the people striking to catch stocks low?—I cannot think what I thought at that time. This may have occurred to me or may not.

Before you sent that telegram, didn't you see Bowling?—About 12 months before.

But not recently?—I may have.

Don't you remember?—No.

Surely you remember that?—No, I don't. I only met Peter Bowling prior to the strike once in my life.

When?—At the time of the strike at Young Wallsend, at the beginning of the year.

Did you realise when you sent that telegram there was going to be a strike?—Yes.

Did you have some negotiations with Scott Fell for a large quantity of coal before the strike?—Yes.

For about 25,000 tons?—Yes.

When were those negotiations?—Saturday, November 6.

The news of the strike was not published till Sunday or Monday, was it?—Yes; in the Saturday afternoon papers.

At what time did you see Scott Fell?—In the morning.

Did you suggest the purchase to Fell, or did he suggest it to you?—I think I suggested it to him.

Where did this interview take place?—At his office.

At that time he was carrying on business in his wife's name, being bankrupt himself, wasn't he?—Under the name of Scott Fell and Co.

He was the manager?—Yes.

He was to enter on this contract for you and Cant and himself?—I think so.

And what did you get out of it?—About £650.

Did Cant get a similar sum?—Yes.

That was through buying coal before the strike cheap and selling it dear during the strike?—No.

Then how?—We sold our rights in the contract to Scott Fell.

Mr. Campbell, K.C. (for J. and A. Brown): Didn't Bowling and Brennan (Miners' Federation) call on you the day before you saw Scott Fell, with Kethel, in the adjoining room?—No.

Do you swear that?—I swear it absolutely.

The Court shortly after adjourned till to-day.

TASMANIAN ELECTION.

RESULT OF THE SECOND COUNT.

HOBART, Monday.

The election for Wilmot to fill the vacancy in the Assembly caused by the retirement of Mr. Hope, M.P., was held last week. Three candidates, all Liberals, stood. Messrs. Ingledew and Hays were adopted by the Liberal League. The third candidate, Norman Cameron, who was once a member of the House of Representatives, refused to sign the membership of the Liberal League, but sent a subscription.

On the first count the figures were:—Cameron, 1843; Hays, 1338; Ingledew, 1155. The votes given to Ingledew were then cut up, and the second count resulted:—Hays, 2365; Cameron, 2364; majority for Hays, 204. Under the old system of counting Cameron would have been elected.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In common with most of those I have met during the last few days, I feel astonished that any Ministry in this State could, after this year expires, contemplate the idea of depriving his Majesty's principal representative in the Commonwealth of a vice-regal residence in the mother State. As the question is one above party, I join with others in asking the State Ministry to reconsider the attitude they are taking up. Allow me to remind them that, prior to the appointment of our first Governor-General (Earl Hopetoun, afterwards Marquis of Linlithgow), this State's Ministry opened negotiations with the sister States to supplement the £10,000 a year salary mentioned in the Constitution by a further £10,000 a year, and offered to contribute its quota—say, £4000 a year—to make the salary £20,000 a year, in addition to the rent-free use of our historic and beautiful Government House and grounds. The other States did not see their way to co-operate, so the matter ended. If we now, as a State, decline to renew the lease of Government House after this year we shall practically be less generously inclined by something like £8000 a year (valuing the residence at £4000 a year) than we were ten or eleven years ago, when the population of this State was considerably less than it is now.

Those of use who have represented New South Wales in the Commonwealth Parliament for years, and who, through thick and thin, have consistently fought for the constitutional rights of this State for the Federal capital and territory, have been twitted over and over again with being provincialists. We know that that was an unfounded aspersion, but now that we have gained our rights on that question, what will be thought of this State if it acts in the mean manner contemplated? What! Victoria to give the rent-free use of a magnificent vice-regal residence, and practically a rent-free use of its grand Parliament House and Parliamentary Library, and the mother and more populous State to give nothing! I cannot doubt that if a referendum were taken on the question what the answer would be! Imagine such a thing as the Scottish nation desiring to make money out of HolyroodPalace because the King scarcely ever spends more than a night there now and again! Surely there is such a thing as sentiment in cases of this kind. Government House here, with its historic associations, should not be allowed to be treated otherwise than as a vice-regal residence, and although the people of New South Wales as yet can scarcely compare the historic interest attached to this Government House as equal to that attached to Holyrood by the Scots, possibly, nay probably, their descendants a hundred years hence will do so. In this connection it is enlightening to notice the action of our American cousins in the way they keep up Mount Vernon, on the Potomac River, the residence of George Washington. On this subject, when the Governor-General is not in residence, doubtless arrangements might be made, as in the case of Holyrood, to let the public visit Government House on certain days in each week, under necessary supervision. Having recently visited Ceylon, I noticed that the Governor there has vice-regal residences in Colombo, Kandy, and Nuwara Eliya; but apparently some people think that the Governor-General of Australia should only have one residence, and that in Melbourne, until another Government House has been built in Yass-Canberra, possibly not for six years, or even longer!

I am, etc.,

June 12. J. T. WALKER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I see the very wise proposal to resume Government House and grounds for the use of the people has been met with an outcry by a small section of the community. It seems a just thing that what the people pay taxes to keep up they should have the free use of. What is to prevent the Governor-General still living there or occupying some of the rooms, while the rest is thrown open to the public? If wished, a small admission might be charged, and swings, merry-go-rounds, etc., erected for the use of the children. No doubt, some of our Governor's aides-de-camp would be glad to join in the fun, and as they have very little at present to do with their time they would be relieving many an anxious mother who has to watch over her children. Cranbrook, too, the home of our State Governor, should be thrown open. Why should such a fine view of the harbour be denied to the people who own it? Many families would be glad to picnic there, and if garbage boxes were provided, I feel sure very little harm would be done to the grounds. Our Governor and his lady would, no doubt, be glad at any time to welcome the people in their home. This is a free country, and as we pay for the privilege of a Governor, I for one feel sure he would be only too willing to repay his debt of gratitude to us, and sever once and for all that class prejudice which is so sadly still amongst us.

I am, etc., A WORKER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Years ago when this was a struggling colony and money and meanness were less plentiful than they are in the present day, a loyal and far-seeing people foresaw the necessity and the great importance of building for future generations and for all time a befitting residence for Royalty and its representatives, so, ungrudgingly, their money was spent on our historical Government House and grounds, which have been the pride of the people for half a century. As one of the public, speaking with the voice of the majority, the suggested mutilation is a monstrous vandalism. We have more than sufficient parks already to loaf in. They are not, as a rule, patronised by bona-fide workmen, who prefer spending their holidays anywhere but in the places provided by a generous Government. If these fell designs of degenerating our vice-regal grounds into a loafers' resort are carried out, it will not benefit the respectable public, seeing it will be hardly safe for them to be there after dark. The money it will cost could be spent to more advantage beautifying the present Parliament House, and adding a wing for superfluous books. What are our Acting Premier and his colleagues about? Is it possible that they cannot realise that they are trampling on the dignity of the mother State, humiliating New South Wales, and reducing Sydney to the level of a third-rate provincial town, and heaping indignities on the Governor-General? It is to be hoped some of them will come to their senses and recover the respect of the people by saving the situation.

I am, etc., ONE OF THE PUBLIC.

I wonder what this world would be like Without Woods' Famous Peppermint Cure?
All things would be amiss very soon,
And the sick would go dead, I'm sure.
There'd be coughs and colds on every hand,
Loud wailings and aches and cries;
Oh! if the supply should ever cease,
The world would get a surprise.—Advt.

THE MAWSON EXPEDITION.

It is to be hoped that there will be a representative gathering at the meeting in the Town Hall this afternoon to further the objects of the Mawson expedition. Dr. Mawson, in conjunction with Sir Ernest Shackleton, has received encouraging support for his project in England, of which our cables have kept us informed. Very liberal response has been received, not only from notable Australians in London, but also from men like Mr. W. A. Horn, who are eminently good judges of exploration work. The expedition has, in fact, a sound scientific backing, as well as an amount of popular support, which removes the undertaking from the sphere of conjecture, and Dr. Mawson is to be congratulated on the impression that he has made. He has purchased a little whaler, and apparently completed the preliminaries requisite for an early start. It remains for Australia to show her appreciation of so much enterprise, and the meeting of this afternoon will probably show that appreciation in a practical form by inaugurating a fund which we imagine will not lack public support. This is essentially an Australian expedition, and we owe it to ourselves to assist so far as we can in making it a success. Owing to the presence of Professor David, the Shackleton expedition proved a great advertisement for Australian science, and it was an advertisement that was much needed, few people being aware of the solid, if unpretentious, work done in this direction. Dr. Mawson represents the younger generation of Australian scientists, and with the colleagues who accompany him he will doubtless prove a worthy representative in that sense, while of his intrepidity and resource there can be no question.

As to the value of Antarctic exploration there is no need to speak here at any length, or to anticipate the expert opinions that will be expressed this afternoon. It is sufficient to admit that, while Pole-hunting is in itself a rather fruitless undertaking, Antarctic research of the more scientific kind has an enormous and enormously interesting field for its labour. It is understood that this is fully realised by Dr. Mawson, who will be out for tangible results rather than for the glory attaching to dramatic episodes or striking successes. Our special interest in Antarctica hardly needs pointing out. We occupy the nearest important continental area, and our climate is largely conditioned by Antarctic disturbances. From the point of view of meteorology alone the proposed expedition is well worth while. The geology of Antarctica is also of special interest to us, inasmuch as land connections therewith existing in earlier geologic periods probably go far to account for our peculiar fauna and flora. The Mawson expedition has been very carefully planned, and it should succeed in throwing much light on these matters. In addition, the element of novelty will not be lacking, as Lieutenant Watkins is to pilot an aeroplane, which will be largely employed, it is hoped, for mapping and surveying, and with which a dash to the Pole may be practicable if the ferocious blizzards encountered by Sir Ernest Shackleton do not prevail. The Pole, however, is a minor matter even if it is not previously annexed by Captain Scott or one of the other expeditions now in progress. What we are asked to do is to contribute to the progress of knowledge, and we must not let it be said that we have been asked in vain.

A NEW UNIVERSITY.

The expectation of Western Australia that a university will be established in that State within a few months has interest. It has its chief interest, perhaps, in its witness to a desire in that rapidly developing Australian territory for the culture which a university represents, and the lack of which in a community is by no means to be compensated for by material advancement, however remarkable. At its present stage the movement is supported by a guarantee from the Government for a substantial subsidy, and by the private endowment of a Chair of Agriculture. It is well set, therefore, upon the way of small things, which, of necessity, is all it can expect for some time to come. Doubtless the Western Australian scheme has been energised by the successful inauguration of a university in Queensland, in respect of which the enterprise which has set the matter afoot deserves the credit that is increasingly due to the western State as a progressive and ambitious centre of Australian life. And a university in establishment there will at least have the advantage, as in Queensland, of providing the higher education for those desiring it at their own doors, so to speak. At present any such desire by Western Australian students can only be realised by their sojourn at one or other of the universities of the eastern States, as, for years, and until recently, Queensland students were constrained to attendance at the seats of learning set up in the southern cities.

But while conceding that advantage, it remains the responsibility of those engaged in such a scheme in a State only just emerging from its infancy to see to it that the disadvantages of beginning so early are minimised. There are disadvantages, undoubtedly—the disadvantage, for example, of primitive equipment and housing, of limited teaching staff, of the absence, in short, of all that significance of establishment which time and experience and results alone can give a university. But a State so set upon justifying itself as to propose its own university is not likely to be seriously perturbed by difficulties of detail. And, at least, its ambitions have a worthy and a wide field. There is for one thing the advantage of beginning with all the experience of the older universities for guidance. It is no small thing. It should induce the Western Australian fathers of the scheme to make of their University a practical expression of education in its bearing upon the problems at its hand. The endowment of a Chair of Agriculture suggests that that objective is well in view as a necessity of a State which is directing unbounded effort towards agricultural development. Doubtless, also, the claims of science will have due regard in a place for which science in some of its aspects has done so much. Arts, in the university sense of the term, have not only a foundation claim in any university scheme, but also a claim in any scheme of culture. For the rest, facility of access for students is as much the initial warrant of a modern university as is a wise policy of government, that is neither too loosely conceived nor so closely corporated as to impose cramping restrictions upon an institution born that it may grow. Having these qualifications in its service, and others like them, the coming of the Western Australian University will be welcomed by all Australians who value culture and hope much of it.

THE NEEDS OF NEWCASTLE.

The visit of the Acting Chief Secretary to Newcastle serves to bring the powers of Government into closer touch with a district which in many respects has scarcely had the consideration in respect of its proper development that its importance demands. Mr. Flowers is surprised to find that the people of Newcastle and suburbs have so long put up with a condition of things that, to say the least of it, is unwholesomely antique. The multiplication of slaughter yards within unpleasant and odoriferous proximity to almost every residential quarter is only a sample of the disabilities under which the inhabitants have suffered for many years. In the matter of sanitation the city of Newcastle itself has only comparatively recently been brought up to date; whilst the suburbs are still patiently waiting the extension of the system that shall do away with evils that have not been tolerated in fifth-rate American townships for years past. The want of co-ordination in such public utilities as the fire brigades is a further symptom of an unhealthy condition of things, for which the only remedy is a Greater Newcastle scheme that will confer such powers as shall enable the citizens to deal effectively with the important business of modernising their city. There are other matters that need taking in hand and vigorously prosecuting to a satisfactory conclusion. The visitor to the second city of New South Wales is smitten with astonishment that there is only one road out into the suburbs, and although the local topography was largely responsible for this single artery between the river and the hill, yet for long years there does not seem to have been any great effort to overcome the manifest disadvantages of the situation. There can be no doubt that distribution of coal lands amongst private owners has been largely responsible for the concentrating of the traffic in the single street connecting the country and the coast; but what has been possible by way of improvement in Sydney through the extended powers of the municipal council is possible in Newcastle, and relief is to be found in that direction.

With an increasing population, and the opening up of mineral fields in the northern district, the port of Newcastle must have a great future, and in view of that future it is imperative that every power necessary to the improvement of the city should be vested in the local authorities, and that they should be encouraged in every way possible to legislate for the health and happiness of the citizens. Whatever steps may be taken in the future to open up shipping facilities along the coast, Newcastle has such a powerful and commanding position in that, and many other respects, as to make any attempt at real competition absurd for many decades to come. In any case, it is the commercial centre of a large population, and an increasingly prosperous district, and therefore should be able to command all the amenities of modern civic life, and to present in its provision for the comfort and convenience of its people all the features of an up-to-date city.

TREE-PLANTING PRISONERS.

The results of a decade of experience of the prison camp system in New Zealand, as recorded by the Rev. J. L. A. Kayll in our columns to-day, afford interesting reading. This clergyman, who is the visiting adviser to the Prisons Department of the Dominion, reports that the system works well in practice, that the discipline preserved in the camps on the whole is good, and that there has been but one escape during the period that the system has been in vogue. Our informant admits, however, that New Zealand is peculiarly well situated, in so far as there are many localities in which camps can be maintained from which escape is practically impossible, or at any rate in which recapture is easy. Tree-planting is the occupation which those selected for camp life have to follow, and naturally this is more agreeable to prisoners than being cooped up within dingy prison walls. Great care is taken in the selection of those who are to become tree-planters, such as have received terms of incarceration for the graver offences being rigidly excluded. That the work performed will have a permanently beneficial effect in New Zealand is assured from the fact that no less than 23 millions of trees have been planted in this way.

As to the feasibility of the introduction of some such system into Australia, the subject has to be regarded from two very different view-points. First, there is the public at large to be considered. It would be neither pleasant nor possibly safe to have gangs of convicts spread over the land who might possibly escape and do no end of damage before recapture, if, indeed, they were ever again brought within the grip of the law. Australia is less favourably situated than is New Zealand in having fewer secluded spots that would lend themselves to such an experiment as that under consideration. It may be that this is an unnecessarily alarmist view, and that attempted escapes would be as rare here as they have been beyond the Tasman Sea. Or it may be that effective means could be taken to render escape virtually impossible. Certainly nothing should be done to prejudice the safety of law-abiding inhabitants. The other point of view is the probable effect of such a system upon the prisoners themselves. Doubtless this would be beneficial. It, at least, would segregate those most amenable to discipline, and would give them healthier surroundings and a greater interest in life than they are under present conditions permitted to enjoy. This is good as far as it goes. The tree-planting, too, would yield good results to the community, which is another point in favour of the system, and there can be no denying the fact that afforestation has much to commend it in these States. On the other hand, tree-planting is not an occupation for which there is any demand outside, and therefore the prisoner is not learning anything particularly valuable to him when he leaves the State's care. It might be better perhaps had some other occupation been selected that would enable the prisoner when free to earn an honest livelihood, and so give him a chance of completing the process of reformation which the tree-planting scheme begins. These experiments in penology are, however, instructive, and the more knowledge that can be gained on this subject the better.

The Week in London.—Our special correspondent in London, writing on May 12 (page 4), makes mention of the success of Mr. M'Gowen's first speech in England, on an occasion when the other Australians showed rather poorly. Contrarywise, Sir George Reid enhanced even his reputation as an after-dinner speaker at the supper to Mr. H. B. Irving. Sir John Downer's faux pas at the Royal Colonial Institute, of which we had some mention by cable, is described.

To-day's Parliament.—The Legislative Assembly meets at 2.30 this afternoon, private members' business occupying the attention of the House for the first part of the sitting. On the notice paper are over a dozen questions to be replied to by Ministers, with printed answers. The Government business for the evening covers over a dozen second readings in the name of the Acting Premier, including the District Courts Bill, the Inebriates Bill, the Gaming and Betting Bill, Dentists' Bill, Medical Practitioners' Bill, Criminal Appeal Bill, Defamation Bill, and the Jury Bill.

The State's Credit.—The Acting Treasurer stated yesterday that the local sale of stock keeps up in an unusual degree, and that so far as could be foreseen at present there would be no need to trouble the London market during the remainder of the current year, at any rate. "A remarkable feature in regard to our stock," said Mr. Carmichael, "is the fact that we receive so many applications from the other States. All the other State Treasurers are exploiting their local markets, some offering inducements we do not, and yet applications come in freely to the New South Wales Treasury from all these States, especially Queensland and Victoria. We have had upwards of 400 applications for various amounts, some of them for heavy sums, from residents in the other States, since January last. I look at this as a very satisfactory state of affairs, as showing the high esteem in which our stock is held by investors throughout the Commonwealth. It may not be generally known that about one-third of our total indebtedness is now held by local investors on our Sydney register."

The Immigrants' Dilemma.—A Hobart telegram yesterday stated that about a score of immigrants for New South Wales who landed at Hobart by the R.M.S. Athenic had been stranded at that port last week on account of their money having been sent to Sydney, and no steamer, as they believed would be the case, was waiting to take them on. Mr. Holman said yesterday:—"I desire to emphasise the point that the immigrants concerned are not State-assisted immigrants. At the same time I recognise that such a misadventure is calculated to injure the prestige of Australia as a destination for immigrants, and I am cabling to the Agent-General to interview the firm concerned and to express the Government's views. Thanks to the generosity of the Tasmanian Government, the difficulty had been coped with before we had any opportunity of acting. But I can't help thinking that there is something wrong when a body of men are brought out and left stranded, as these men were, at one of the wayside ports. I prefer to withhold any comment on that point, however, until I have some explanation before me."

Federal Control of Lighthouses.—The Federal Government has an expert engaged to inspect the lighthouses of the coasts of the Commonwealth. It is probable that this work will take about 12 months, as it not only includes reporting on existing lights, but on those that are considered necessary in other places. It is probable that the bill to take them over will be submitted in the Federal Parliament before the report is received, and that the transfer will take place next year. The State Government has Mr. Hughes's assurance that matters are to be pushed on with this object. It was pointed out to the Acting Treasurer (Mr. Carmichael) yesterday that the question of the adequate lighting of the coast had come into prominence lately. Mr. Carmichael stated that the lighthouses are kept reasonably up to date. "If there had been any complaints they would certainly have been seen to," he added.

Workmen's Dwellings.—The Acting Treasurer anticipates introducing in Parliament next week his bill to provide for the State undertaking the construction of workmen's dwellings. At present the State has no power to put up buildings other than for public purposes.

King Edward VII.—Our special London correspondent, writing on May 12, says that Mr. Alfred Drury has finished the bust of King Edward VII., which he has executed for the trustees of the National Art Gallery in Sydney. The portrait is based upon photographs of the late King and upon sketches of him made by Mr. Drury on various occasions, such as the Royal Academy banquets, when the sculptor had an opportunity of observing King Edward closely. There is considerably more character left in the face than is often the case with busts of royalty. The fact that most photographs of Royal persons are very elaborately touched up makes a difficulty for sculptors, but in this case Mr. Drury has worked from untouched photographs, and the result is a great gain to the portrait. The fact that Mr. Drury has carved a portrait of King George from life has also been a great help, as a great many characteristics of the head are alike in most members of a family. The marble block from which this statue is carved is a particularly perfect one.

An International Congress.—The President of the United States was authorised by Congress in 1909 to invite the International Congress on Applied Chemistry to hold its eighth meeting in the United States in the year 1912. An invitation was accordingly conveyed by Mr. Whitelaw Reid to the seventh session of the congress held in London in 1909, and was unanimously accepted. The Imperial Government has now been officially invited by the United States Government to participate in the eighth convocation, which is fixed to take place in Washington and New York in September, 1912, and the Secretary of State for the Colonies has inquired whether New South Wales proposes to be represented. While, of course, particular branches of the subject of the conference are of interest to several of the public departments, the Acting Premier has come to the conclusion that it is not necessary for New South Wales to send a delegate to the congress. The Government of Victoria has also decided not to be represented.

Naval Court-martial.—At a court-martial, held on board H.M.S. Powerful yesterday, an A.B., named Ernest Gerrard, pleaded guilty to striking his superior officer, and was sentenced to six months' detention.

Out of the Routine.—Witnesses who are unaccustomed to the routine of the courts occasionally afford amusement by their want of knowledge as to the method of giving evidence. In some instances they appear so anxious to get through the ordeal of examination that they are prepared to kiss the Bible without waiting for the formal administration of the oath. Others, again, exhibit a trepidation born of inexperience, while another class give their testimony with confidence and alertness, indicative of an absence of "nerves." Yesterday a witness in one of the courts appeared to enjoy his position, and his coolness so impressed his counsel that the learned gentleman asked him to tell what took place in his own way. The witness briskly stepped to the front of the box, and got as far as "Gentlemen of the jury," when a ripple of merriment pulled him up, and the Judge explained to him the proper course to pursue.

Zealandia Wireless Records.—The Huddart, Parker liner Zealandia, at present running under the royal mail flag of the Canadian-Australian Company, made many wireless communications with her Marconi apparatus while on her latest trip to and from Vancouver. On the outward journey she "spoke" Honolulu station up to a distance of 1100 miles, and at the same time was in touch with Cape Flattery, on the Canadian coast, thus bridging a distance of 2200 miles. On the return journey communication was established with Honolulu at 1300 miles, and Sydney was "picked up" at 1093 miles. The Sheffield choir sent messages to the Sydney papers on the 6th inst. when the vessel was 1093 miles off. The Zealandia also held communication with the Adelaide Company's steamer Grantala, which was recently equipped with a Marconi standard ship set.

A Land of Tyranny.—There can be no doubt of the nature of the sentiments of a large body of city and suburban shopkeepers held at the Haymarket last night to protest against the Saturday Half-holiday Act in regard to both the capabilities and aspirations of Parliamentary and municipal legislators. It was stated that the Statute Book simply bristled with useless measures, and was disfigured by the most arbitrary and iniquitous laws. "Parliament is not the only offender," said Mr. George D. Turner, president of the Shopkeepers' Defence Association, "but we have the Sydney Council also tending towards reaction. A short time ago the Council issued an order that all signboards were to be taken down from the metropolitan shops. We fought the Council in the law courts, and ultimately the unjust order was withdrawn. It is quite obvious that business men have now to absolutely fight for their liberty. Last Sunday I was at North Sydney, and tried to buy a box of matches, but I could not. Did you ever hear of such an idiotic absurdity? It is something tyrannical. There is not another country in the world where they have such an amount of restrictive legislation as we have in Australia. Such measures are forced on us simply because in the past we have had no means of redress. But if we stand together we will show Parliament that we will not any longer stand any interference with our rights, principles, and liberty. The public life of this country is full of petty-minded people, and by allowing them to dominate Australia we shall deteriorate as a nation. Stand together, and we will fight the Minister and the Labour party. We will show Parliament that the Saturday Half-holiday Act is an injustice, and we will demand a referendum on the question."

The Nimrod Sold.—The auxiliary steamer Nimrod, owned by Sir Ernest Shackleton, C.V.O., and used by him for his Antarctic expedition of 1908-1909, has been sold in England to a British firm, and will now be used for commercial purposes. This vessel, which is 334 tons gross, was built at Dundee in 1866 as a whaler. She was offered by auction in December last, and withdrawn at £2975, the reserve price having been fixed at £3000.

Late Clearances of Postal Pillars.—The Postmaster-General (Mr. Thomas) is spending several days in the department in Sydney inquiring into numerous administrative matters. One question he has under consideration, that of cutting off some of the late clearances of the postal pillar boxes in the suburbs, as it has been found that after 10 or 11 o'clock they are made little use of. The matter is being fully investigated, in order to see if the department will be justified in bringing in an alteration of the hours.

At the Exchange.—A commissioner from the Chamber of Commerce recently visited the central and city telephone exchanges, and watched proceedings for three hours on a busy afternoon. The conclusions arrived at when he left with a violent headache were that the subscribers are largely to blame for the troubles and delays, to say nothing of faulty apparatus and lines. He advises that all subscribers should read the special instructions in the telephone book. He was surprised at the number who made their calls in the wrong manner, and caused much waste of time. One he noticed coolly said he had been waiting half an hour, when he was answered in 30 seconds. The attendants he found were subject to a great deal of irritating ringing in the ear by the subscribers, "though apparently they are used to it." On the "city" position he counted 14 lamps that glowed almost simultaneously. On an occasion such as that some of the calls were passed to other telephonists by the monitor. "Telephonists are supposed to have no nerves or feelings while on duty," was remarked.

Hard to Place.—An incident occurred in the Commonwealth Arbitration Court yesterday during the hearing of the shearing case which recalled "The Travelling Post-office," where the address of the old man's son who had left the farm was given as "care of Conroy's sheep along the Castlereagh." A shearer was put into the witness-box, and counsel for the employees began to examine him. Witness was asked the formal question by Dr. Brissenden, "Where do you live?" "As a matter of fact," was the rather remarkable answer, "I don't live anywhere except in Australasia." "Well, what part of it do you pervade most?" asked counsel. "I am likely to be anywhere between the Flinders and the south of New Zealand," was the reply that drew from counsel on the opposite side the smiling observation to his learned friend, "You cannot get at it." "Well, where have you shorn?" continued Dr. Brissenden, making a last desperate effort to elucidate the matter. "No more in any district than in any other district," was the enigmatic reply that created roars of laughter in court. After that the question as to where this veritable will-o'-the-wisp could be said to be "at home" for the purpose of officially giving him an address was not further pursued.

Hospital Medical Staffs.—A minute was issued some time ago by the Acting Chief Secretary (Mr. Flowers) to the subsidised hospitals, in which it was notified that in the allocation of the grants regard would be paid to whether the honorary medical staff was open to all local practitioners of good repute. This did not altogether meet with the views of some of those concerned, objection being taken that it was against the discretionary powers that should obtain in the matter. The Acting Chief Secretary said yesterday that the hospitals generally were conforming to the rule. Applications had been made for exemption in the case of Parramatta and Newcastle.

Rookwood to Bankstown Railway.—The Tramway Construction Advisory Board will, on Friday, inspect the route of the proposed Rookwood to Bankstown tramway. This was referred to by the Minister for Works as an excellent proposal, likely to open up cheap residential sites, where a man could get half an acre of land. "It could be run in connection with the train service," said the chairman of the board, Mr. Flowers, yesterday. "The matter, however, is resolving itself into considerations as to whether a railway would not serve the district better. There is a big contract to be let at Potts Hill, and they will want cement, timber, and other freightage. There are also a number of brickworks in the vicinity. If the place grew, a special service direct to Sydney could be given."

Indecent Literature.—A circular letter was recently addressed by the Acting Commonwealth Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) to each of the State Premiers, suggesting that uniform and effective action might be taken by the Governments concerned to make punishable the display or sale of indecent and immoral literature. The Acting Premier (Mr. Holman), who called for a report in the matter from the Inspector-General of Police, has replied to Mr. Hughes to the effect that existing legislation contains ample power to deal with the exhibition and sale of indecent publications in this State, and that the law in this regard is, moreover, being rigidly enforced.

The Hansom and the Taxi.—The old grievance of the hansom-cab drivers against the taxi-cab was revived yesterday by an application to the Acting Chief Secretary (Mr. Flowers) to have the mechanical conveyance placed in the same ranks as the others, and taking its turn with them. Mr. Flowers, however, did not see his way to upset the decision of the Chief Secretary (who had had the same request put to him), in view of the fact that Mr. Macdonell is likely to be back at work before long.

PERSONAL.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Linlithgow arrived in Melbourne yesterday by the R.M.S. Marmora. During their stay in Victoria they will be the guests of the Governor and Lady Fuller. Lord Linlithgow was met at the steamer and welcomed by Captain Curwen, A.D.C., on behalf of the Governor. A welcome was also extended by the Lord Mayor, Councillor Davey, and Mrs. Davey. They intend to return home via Canada.

The Chief Railway Commissioner, Mr. T. R. Johnson, is now engaged on a tour of the Western lines, accompanied by the Superintendent of Lines, the Engineer-in-Chief for Existing Lines, and the Chief Mechanical Engineer.

Mr. Isaac Himmelhoch, proprietor of the Grodno Wine Cellars, Pitt-street, died at his residence, Mona, Darling Point, yesterday, aged 72 years. He had resided in the State for 53 years. Deceased, who had been ailing only two or three days, leaves a widow and nine children.

Mr. George Garson, a member of the Victorian State Rivers and Water Supply Commission, died suddenly yesterday at his residence, at Heidelberg. He suffered from an affection of the heart. Mr. Garson, who was 50 years of age, leaves a widow.

Mr. Andrew Norrie, manager of the Commercial Bank, Perth, has been elected Western Australian chairman of the Associated Banks.

The will of the late Samuel Titus Webb, storekeeper, of Mount Gambier, South Australia, who died on April 21, has been sworn not to exceed £55,200. The estate is left to the family.

"SWEATING" JUDGES.

MR. JUSTICE HIGGINS' VIEWS.

NO SITTING IN VACATION.

The hearing of the claim of the Australian Workers' Union against the pastoralists of Australia, which has now occupied several weeks in the Commonwealth Arbitration Court, is likely to last as long again.

Mr. Justice Higgins stated yesterday that, as far as he could, he intended to adhere to the rules of Court, and that was not to sit during the Court vacation, commencing on June 24, but at the same time he had not bound himself to anything, and he would see how things developed. For instance, if he could find there was a stage at which he would like to read the evidence at his leisure, and afterwards settle something finally, he would like that. He was hopeful of finishing the case before vacation.

Counsel for the A.W.U. said there was no chance of the case finishing before June 24.

His Honor: My present intention is, if there is no strong reason to the contrary, to obey the rules of the Court. I think the Court will work better if it is not sweated.

AUSTRALIA'S NAVY.

SEAMEN'S HIGH PAY.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Members of the Naval Board are confident that they will be able to obtain an excellent class of men to make up the complement of the Australian fleet at the rates of pay offered. A comparison with Canadian rates shows that in Australia an A.B. will receive 4s per day, against 2/11 in Canada. The officers' pay is higher for all grades in Canada, the greatest disproportion being in the case of lieutenants, who commence at 12s per day in Australia, but receive 16s 8d a day in Canada. In the higher ranks the difference is less. The rate of pay for a seaman fixed for the Australian Navy is claimed to be the highest in the world.

TROUBLES OF SHOPKEEPERS

"AN INIQUITOUS LAW."

RETROGRESSION AND INSOLVENCY.

There was a large gathering of shopkeepers at Goatley's Hotel, Haymarket, last night, to protest against the Saturday Half-holiday Act, which is regarded as "an iniquitous measure, subversive to the best interests of business men, and an undue interference with the liberties of the people." Mr. George D. Turner, president of the Shopkeepers' Defence Association, occupied the chair.

The meeting was unanimous in opinion as to the urgent need for immediate action to bring pressure to bear on Parliament to restore the Saturday evening trade. It was clearly indicated by the tenor of the speeches that, should the request to abolish the Act be refused, indignation will find expression at the ballot-box at the next elections.

The chairman said that the association intended to fight the cause for all it was worth; but they intended to do it on business lines, in order to effect an assured success. Letters had been received from Bathurst, Newcastle, and other places promising support, while 15,000 signatures of people connected directly and indirectly with the markets of Sydney had been placed to a petition to prevent the further restriction of trade, and to remove the existing incubus by the erasure of the Saturday Half-holiday Act from the statute book. It was intended to fight the Minister who had control of this measure to the bitter end. Measure after measure of a restrictive and arbitrary nature had been introduced. The retrogression set in with the Early Closing Act; then came the Saturday Half-holiday Act, which took away a little more of the business men's liberty. Not satisfied with this, the Government had decided to interfere with the picture shows, and now there was the Post Office trouble, which prevented the sending of a wire after 6 o'clock. The restrictions, however, were most inconsistent. In Sydney the trams stopped during certain hours on Sunday, but at North Sydney they continued to run at all hours. On any fine Sunday thousands of people could be seen waiting about Circular Quay looking at each other. Referring to the inequalities existing in the administration of the Saturday Half-holiday Act, he said Wollongong had been exempt. It was an audacious thing that one place was to be handicapped and another set free. The Act was introduced manifestly for the benefit of the shop assistants, but in the case of Wollongong it was evident that they were to go by the board.

Mr. E. J. Murphy said that there had been more insolvencies since the Act came into force than ever before. The only people that benefited by the measure were the publicans. He was quite confident that fully 99 per cent. of the people sympathised with the association in its efforts.

Mr. Callan said that many of the recent laws had made criminals of respectable and innocent people. The country was being landed in a condition of chaos.

It was stated that the movement had the support of 62,000 people in Sydney and suburbs.

FEDERAL CAPITAL.

MORE TERRITORY WANTED.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. O'Malley) has made application to the Government of New South Wales for the absolute transfer to the Commonwealth of an area comprising the watershed of the Molonglo and Queanbeyan rivers. The Commonwealth already has water rights over this territory, acquired with a view of preventing any pollution of the streams; but Mr. O'Malley considers that the measure of control granted will be insufficient for the purpose. He therefore seeks to acquire sovereign rights over an area of 580 square miles, in addition to the 900 square miles already ceded by the State.

The survey of the boundary line is proceeding, but the progress made is apparently very slow, only about twelve miles of boundary having been accurately delineated in as many months. It is explained by the officers of the department that the survey involves much more than the mere settling of the boundary, as every property through which the line passes has to be completely surveyed, in order that the Commonwealth Government may know exactly what area of each private holding is within its territory, so that there may be no need of further surveys or dispute as to the areas when the Commonwealth desires to acquire the lands under the powers vested in it by the Seat of Government Act.

COMMONWEALTH AND STATE.

MR. FRAZER'S MISSION.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Consequent upon the interview in Sydney between the Acting Federal Treasurer, Mr. Frazer, and the Acting Treasurer of New South Wales, Mr. Carmichael, a tentative agreement has been reached as to the basis upon which the Commonwealth will settle its liabilities to the States in respect to transferred properties. The proposal will be submitted to Cabinet meetings of both Ministries this week, and probably the other States will be approached through Mr. Holman with a view of securing a uniform agreement.

Mr. Frazer also discussed with Mr. Carmichael the question of the Commonwealth liability in respect of invalids in the State institutions. In many cases it is doubtful whether these invalids would be eligible for an invalid pension under the Commonwealth Act, which requires "permanent incapacity" as a qualification for a pension. Mr. Frazer said to-day that many of these cases were temporarily unfit to work, and their admission to institutions should be regarded as hospital treatment, rather than the provision of a permanent refuge for the totally incapacitated. However, the States authorities sought for a more liberal interpretation of the Act than obtained at present, and he, Mr. Frazer, would look into the matter further, as well as into the cases of persons not naturalised, or who had not complied with the residence qualification for pension. No change is to be made in the present system of remuneration of State servants partially engaged in the Commonwealth.

ENCOURAGING LAND-SEEKERS.

STATEMENT BY MR. HUGHES.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Acting Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) said on Saturday that Mr. Watt had asked that the Commonwealth should approach the States, other than Victoria, with a view of securing united action in providing cheap excursion fares to land seekers. The matter had not advanced beyond the stage of suggestion so far as details were concerned. One proposal had been that the possession of £500 should be a necessary qualification. A refund of a portion of the passage money would be made up to those who took up land. Mr. Watt had not suggested a definite basis for the adjustment of the cost between the Governments concerned, although it had been mentioned that each State might be responsible for the passages of persons who elected to visit the particular State; and, again, that the States might provide the boats and the Commonwealth be responsible for the advertising. Mr. Elwood Mead was to prepare a memorandum for submission to the Department of External Affairs.

SHILLING CABLES.

DIFFICULTIES IN THE WAY.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Complexities which do not appear on the surface present themselves in connection with a proposal to institute a system of shilling cables to Montreal, Canada, to be despatched thence by post to England. A difficulty which is seen as soon as the matter is examined is that Montreal merchants will at once ask why they should pay 2s 4d a word for Australian cables while messages reaching there for mailing to England are only charged at the rate of 1s per word. It is possible that this objection may be met by arranging a scheme of deferred-delivery cablegrams to Canadian centres at, say, 1s per word. In order that there may be no undue preference to Great Britain over Canada, this and other details will be discussed by Mr. Fisher with the representatives of the Pacific Cable Board in London.

CABLE INTERRUPTED.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The eastern or second cable connecting the mainland with Tasmania is still silent. During the stormy weather last week it became "earthed." Arrangements are being made for the despatch of a steamer with repairing apparatus, and it is probable that full communication with Tasmania will not be restored until next week at the earliest.

THE FUTURE GOVERNMENT OF SYDNEY.

(BY JOHN D. FITZGERALD.)

V.

THE FORM CIVIC GOVERNMENT MUST TAKE.

In considering separately the various forms of government in other cities and nations, we must, at the outset, assume the necessity of two factors which must be present in the form we adopt:—(1) That our future city government must be unified; and (2) that it must be an evolutionary change from our present system. These are necessary reservations; the first, because the system of divided control and of multifarious authorities has failed—divided control is the disease we are performing surgeon's work upon; the second, because we cannot snap ourselves off from the traditional policy and the inherent passion for self-government of our race. While we have to be drastic in the change to be produced; while we are curing a perversion of local government, which has grown up fortuitously on our Greater Sydney area, we must not attempt experiments which may, and do, admirably suit the genius of other nations, but which neither our traditions nor our circumstances justify.

Our first examination shall be directed to the new system of civic government which has grown up in the United States, and which has apparently given great satisfaction there, viz., Civic Commission Government. This began in Galveston, Texas, after a destructive hurricane. Five commissioners were elected by the voters direct. In a few years these five civic Caesars did wonders. Their energetic administration presented such a striking contrast to the incompetence and dishonesty of the old "graft" council that the example was followed right through America and Canada. Each man elected as commissioner has a department under his control, and on major concerns he confers with his colleagues. They are paid officials. There is no governing council to direct them; they are like a board of directors of a joint stock company; they are paid large salaries. By a vote of the electors they may be "recalled" at any moment. Their ordinances and bylaws are subject to a veto of their electors. In Iowa there is a law enabling every town of over 3000 inhabitants to set up commission government. Each Commissioner is directly responsible for everything pertaining to his department, but entire responsibility for all departments rests upon the Commissioners as a whole, and all are, therefore, responsible for each department.

To apply this to Sydney we should abolish the City Council, the 40 odd suburban councils, and several board governments, such, for example, as the Water and Sewerage Board, the Harbour Trust, the Tramway Board, etc., and place in their stead a small junta of administrative Czars. I think I may say that the people—even with the safeguards of "recall" in their hands—will never submit to that, except as a transition device in this State. There is neither the necessity nor the impulsive cause present here. Where councils, as a matter of custom and tradition, indulge in "graft," one can understand the citizens of an American city revolting from it, and throwing themselves into the hands of a commission, as France did with its Directory, and Rome with its two successive Triumvirates. But we have not got to that pitch of desperation in our Sydney government. Therefore, the commission system will hardly be propounded or accepted. It would be a confession of rank failure.

In the Burgomaster system of Germany and Austria, the Mayor (or Burgomaster) is a permanent official, appointed for life, or on good conduct. His council consists of half officials, who are specialists in law and finance, and half honorary workers. The honorary elective council, apparently, elects the executive officials. In addition to these regularly elected and co-opted functionaries, there are "citizen deputies," who are co-opted by the councils to assist in matters in which they have a special interest, to act as associates on various committees. The N.S.W. Government has embodied this principle in its Convention Bill, as will be seen in a later article in this series. The German Burgomaster system resembles "a railway corporation" (says an American writer, Professor Shaw), in which the board of directors, chosen by the stockholders, appoint a general superintendent or manager, general freight and passenger agents, a legal officer, engineer, etc., and leave to these highly-salaried experts, promoted from inferior places, or drawn from the service of other companies, almost the entire management and operation of the road. This is a milder kind of civic Czarism, which is certainly not suited to the conditions of Sydney.

Composite city government exists in London and, to a certain extent, Boston. London had some hundreds of local authorities, and no central council, up to 1888. It now has 28 borough councils, and the city corporation for local, and the London County Council for county, administration. This composite form of government, which would appear to be eminently suitable for a city containing a population of over seven millions of human beings, would hardly be an ideal one for a comparatively small city like Sydney, which only contains 1-12th the number of people. But it has the advantage over our present chaotic system, in that the County Council is a centralised and powerful body, capable of handling vigorously problems such as now confront us—health, beautification, and communication, etc.

The Boston Government is also a composite one. The metropolitan Boston Council proposal did not interfere in any way with the existing system of government, nor did it propose the annexation of any of the outlying cities to Boston. It provided that a kind of advisory commission should be called into existence, consisting of the executive head of each city and town in the metropolitan district, who should be ex-officio representative of that city or town in a Metropolitan Boston Council. The council's duties are purely advisory. It was called into being to give the councils on the Greater Boston area some voice in the construction of great improvement schemes, which affected city and suburbs alike.

The last form of civic government I shall discuss is, I think, one which is more adapted to the circumstances of Sydney, and more in harmony with our traditions and with our civic spirit—it is a unified centralised municipal council on the lines of Birmingham, Glasgow, Dublin, Belfast, Manchester, Leeds, and Nottingham. The best description of this form of government has been given by the Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain in these words:—"In Birmingham the municipality is ever present; it is the active centre of all the public life of the town. Its members are perpetually striving strenuously to promote the good, the happiness, and welfare of the people. The Town Council are the directors of a great co-operative undertaking, in which every citizen is a shareholder, and the dividends are payable in the better health, in the increased comfort, in the recreation, and in the happiness of the people."

Here, then, we have the ideal type of civic authority to deal with the problem of Sydney. Such an authority as this destroyed acres of slums in Birmingham and replaced them with beautiful streets; such another advanced Glasgow from a village to a great city, a great shipyard, a great port; such another in Manchester gave an inland town almost all the advantages of a seaport; such another in Bristol provided docks and warehouses, granaries, and cold-storage, regardless of cost; such other authorities have housed and cared for their working classes in a way we have never dreamt of doing here, though the necessity is almost as great; in fact, a centralised council for a city of the size of Sydney appears to be a complete and efficient machine to advance the welfare of the individual citizen, to enlarge the scope of the commercial activities of the community, and to recreate and beautify the area, thus encouraging the citizen's pride in his city. Such a council would be the medium for correcting the mistakes of the inner city plan, and directing the course of its outward growth; it would be the trustee owner of the profit-making common services which are nearly everywhere in Britain owned and worked for the benefit of the citizen shareholders, who share the profits of the "trading" enterprises.

If we are to do something worth doing, we cannot better the example of British councils, which have been declared by the greatest authorities from abroad to be the most efficient civic bodies in the world. But before we reach the decisive moment of change we must educate public opinion, and direct it to the importance of the problem. Sydney, like a giant in a dream, is feeling the shackles of a garment which he has outgrown. We have tried letting out a tuck in the garment, and putting a patch here and there; but as the giant awakes and realises the position, he will want not patchwork but new garments which fit—he will demand the removal of a garment which has become a strait-jacket because he had outgrown it. The best means of educating a public which is vitally interested in, to frankly discuss the whole problem. This can best be done in a Citizens' Convention.

TROUBLE IN MOROCCO.

SPANISH INTERVENTION.

FRENCH PROTEST.

PARIS, June 11.

The "Temps" strongly protests against Spanish intervention in Morocco, which the paper says is simply actuated by a spirit of envious imitation.

The paper adds that diplomatic intervention by the signatories to the Algeciras Agreement may be necessary.

Later.

France has instructed its representatives abroad to protest to the signatories to the Algeciras Agreement regarding the action of Spain in Morocco.

PROTEST FROM MOROCCO.

MADRID, June 11.

"A DISINTERESTED MISSION."

MADRID, June 11.

The Spanish column which was landed at Larache, owing to a harmless raid at Alcazar, has now occupied the latter place.

Spanish newspapers hope that the Powers "will not oppose a disinterested mission."

FRENCH PUNISH MOORS.

FEZ, June 11.

General Monier's column severely punished the Moors in the direction of Sefru, where they bombarded and burnt several villages.

RECIPROCITY.

BAD FOR THE EMPIRE.

SIR WILLIAM LYNE'S VIEWS.

LONDON, June 12.

Sir William Lyne, M.P., in an interview, stated that Canada's position alongside the eighty million people of the United States made the task of preventing her absorption difficult. The political force of gravity, he said, was always working towards absorption.

Britain, he continued, was greatly to blame in the matter. She had neglected the hand that had been held out by the Dominions; hence Canada was inclined to look elsewhere.

Sir William said he greatly regretted the attitude of the Laurier Government in regard to reciprocity, the effect of which would be bad upon the consolidation of the Empire.

"American sentiment," he declared, "must grow rapidly if reciprocity is carried into effect."

GERMAN NAVY.

TENTH DREADNOUGHT LAUNCHED.

BERLIN, June 12.

The tenth German Dreadnought, the Friedrich der Gross, was launched yesterday.

Field-Marshal Vondergoltz, in a baptismal speech, wished that the new battleship would increase Germany's prestige abroad.

He added that Germany in her evolution had entered new paths, and successful competition required a strong navy such as the foresight of their Imperial War Lord had created.

THE MILLENNIUM.

MR. M'GOWEN LOOKS FORWARD.

LEGISLATION AND THE BROTHERHOOD OF MAN.

LONDON, June 12.

Mr. M'Gowen, Premier of New South Wales, speaking at a Sunday afternoon service at Sydenham, stated that the fact that there was only a small leisured class, and that 80 or 90 per cent. of the population were workers, was a great factor in sending Australia ahead.

Some people in other countries, he said, were seeking to effect changes by means of anarchy and nihilism, but the British were going to obtain reforms in an evolutionary way.

He honestly believed that when they obtained the recognition by legislation of the brotherhood of man, and its principles were practised by the community, the Christian millennium would be near at hand.

Mr. M'Gowen said that Mr. Lloyd-George's National Insurance Bill would make England infinitely better, and he pointed out that similar legislation in New South Wales in relation to the mining industry worked very well.

UNIONS AND POLITICS.

THE GOVERNMENT BILL.

POLITICAL FREEDOM LEAGUE DEMANDS.

LONDON, June 12.

Mr. W. V. Osborne (whose action against the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants gave rise to the famous "Osborne judgment"), is, on behalf of the Trade Union Political Freedom League, demanding that the Government's bill dealing with the use of union funds for political purposes shall be amended in order to separate the political funds from the ordinary contributions.

It is also demanded that the consent of a majority of the members of a union should be obtained before the objects of the union can be altered in order to include party politics, and it is further claimed that it is necessary that objectors should not be called upon to sign a form of exemption, which would make them the subjects of persecution.

HONOURED BY OXFORD.

SIR JOSEPH WARD EULOGISED.

LONDON, June 11.

Oxford University on Saturday conferred the degree of Doctor of Law on Sir Joseph Ward (Premier of New Zealand), General Botha (Premier of South Africa), and Sir Edward Morris (Premier of Newfoundland), in the Sheldonian Theatre.

Dr. Henry Goudy, Regius Professor of Civil Law, in introducing Sir Joseph Ward, referred to the offer of New Zealand to provide a Dreadnought as having induced competition among other Dominions in the same direction.

He added that though his proposals before the present Imperial Conference were too great for immediate execution they revealed that Sir Joseph Ward was a far-sighted statesman able to discern the germ of a greater united Empire.

DISTILLERY ABLAZE.

PANIC-STRICKEN EMPLOYEES.

LISBON, June 12.

Owing to the bursting of a lamp in a whisky distillery on the outskirts of Lisbon, a huge vat caught fire.

The flames quickly spread to the other vats, and the building was soon a veritable furnace.

The employees became panic-stricken, and many fled into the street with their clothing ablaze, while some jumped from the windows in a naked condition.

The firemen and soldiers are now searching the ruins for the remains of possible victims.

FESTIVAL OF EMPIRE.

LONDON, June 11.

The fourth part of the Pageant of Empire at the Crystal Palace on Saturday was a great success. It was devoted to depicting oversea episodes by actors and actresses, including the landing of Captain Cook in Botany Bay and the signing of the Treaty of Waitangi, and concluded with a Masque Imperial—a brilliant spectacle, which was greatly applauded.

Our special London correspondent on May 12 wrote:—"A great deal of work has been undertaken by Miss Margaret Baxter in getting together the characters to take part in the Australian section of the pageant at the Festival of Empire. An important part of the pageant, over and above the scene of the landing of Captain Cook, is the group representing Australia. On the day the pageant opens—June 12—Lady Reid has promised to take the actual character of "Australia," and on June 14 Miss Thelma Reid, her daughter, will take the same part. The Tasmanian section of the pageant was the first to be completed, thanks to the efforts of Dr. and Mrs. M'Call. Mrs. T. A. Coghlan held a meeting of New South Wales ladies on Tuesday to arrange the section for that State."

RETRENCHMENT.

ALARM IN SOUTH AFRICA.

LONDON, June 12.

The Capetown correspondent of the "Times" states that the retrenchments that are being carried out during the absence of General Botha, the Prime Minister, are causing uneasiness and apprehension, and that the English Civil servants are afraid to take their leave lest their positions should be filled in their absence.

The "Times" suggests that the reorganisation of the Civil Service should be entrusted to an independent commission, with an Imperial officer as chairman.

BOY PRISONERS' MUTINY.

EXTRAORDINARY EPISODE.

PARIS, June 11.

Two hundred and fifty boys, aged from 10 to 19, mutinied in the penitentiary colony on Belle Isle, complaining that the food was not eatable.

They armed themselves with scythes and pitchforks, and after locking up the officers, the boys scattered over the island.

Gendarmes have been sent to effect their arrest.

THE CORONATION.

SIMLA, June 11.

King George has intimated that he prefers that any moneys which may have been raised with the object of preparing addresses to the Throne should be devoted to charities.

AERONAUTICS.

TRANS-ATLANTIC ATTEMPT.

BY AMERICA'S ENGINEER.

LONDON, June 12.

Mr. Melvin Vaniman, who was chief engineer of Mr. Walter Wellman's airship America, in which an unsuccessful attempt was made to cross the Atlantic in October last, has sailed for New York with a complete 268ft dirigible, costing £30,000, in which he intends to attempt to cross the Atlantic in October with a crew of five.

In an interview before his departure, Mr. Vaniman stated that the rubber-coated fabrics used in the construction of the envelope of his airship were so perfect that it would be easy to stay in the air 30 days. The real difficulty, he said, would be in preventing the airship from rising to an extreme height when the rays of the sun expanded the gas, but he added that he thought he had solved this problem.

The attempt of Mr. Walter Wellman to cross the Atlantic with the America was made under the auspices of the London "Daily Telegraph" and the "New York Times." The America, which was 220ft long, and fitted with "wireless," left Atlantic City, New Jersey, on October 15. At that time of the year the trade winds are steady and continuous from the American shores to Europe, and follow almost the course of the Atlantic liners. It is believed that they blow at an average rate of about 20 miles an hour. This was calculated to give the America a speed of 40 miles per hour, and, as a consequence, Mr. Wellman expected to reach Europe in four days. Bad weather, with fogs and adverse winds, prevailed from the outset, however, and the airship, after travelling north-east of Atlantic City until it was near Nantucket, was driven almost due south to a point 375 miles off Hatteras, covering a total approximate distance of 850 miles. Then it became unmanageable, and the steamer Trent was acquainted of the fact by wireless. The Trent drew up to the America, and took the crew and the cat, which Mrs. Vaniman had placed aboard as a Mascot. In an interview, Mr. Wellman said that when in the fog off Nova Scotia the winds drove the balloon in every direction. "We could not tell where we were being driven. Once we nearly collided with a four-masted schooner. Then later the wireless attracted the lightning, so we lowered the balloon to within a few feet of the water. When we attempted to rise after the weather cleared, we found it necessary to throw overboard several barrels of gasoline. On the 17th the sun caused the gas to expand, and the America shot up 3600ft. We had great difficulty in lowering her again. One of the motors broke down, and afterwards we began to lose gas, and it became necessary to reduce our weight by throwing overboard practically all our fuel. Then there was nothing to do but to drift, and await a chance to signal a steamer."

Mr. Wellman added that they were disappointed with the new "equilibrator"—a steel cable 200ft long, which hung quite vertically from the centre of the car, and was planned to serve the purpose its name suggested. It did not do what was expected of it, and the airship was severely shaken throughout the voyage by the pounding of the equilibrator over the waves.

JAPANESE OFFICERS ESCAPE.

TOKIO, June 11.

In regard to the reported death of Captain Tokusawo and Lieutenant Ito, of the Japanese Army, through falling from a great height, later information states that the aviators were not severely injured, and are recovering.

A MAORI PASSENGER.

LONDON, June 11.

Mr. Woodward, while aeroplaning at the White City, carried Matapopoki, a Maori chief, as a passenger.

CHAMPAGNE TROUBLE.

A PRO-GERMAN AGITATION.

PARIS, June 12.

The agitation in the Aube district in connection with the champagne area delimitation is now taking a pro-German character.

The troops were mobbed while tearing down a German flag which had been hoisted on the Town Hall at Baroville.

Pro-German inscriptions are conspicuous in many other villages.

ITALIAN ELECTORAL REFORM.

ROME, June 11.

The Electoral Reform Bill will add 3,642,000 electors to the rolls, making 82 per cent. of the men of full age.

Deputies will be paid 6000 lire (about £238) per annum.

VOYAGE OF THE FRAM.

BUENOS AYRES, June 11.

The Fram, the vessel of the Amundsen Antarctic Expedition, has started on a scientific cruise between South America and South Africa.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

LONDON, June 11.

The newspapers publish favourable notices of a violin recital by Miss Leila Doubleday, of Melbourne, in the Queen's Hall. The "Standard" says that there is every prospect of Miss Doubleday having a highly successful career.

The death of Lord Dynevor has created a vacancy in the Parliamentary borough of Brighton, owing to the succession of Captain W. F. Rice, M.P. (Unionist), his only son, to the title.

H. W. Stevenson, the world's champion billiard player, has married Miss King, and they have started on a trip to Australia, where Stevenson will play a series of matches.

Three hundred oversea visitors were entertained by the girls at Dr. Barnardo's Village Home for Girls at Barkingside, Essex. They also inspected the new hospital provided by Australian and New Zealand subscribers for the use of 1300 inmates.

LONDON, June 12.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Harcourt entertained a large house party for the week-end at Nuneham Park, Oxford, to welcome the overseas Ministers. The guests included Lord Kitchener, Mr. Alfred Lyttelton, Mr. S. Buxton (President of the Board of Trade), and Mr. A. Ure (Lord Advocate of Scotland).

The balance-sheet of the South Australian Company shows that the credit balance in the profit and loss account totals £34,041. A total of £10,000 has been added to the reserve, and £19,191 carried forward. The report states that owing to the rapid sale of properties, and the purchase by the Government of the Port Adelaide wharfs, the company is reducing the management expenses, and is dispensing with three directors. A sum of £18,017 is required to meet the Federal land tax.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Batchelor, Sir John and Lady Downer, Mr. and Mrs. W. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. G. Fuller, Mr. G. F. Earp, and Sir Robert Baden Powell, were the guests of Mr. John Norton Griffiths, M.P., at Marlow, for the week-end.

STATION-OWNER'S SUICIDE.

MELBOURNE, Saturday.

Benjamin Cramwell, a well-known station-owner of the Kimberley district, who shot himself with a revolver near Hall's Creek, died yesterday.

ENGLISH CRICKETERS.

NEXT AUSTRALIAN TOUR.

MARYLEBONE CLUB'S COMPLAINT.

LONDON, June 11.

The Marylebone Cricket Club has twice cabled and sent letters to Australia dealing with points which require settlement in regard to the English team to visit Australia in the autumn, but the Australian Board of Control has not replied.

It is stated that unless a reply is soon received it may be impossible to send a team from England, even if Australia wishes one to be sent.

THE BOARD OF CONTROL.

STATEMENT BY THE SECRETARY.

Mr. Colin A. Sinclair, hon. secretary of the Australian Board of Control, referring to the above cable message, says that he has cabled home, stating that the Board of Control is desirous of having an English team here. He was surprised that there should be any doubt on the subject in the minds of the Marylebone authorities. He had already written two letters home dealing with the programme, taking it for granted that the compact entered into respecting triangular tests would be observed. The programme would be the usual one, and would merely require formal ratification of the rest of the board here. He expected that when his letters were received in England the whole question would be cleared up. The board was represented in England by Mr. R. S. Finlay, of Surrey, the secretary of the oval, and the details would be left to him. He did not expect that there would be any hitch.

Another New South Wales member of the board, Mr. W. P. McElhone, says he declines to believe that the Marylebone Club is the author of or responsible for the cable, as that body is fully acquainted with all the facts of the matter. The visit of the English team to Australia is only an incident in the Imperial scheme, which was discussed and confirmed at meetings of the delegates from the countries interested, which were held in London on June 15 and July 19, 1909.

The visit of the English team to Australia is part of that scheme, and any departure therefrom by the Marylebone Club would bring about a deadlock. In that case the attitude adopted by the English body would be similar to that taken up by the South African Association recently. In any case, the Australian Board of Control is quite prepared to carry out its part of the contract, despite quite unnecessary harassing from other parties interested in the triangular scheme.

THE IMPERIAL SCHEME.

Following are the particulars of the meetings which were held in connection with the imperial contests:—

On June 29, 1909, it was proposed by Mr. G. W. Hillyard (South Africa), seconded by Dr. L. O. S. Poidevin (Australia), and unanimously agreed:—"That the principle of triangular contests is approved," with following rider, which was also unanimously approved: "That, having regard to the following arrangement having been made, i.e., for England to visit South Africa in 1909-10, and South Africa to visit Australia in 1910-11, an effort should be made to have the first triangular cricket contest in England in 1912, subject to South Africa waiving its claim to come alone that year; and to further this object England pledges itself to visit Australia in 1911-12."

At a subsequent meeting, held on July 20, 1909, at Lords, the scheme for playing the triangular matches was settled, and it was sent out to the associations interested, with a recommendation that the scheme appeared workable.

The following programme was agreed to:—
England to visit South Africa in 1909-10 and 1913-14.
South Africa to visit Australia in 1910-11 and 1914-15.
England to visit Australia in 1911-12.
Australia and South Africa to visit England in 1912 (triangular contest).
Australia to visit South Africa in 1913.

Australia has always been, and is prepared to carry out its part of the Imperial scheme. The first stumbling block appeared when South Africa refused to come out last season without a guarantee. Happily that ripple was smoothed over without the loss of any dignity on the part of the Australian body, and it now only remains for England to perform its part by sending out a team during the coming season to ensure the visit of an Australian team to England in 1912.

However, it may be found that the message from England has no official inspiration.

Our Adelaide correspondent telegraphed last night:—"Mr. G. M. Evan, a member of the Board of Control, who was president last year, says he has heard nothing of any difficulty in regard to the visit of the English team."

"NO NEED FOR CONCERN."

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Mr. H. Rush and Mr. E. Bean, the Victorian representatives on the Board of Control, stated to-day that there was absolutely no need for concern. The arrangement at the triangular conference was complete and final, and the visit of the English team was the natural consequence. Nothing but a very unusual request was likely to interfere with the arrangement. A committee was appointed at the last meeting of the board to draw up a programme, and this would be done and submitted to the M.C.C. in ample time. Beyond perhaps a few minor details there were no points for settlement that they knew of.

LEPROSY IN HONOLULU.

A DEFINITE CURE REPORTED.

"CARBON DIOXIDE SNOW."

HONOLULU, May 16.

Although the fact is not generally advertised by the local people, leprosy is still prevalent in these islands. By careful work on the part of the health authorities, and also the medical men who are in charge, it is being gradually conquered however; and now the startling announcement has been made that a definite cure has been found. The case in point was that of a little boy 5½ years old, who was taken to the receiving station on January 21, 1910, and has now been restored to his parents completely cured. When he was first admitted his body bore external evidences of the ravages of the disease, and bacteriological tests proved the presence of the bacilli of leprosy in his flesh.

The release of this little German boy from detention marks, it is claimed, the first step in the proof of an absolutely new cure for leprosy. The cure, proven it is asserted by bacteriological tests, clinical examinations made by three leading physicians, and every other proof that can be obtained in any other way, is the result of the experimental work of Dr. J. T. Wayson, who has had charge of this case since its first admission to the receiving station.

The main departure in the treatment consists of the use of "carbon dioxide snow," a substance resembling yellow ice cream, formed by compressing carbon dioxide gas into a solid form. The substance is intensely cold, having a temperature of 110 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. The "snow" is applied to the leprous lesions, and immediately freezes the flesh. The cold apparently kills the bacilli, the lesion sloughs off, as does the skin of a healthy person after a frostbite, and there remains pink and healthy flesh.

POSTAL PRIVILEGES

SYDNEY UNION BENEFITS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

There has been in force for some years a postal regulation whereby certain communications may be sent to Government departments without payment of postage, provided that the address of the department or official is printed on the envelope. In practice, of course, the printed envelopes are supplied by the department to those entitled to use them. From time to time the names of various State and Federal departments have been added to the list as occasion arose.

It has been left for a Labour member, Mr. Catts, and a Labour Minister, Mr. Thomas, to extend this convenient system to the correspondence of a trades-union which, in a special postal regulation passed by the Federal Executive Council, is described as "official correspondence." The following notification appears in the June supplement to the "Commonwealth Post and Telegraph Guide":—

"Payment of Postage by the Receiver.—Official Correspondence.—The regulation under this head is amended by inserting the following paragraph at the end thereof:—Postal articles bearing the following printed address, 'Mr. J. H. Catts, M.P., Hon. General Secretary, Amalgamated Railway and Tramway Association, Trades Hall, Sydney,' may be sent by post without prepayment of postage; but the postage thereon at prepaid rates shall be paid by the person to whom they are addressed upon their delivery to him."

THE IRRIGATION SCHEME.

MURRUMBIDGEE LANDS.

FIRST SECTION IN PREPARATION.

The Government has entered into immediate possession of about 8000 acres of Sir Samuel M'Caughey's land at Yanco, for the purpose of attaching it to the area to be irrigated by the Barren Jack reservoir.

The entire resumption arranged between Sir Samuel M'Caughey and the Government is about 70,000 acres. The owner remains in possession of the property for the shearing season, with the exception of the portion as stated. After September, when the sheep are disposed of, the remainder of the estate will be taken over. These 8000 acres will constitute the first part of the Murrumbidgee irrigation section to be thrown open to settlers. The section is about the railway line. Channels for the distribution of the water, and roads of access, are being constructed, and the Lands Department is arranging for the surveys and subdivisions to be entered upon.

The water from the reservoir is to be available in the early part of the summer. The contract provides for the wall being high enough to enable it to be stored next month. It is anticipated that the work will be sufficiently far advanced to enable this to be done before the last of the snow waters are run off in the early spring. The wall will then be 100ft above the foundations, and will be capable of holding back 300 million cubic feet.

SCHOONER IN A STORM.

VESSEL HEADED FOR SEA.

WAVES TURN HER BACK.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The crew of the three-masted schooner Lemael had a stormy passage. On Saturday night the seas racing through the Heads were tremendous. At 8 o'clock, when the ebb tide was falling, with two men lashed alongside the wheel to keep her on her course, she was headed for the entrance. The vessel had entered the Rip, when a huge following sea broke over aft and flooded her decks.

Observing several other huge combers following in the vessel's wake, the master decided to put to sea again. The vessel was stayed, but had hardly gained steerage way when she was assailed by a succession of terrific breakers. The first struck her on the bluff of the bow with such tremendous force as to turn the vessel around and again head her for the entrance. The following wave simply poured over the schooner's rail, filled her decks, turned her in a complete circle, and tore the mizzen sail from its fastenings. Four of the crew were observed by onlookers at Queenscliff to take to the rigging. A third wave broke aboard, and left the foresail in tatters.

The vessel's decks were awash fore and aft, and from the shore her chance of reaching the bay appeared hopeless. However by the exercise of splendid seamanship, the Lemael, with her mizzen sail towing behind, was navigated into calmer waters, and taken to Portsea shore for shelter. So serious did the incident appear that Superintendent Stonely, of the lifeboat service, was asked by telephone to have a crew ready for action.

MOTOR CAR ACCIDENT.

VERDICT FOR £450.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

In the local Supreme Court on Monday morning his Honor the Chief Justice summed up to the jury on the evidence adduced in the action by Evelyn Aborn, of the Gay Gordons Theatrical Company, against F. A. McCarty and Co., tramway contractors, for £490 damages for injuries sustained in a motor car accident at North Adelaide on April 13th.

His Honor said if the plaintiff had shown that the defendant company was at fault it was no answer to show that the driver was at fault. Unless she had been at fault she was entitled to damages, even though the driver had been negligent and reckless. In a democratic community they were liable to lose many individual rights; but there were certain rights which it was the function of juries to protect. One of these was the right to pass safely and unmolested along the King's highway. The Judge summed up strongly in favour of the plaintiff. He directed the jury that even if the driver of the motor car had been negligent and reckless, the plaintiff was entitled to recover damages. To be successful the contractors had to show that no breach had been committed by them. The jury had to decide whether the road was properly fenced, guarded, or lighted, or whether its conditions had wholly or partially brought about the accident. In the course of his remarks his Honor commented upon the absence of reliable evidence as to distance at which the excavation had been visible in prevailing light and the speed at which the motor car had been travelling. He had consulted a professor, and had been assured that the exact figures could have been computed; yet there were brilliant scientists at the head of the tramways undertaking, and they had not condescended to give a word of evidence of that character.

The summing-up occupied one and a half hour, and the jury, after retiring for three-quarters of an hour, returned a verdict for the plaintiff for £450.

An action by Sylvia Maurer, the other occupant of the car, for £490 against the same defendants was not proceeded with, as counsel will endeavour to settle the amount of damages to be paid to her. If they cannot agree, his Honor will be asked to fix it.

BOWLING BOYCOTTED.

STRIKE LEADER WANTS WORK.

HOPES FOR THE FUTURE.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

Mr. Peter Bowling, leader of the recent big coal strike in Newcastle, is looking for work. Little has been seen of him since he was defeated for the presidency of the Colliery Employees' Federation, but when spoken to in Scott-street to-day, he was far from downhearted, and prophesied that the time was not far distant when he would again be at the head of the federation. "But," said the late strike leader, "at present I am looking for work in this district, and I cannot get it. I am boycotted throughout the district. Why this is so I cannot say, as I was only one of the leaders of the strike. If I had been the only leader the result would have been otherwise. I expect, however, to take on navvying shortly at 8s a day."

Referring to the proposed appointment of a Royal Commission to inquire into the working of the "miners' mines" at the time of the late strike, Mr. Bowling said he would be pleased to see such a commission appointed, as the Government, the Opposition, and the federation were in favour of the commission. He did not see why it should not be appointed. Returning to the question of the federation prospects, Mr. Bowling said he believed he would once again be its president. The attempt to foist political opinions upon the unionists of the federation was the beginning of the end of the present officers of the federation.

PEARLING DISASTER.

FOUR MEN DROWNED.

PORT DARWIN, Monday.

A fatal disaster occurred on Saturday somewhere between Melville Island and the mainland.

Captain Edwards' pearling lugger, Neptune, had started to come into Port Darwin. The diver was seated on the deck, fully dressed except for his helmet, he having just finished work. One of the crew, a new and inexperienced hand, was steering, and it is supposed that the boat was running before the wind, when a sudden stronger puff caused the boom to jibe and the lugger capsized. The diver, tender, and two of the crew were drowned. The other two members of the crew were picked up by another lugger after swimming for some hours. The lost lugger was the best boat in Captain Edward's fleet, and had a quantity of shell on board taken during Neaps.

ROBBING THE POLICE.

CONSTABLE'S OVERCOAT STOLEN.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Property is still being lost by the police force.

Constable Dooley, of the Little Bourke-street station, is lamenting the disappearance of a dark tweed overcoat, with silk facings, valued at £2 10s. On Friday evening he laid it on a form under the verandah at the station. A few minutes later a man snatched the coat and bolted along Liverpool-street into Bourke-street. He was seen to do it, but thief and coat have disappeared from the view of the detectives.

SHEFFIELD CHOIR.

RECEPTION IN SYDNEY.

AN EMPIRE NOTE.

STRIKING ENTHUSIASM.

ACTING PREMIER'S WORDS OF WELCOME.

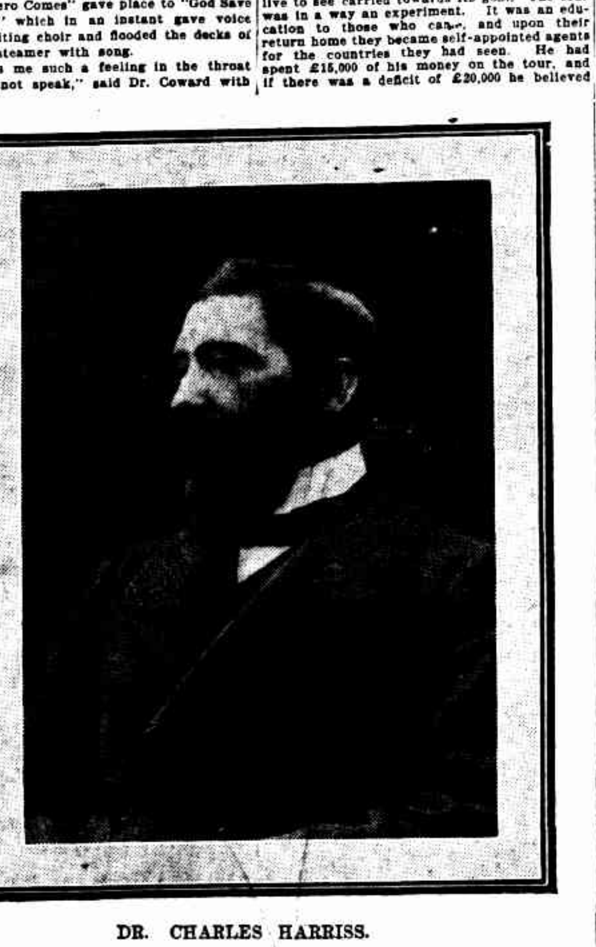

"Three cheers for the Sheffield Choir!"

The Zealandia, delayed for four hours by shockingly bad weather on the run down from Brisbane, had entered the Heads, and slowed down off Watson's Bay to allow the Customs launch Eva, with the Acting Premier and a number of other prominent citizens on board to come alongside.

The cheers were called for by Dr. Charles Harriss, the promoter of the tour, who had reached Sydney early in the morning by the train bringing the English mails, and they were given and repeated with convincing heartiness. It was a signal that was taken up by half a dozen heavily freighted steamers waiting to greet the visitors, and the cheers came ringing across the water mingled with the inspiriting strains of "See the Conquering Hero Comes" and the tooting of steam whistles.

Then as the Acting Premier and his party clambered up the Zealandia's gangway, the other boats, with handkerchiefs waving from stem to stern, came nearer, and "See the Conquering Hero Comes" gave place to "God Save the King," which in an instant gave voice to the visiting choir and flooded the decks of the mail steamer with song.

"It gives me such a feeling in the throat that I cannot speak," said Dr. Coward with emotion as he looked down on the cheering, handkerchief-waving flotilla, with the voices of the choir boys of St. Andrew's Cathedral rising and falling in the chorus of welcome raised by the various musical societies of Sydney, the Newtown Brass Band providing a background of melody to the demonstration. It was a welcome instinct with enthusiasm, and it spoke to the visitors, wearied after much tossing about on the coast, in a language that they understood and appreciated. Emphasis was given to the welcome by the sight of a thousand persons assembled on Bennelong Point as the Zealandia passed by, and by the cheers of a vast crowd on the Orient Company's wharf, where the Zealandia was berthed.

DR. CHARLES HARRISS.

The delay in the arrival of the Union liner caused considerable misgiving to Mr. Southwell, upon whom rested the executive responsibility of the whole of the reception arrangements. It was expected that the Zealandia would enter the Heads at noon, and in anticipation of that half a dozen steamers berthed at Fort Macquarie had full complements of passengers as early as half-past 10, these representing the Royal Sydney Philharmonic Society (Mr. W. Johnson, hon. secretary), the Sydney Amateur Orchestral Society (Mr. J. H. Merriman, hon. secretary), the Citizens' Committee (Mr. W. G. Layton, hon. secretary), the Yorkshire Society (Mr. W. H. Townend, hon. secretary), the Sydney Liedertafel (Mr. H. Chambers, hon. secretary), the Sydney Madrigal Society (Mr. L. Gibson, hon. secretary), the St. Andrew's Cathedral Choir, with the precentor, the Rev. E. N. Wilton, and the Newtown Brass Band, under the lead of Mr. W. May, a former member of the Sheffield Choir, who has established himself in Sydney. Yet another party was assembled on the Customs launch Eva, at Circular Quay, this comprising the Acting Premier, Dr. Charles Harriss, Mr. Jackson (manager of the Union S.S. Company), Mr. W. Atkins (president), and Mr. S. D. Townend (vice-president), of the Yorkshire Society; Mr. R. Hollis, M.L.A., Mr. J. W. Turner, Mr. P. F. Marich, Herr Slappoffski, Mr. Joseph Bradley, Mr. W. Arundel Orchard, Mr. A. G. Milson, Mr. J. Lemmone, Mr. H. Staell, Dr. Waddell, Mr. S. Middleton, Ald. T. H. Kelly, Captain Grean, Mr. J. Chalmers, and Mr. Southwell.

Shortly after 11 o'clock a wireless message was received that the mail steamer could not arrive before 4 o'clock, and the reception arrangements had accordingly to be hung up. At 3 o'clock, however, the parties re-assembled, and carried out the reception programme with a vigour and zeal that could scarcely have been surpassed, even if the vessel had arrived to time.

ON THE ZEALANDIA.

WELCOMED BY MR. HOLMAN.

As the Zealandia neared Circular Quay an informal gathering was held in the saloon, when the Acting Premier, on behalf of the reception committee, extended a very hearty welcome to the visitors, and proposed the health of Dr. Harriss and Dr. Coward.

The Acting Premier said it was an immense satisfaction to the whole of the music-loving section of the Australian people—and that section comprised practically the whole of the Australian people—to have a visit from such a world-famous body of musicians. For that visit they were indebted to the enormous energy and self-sacrificing work of Dr. Harriss on the one hand, and to the high technical skill of Dr. Coward on the other. To those who, like himself, had a fondness and admiration for first-class music without being able to distinguish between the different degrees of technical excellence, as well as to those who were gifted in musical matters, the visit of the Sheffield Choir was a source of delight. He asked the company to drink good health and a most hearty welcome to Dr. Harriss and Dr. Coward, "and may the very best success attend their enterprise."

Dr. Harriss, in responding, said he felt deeply grateful for the honour of such a reception as had been given to them that afternoon. He was seeing to-day the realisation of his dream of ten years ago, and to have got even half-way towards the fulfilment of a project which had taken ten years to think out and to carry out was about the greatest reward that a man could merit in his lifetime. He was really at the commencement of his work—not at the end of it—for he had made all his plans for the next five years; and if he could return home with the Sheffield Choir free of expense to himself he intended to return to Australia, if he lived long enough, with other parties from Scotland and from various parts of Great Britain, and through the medium of music enable the members of those parties to see what the Empire was like, so that when they returned to the heart of the Empire they would be the agents for the dissemination among all sections of the people of Great Britain of some idea of this wonderful country, and make Australia and New Zealand and South Africa as familiar to the people as Canada was. His one desire was to instil in the minds of the people of Great Britain some knowledge of what the overseas dominions were like. Taking the Empire as a whole, they were such a vast people, and such a vast country, that it was hard to make the British people realise what manner of men and women and countries composed the Empire. And he thought the greatest good a man could do was to try, through some force or another, to bring intelligent people from Great Britain to see this wonderful world as they passed round the panorama of Empire. To have been the means of sending so great a choral body as the Sheffield Choir on a round of Empire meant that his ten years of work had not been spent in vain. The welcome given them even before crossing the threshold of the city, was a delightful experience, and satisfied him they could receive nothing else but a love and affection and hearty good will, which would stimulate them to go back to Great Britain with their eyes opened as to the future in store for Australia, and with an eager desire to sing its praises in the home land. They would be the best immigration agents that Australia could have, and he had no doubt that people in the home country seeking a new home and the people of Australia would in that way reap the benefit. He wanted to tell the people of the old land that a welcome awaited them in Australia, and he wanted to make the British man who was seeking a new home feel that in going to Australia he was going to a land where he would prosper. He trusted that what he was doing would be received in the spirit in which they came to Australia. They came for the very best of reasons. They came because they wanted to come. They had been received with great honour. He felt it was but the commencement of a larger movement, which he hoped to live to see carried towards its goal. The tour was in a way an experiment. It was an education to those who came, and upon their return home they became self-appointed agents for the countries they had seen. He had spent £15,000 of his money on the tour, and if there was a deficit of £20,000 he believed he could find the money to pay the bill. He was, however, not the Bank of England. He had very little, but what he could lay his hands upon he spent in carrying forward his mission." "If," Dr. Harriss concluded, "I go to my grave having succeeded—as I think I shall—I will have earned a decent bed to lie upon."

Dr. Coward also responded. The members of the choir, he said, came to Australia with a dominant desire to cement the different branches of the Empire together by means of music. It was that which gave them the entree to Australia, and, he trusted, to the affection of the people also. It enabled them to see this country under the most favourable circumstances. He found it difficult to translate his feelings into words. The cumulative effects of what they had seen gave them impressions that succeeded one another like Banquo's ghosts. Each place, as they reached it, seemed to be more glorious than the last. When they were at Brisbane the other day they thought nothing could be more delightful. They looked at the beautiful foliage and the splendid gardens, and could hardly believe it when told that this was midwinter. They saw a prosperous, vigorous, virile set of people, and he was irresistibly reminded of the Sepoy who at the Coronation, looking at the vast crowds, asked, "Where are your poor people?" and, upon being told that they were all about, replied "Nonsense; these are all princes and princesses. They are wealthy people." That was the impression they got at Brisbane. On the way down from Brisbane Captain Phillips told them they were going to see the finest harbour in the world. He really did not know where their wonderment would end if such experience were to be continued, but they wished to tell everybody when they got back of the wonders of their visit to Sydney. Already four, if not six, of his choir had told him they were going to stay in Sydney. He could only say that he thanked the people from the bottom of his heart for the splendid welcome. It was an inspiring reception, and they at any rate would do their best to show themselves worthy of it.

MAYORAL RECEPTION.

"A COLONIAL EXPANSIONIST."

After leaving the wharf the principal members of the party were taken to the Town Hall, where an official reception was given them by the Lord Mayor, a number of leading musicians and business men being present.

The Lord Mayor proposed the health of Dr. Harriss and Dr. Coward. He said that to Dr. Harriss the city owed a very great debt of gratitude. Year after year Sydney had been privileged to meet many great musicians, but Dr. Harriss was the greatest among them, in that while the others came here to make money, he came with the sole object of increasing their musical culture, and of bringing them into closer touch with the centre of the Empire. (Hear, hear.) He was sure the visitors would find the citizens of Sydney very anxious to show them every possible consideration. He was not a musician himself, but he realised to the full the duty of every citizen to assist the cause of musical culture. He had looked forward with very great pleasure to the visit of the choir, and he welcomed them most heartily to the city. The Lord Mayor also paid a tribute to the talents of Dr. Coward.

His Honor Judge Backhouse supported the Lord Mayor. It was through music, he thought, that they could hope to make the hearts of all the people of the Empire beat in unison. Shakespeare had said that one touch of nature made the whole world kin. They could adapt that phrase to the occasion in a slightly altered form, and say "one touch of music makes the whole realm kin." (Applause.) They were all particularly glad to see the choir here. As a member of the Royal Philharmonic Society he was glad to welcome to the city one of the greatest combinations of musicians that had ever visited our shores.

Dr. Harriss, replying to the toast, said he felt very grateful for the particularly hearty welcome to himself and the other members of the choir that had been given by the Lord Mayor of "the greatest young city in the world." (Applause.) When he left the old country many years ago he had chosen Canada to live in, but had he chosen Australia, Australia would have made him the same man that Canada had made him, a colonial expansionist. The choir that he was leading had come out here with the sole object of strengthening the Empire to which they all belonged. To that he was devoting his life's work. He had been for 10 years trying to get here. "I am going to be buried some day in Canada," continued Dr. Harriss, "and when that day comes I want the British flag to fly over me. The whole of the Empire must work together. That is the motto for you to hold on to. We are going to advertise your country, and as soon as the teeming thousands of the old country know of the chances you offer them to expand their brains and bulge their pockets they will come here in thousands. We have come here to know your country. We go back disciples of your country. It is the best advertisement you business men can get, and it is for you to support me in my work. I am playing this game alone, but I want the British people to support me and make it possible for me to continue it. We come here asking for nothing. We take nothing away with us except, we hope, your love in our hearts, and when we go back home we will make it our privilege to go out and preach the gospel of your country throughout the British Empire. It will in a measure compensate us for our great efforts if we can do something for the cause of the Empire. We have an official photographer with us, and for the next few days he will be snapping himself to death in the endeavour to take back with us an advertisement of your country. Already you have almost killed us with kindness, and I don't know that I have ever seen such a great welcome as you have given us in Sydney." (Applause.)

Dr. Coward also responded. They had, he said, come here as brethren to cement the spirit of brotherhood throughout the Empire. They had come with very wide eyes to see and very sympathetic spirits to learn all about this country, so that they would be able to tell it to their friends when they got home. Every one of them was keeping a diary, and they would go back filled with information. They were Imperialists before they set out on their journey; they were ten times more so now. "Your reception to-day," concluded Dr. Coward, "would sink into the heart of a man of stone. It has sunk into our hearts. What we have seen already makes us feel prouder of the old country and of Australia." (Loud applause.)

A SOCIAL GATHERING.

THOUSAND PEOPLE PRESENT.

In the evening the members of the choir were the guests of the Royal Philharmonic Society at a function which was part concert, part dance, and part banquet or supper, at the Town Hall. Some of the choir, however, had too vivid a memory of their rough passage in the Zealandia. They still felt the pavement heaving, and were hardly equal to facing a social gathering. Others had not had time to get their pretty frocks and dress suits out of their boxes. These unwillingly stayed away, but the majority were able to go, and with several hundred members of the Philharmonic Society and their friends, made up a bright gathering of nearly 1000 people. Amongst the guests were Dr. Harriss and Dr. Coward, the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, the Acting Premier and Mrs. Holman, Sir William and Lady Manning, his Excellency Admiral King-Hall, his Honor Judge Backhouse, and the Minister for Education, Mr. Beeby, and Mrs. Beeby.

The Town Hall was effectively decorated with ferns and flags, and presented quite a gay spectacle. The early part of the evening was devoted to a concert programme, which was contributed to by members of the Philharmonic Society. The part song, "In Absence," was sung by the Sydney Vocal Quartette, and an instrumental quartette was given by M. Henri Staell, F. M. Carter, W. J. Grieves, and Bryce Carter. Madame Slapoffski was heard to advantage in the jewel song from "Faust," and Miss Wolinski sang the ballad, "To the Angels," with 'cello obbligato by Mr. Bryce Carter. Mr. Harry Neil rendered "Love is For Ever," and Mr. Bryce Carter played a 'cello solo. Mr. G. C. C. Hellemann was accompanist. The hall was then cleared for dancing, and a happy time was spent.

TOASTS AND SPEECHES.

At 10 o'clock dancing was suspended for an hour, and the whole company adjourned to the supper table in the brightly-decorated basement. Here Sir Wm. P. Manning presided. The toast list was restricted to "The King," "The British Empire," and "The Sheffield Choir." Vice-Admiral King-Hall was to have responded to the British Empire toast, but having to leave early, that duty was assigned to Mr. David Fell, M.L.A. Similarly, the Lord Mayor, who was to have proposed the toast of the Sheffield Choir, had to leave early, owing to illness, and Judge Backhouse was called upon at very short notice, to fill the breach. The toasts were received with the greatest heartiness, and the speeches, which were brief, were listened to with interest.

Mr. G. S. Beeby, Minister for Public Instruction, in proposing the toast of the Empire, said he had discovered that Sheffield was in Yorkshire. (Laughter.) They had had Cousin Timothy with them, and they were all in love with Cousin Mary. (Laughter.) The Sheffield Choir, taken as a body, could speak English. (Laughter.) He found that their Yorkshire friends were solid Englishmen, just as they claimed to be in Australia. (Applause.) They were proud of having over 200 of their brethren and sisters with them from across the seas. (Applause.) They should make their trip such a pleasant one that each would go back a free advertising agent of Australia. They hoped to show them that Australia was inhabited by a true branch of the Anglo-Saxon confederation. He trusted their visit would result in the feeling of Empire-growing. (Applause.)

Mr. Fell, M.L.A., in responding, said he was glad they were to have musical and artistic reciprocity with Great Britain.

Judge Backhouse, in proposing the toast of "The Sheffield Choir," humorously contrasted the modern method of penalising guests with speeches that nobody cared to listen to with the Roman custom of eating and drinking with ones guests and reserving talking at their guests until they were dead, when a funeral oration was worked off. Both in his personal capacity and as the official representative of the Royal Philharmonic Society, he had the greatest delight in welcoming the Sheffield choir to Sydney. The musical people of Sydney were under a great debt of gratitude to Dr. Harriss, who initiated the visit, and to Dr. Coward, the executive officer of the tour, for the visit of a choir which would give them some of the best of music, with the object not of making money but of simply pressing home the view that they all belonged to one Empire, and that it was their duty to recognise it, and do their best at all times for the Empire. Dr. Harriss had chosen music, and what vehicle could be better, to convey to the people of Australia what their duty was to the country to which they owed so much, and owed so much, too, for the grander aspect of that musical enterprise, because that was the main object that brought their visitors to Australia. The members of the choir had come to delight them by showing how some of the work could be done—by doing it in a way which could not be excelled in any part of the world. They had always been a musical people in Sydney. A piano came out with the first fleet, and he had read that in 1910 nearly 7000 pianos were imported into New South Wales. What an immense amount of pleasure those pianos must have given their owners, and what an immense amount of torment they must have given other people. (Laughter.) "We greet our friends," Judge Backhouse concluded, "because they, as we are, are sons and daughters of Empire. We greet them because, as we have done, they have done their best for music. We greet them as representing music, the soul of all things beautiful." (Applause.)

Dr. Harriss, on rising to respond for the choir, was received with loud applause. He said he had, during the last ten years, on this musical reciprocity propaganda, spoken before many distinguished audiences, but never before so large a gathering as that. (Applause.) His words when he went back would make his countrymen in Great Britain see what these oversea dominions were. They were the bulwarks of Britannia, and Canada was not the only pebble on the beach. (Loud applause.) There were riches and honour and every desirable thing for any man in a new country if he had the pluck to be about his business, and was desirous of making a name and place for himself in the Empire. (Applause.) Colonisation was the backbone of prosperity. He personally had prospered in the new world, and he would like to see more of their people coming to this new world of theirs. (Cheers.) Music was the vehicle he had chosen whereby to do some good in colonisation. If they stopped the sound of the birds, the music of their pianos, and the laughter of their children, the world would be a sorry place indeed. When he succeeded in bringing in a thousand people to Australia instead of 220 he would think he had done something. Nothing that England could give them in the singing line was too good for Australia.

He had, Dr. Harriss continued, devoted himself to this work of Imperial musical reciprocity, and trusted that it would be the means, not only of binding the artistic sections of the Empire together, but the people generally, and would result in the colonies becoming better known to the people of the old land. (Hear, hear.) There were thousands upon thousands of their countrymen at home in the old land who would gladly avail themselves of the opportunities that awaited them in these rich young countries if they were only made aware of them. In this unique fashion he trusted to preach the gospel of these wonderful and rising new worlds. (Cheers.) He felt sure that the overseas dominions would in generations to come, if they only hung together, be the salvation of the Empire. (Cheers.) He was one of those that thought what the Empire was capable of growing into after they were all dead and gone, if they but remained steadfast and true to their Imperial destiny. (Cheers.) His Majesty the King had personally taken a keen interest in this unique musical reciprocity propaganda that he had initiated, and had heartily entered into the spirit of it. (Cheers.)

the doctor with a smile, "but although the idea of musical reciprocity sounds airy enough, when you come to think what a stirring thing music is you will agree that in the end it should prove a solid and enduring bond, drawing all parts of our great and growing Empire together." (Cheers.) He went on to say that he was a good colonial, also a British-Canadian—(laughter)—next, a British-Canadian-Australian—(renewed laughter)—further, a British-Canadian-Australian-New-Zealander (great laughter)—and, finally, if he could say it without breaking his jaw, a British-Canadian-Australian-New Zealander-South African. (Loud cheering and laughter.)

"All those who sit in high places," concluded Dr. Harriss, who proved a most fluent and entertaining spokesman, "are only too willing, in my experience here and in other parts of the Empire, to do anything possible to encourage our work, and to give us every chance of perpetuating what I am sure will become something in time to be reckoned with amongst the nations. (Loud cheers.) On behalf of the Sheffield Choir, I thank you most sincerely for this handsome and loving welcome you have given us. We shall go back, after we have been among you some time, with grateful hearts to sing your praises. (Loud cheering.)

The health of the chairman was honoured, and dancing was then resumed, and continued till midnight.

A RESTLESS WANDERER.

PRESENTED TO KING AND QUEEN.

"A lightning conductor! A hare driven from pillar to post! A Wandering Jew brought up to date!"

Dr. Charles Harriss was the speaker over a breakfast table at the Australia, and the sentence was eminently characteristic of his rhetorical style of conversation, rapid, picturesque, informing. This is the musician, and man of affairs, who visited Sydney two years ago, and talked in the same way about his seemingly impossible idea of Reciprocity in music between remote portions of the Empire. The press people of this city were at that time somewhat sceptical, but when immediately the news was cabled of the Canadian tour of 1909, they began to "see something" in the musical mission of its enthusiastic promoter. Now he is here, Dr. Coward is here, and the Sheffield Choir is here! Having regard to the enormous cost of the project, it is all rather wonderful.

"Passing over such trifles as the Hunted Hare and the Wandering Jew," remarked the musical critic of the "Herald," "Why and wherefore that term 'lightning conductor?'"

"Why, sir? Simply because I conducted the Sheffield Choir in Canada on April 6, and in America April 21, then on May 12 I conducted the Imperial Choir of 5000 voices in London, on June 19 I shall be with the Sheffield Choir in Sydney, Australia, and on June 27 in the Dominion of New Zealand, at Auckland! I may tell you that up to the last few hours I had no idea whether I should be on the spot to meet Dr. Henry Coward at Sydney Heads to-day, or whether I should be two thousand miles behind in the race against time. It all happened in the following way: After this our second Canadian tour, we enjoyed a triumph in Cincinnati, the great American Oratorio Festival centre, and next in Chicago we sang before nearly 5000 people at the Theodore Thomas Orchestral Hall, Chicago, where 'Gerontius,' under Sir Edward Elgar, was one of the most interesting events of our stay. Whilst there I received a cabled command to conduct my Imperial Choir at the Crystal Palace, and I then started on the headlong career which has landed me here just on time to-day."

What was the occasion of the command?

"Well, it was the official opening of the Festival of Empire and Pageant of London at the Crystal Palace by the King and Queen. Their journey to the station from Buckingham Palace was one of semi-State, the streets being lined with troops, and at the Crystal Palace their arrival was proclaimed by fanfares interchanged between two groups of 12 trumpeters placed in opposite galleries of the transept. As soon as these fanfares ceased their sonorous sound, I raised my baton, their Majesties entered, and the massed voices, supported by an orchestra of 100 players, and military bands, numbering 400 players, launched over those vast aerial spaces the imposing strains of the National Anthem. An audience of 70,000 people joined in the cheering, and when my own voice began to fail me, I suddenly remembered that all my sopranos and tenors and altos and basses would be as hoarse as ravens for the programme before them! Yes, this Imperial Choir had been in training in divisions, consisting of 52 separate city and suburban choirs, each with their own conductor. On my arrival I rehearsed them in regiments, of rather more than 1000 each for North, South, East, and West London, and then took them altogether, massed for one final practice. This great choir was called into being by me some years ago for patriotic occasions, indirectly associated with charity. The proceeds of the Festival of Empire Concert now in question were for the King Edward VII. Hospital Fund, but I am oblivious of results, as I got away from London ahead of the press notices, and have seen nothing beyond a snapshot of myself conducting the choir, which I picked up quite by chance at Port Said, where I happened to buy a 'Daily Graphic.' After the concert I was presented to their Majesties in the King's Tea Room, and I made use of that illustrious moment to thank the King, in the name of all the choral societies of Canada, Australia, and New Zealand, for bestowing his patronage upon a movement which placed them in touch with other subject singers who stood a little nearer his throne, maybe, but were not more ready to defend it than they.

"My arrival in Sydney to-day depended upon the punctual performance of all the details of this great function at Sydenham, and after that there was the presentation, and my little speech, which worried me heaps more than the conducting, and then the journey to my hotel, which I reached at seven, the express from Charing Cross for Brindisi, at nine, and, at last, 'once aboard the lugger'—meaning the Marmora—I was safe from pursuit.' At Charing Cross, by the way, a breathless messenger from the printer's handed me a parcel of 250 copies of "The Crowning of the King," an ode which I have set to music for chorus and orchestra. The absolutely first performance of this patriotic ode will take place at the Empire Concert in Sydney.

"The Sheffield Choir's reason for coming is because they one and all wished to come, ardently desired to greet their kinsmen of the Empires beyond the seas, were fully determined to return home again with nothing but bright memories of their stay. The preparations made to welcome their coming have far exceeded my modest expectations. They were, indeed, generous; and in thanking the City of Sydney, I must not forget to name Mr. H. N. Southwell, whose organising talent has triumphed over innumerable little difficulties. That, as a speculation, the Empire tour must end in a financial loss I am perfectly well aware. I am devoting part of a large fortune to meet the deficit, but that it will swallow up my entire fortune I do not believe for a moment. Should the loss prove to be limited to a few thousands, I shall then set about bringing out English choirs every three years for a triennial festival in the united cause of Empire-patriotism and music. Such is now my mission in life, my hobby, and it absorbs all my energies. By the time I reach my beautiful home in Ottawa in 1912 I shall have travelled 100,000 miles in two years. During the past 52 weeks, indeed, I have only spent two weeks at Ottawa. On that account may I, after all, put in a plea for 'The Hunted Hare and the Wandering Jew?'"

CHAT WITH DR. COWARD.

HOW HE FORMED HIS CHOIR.

THE SECRET OF CANADA'S PROGRESS.

Dr. Henry Coward, the man who began life as a cutler's apprentice, won the highest prizes in his trade at Sheffield, and in middle life devoted himself to music, matriculated at Oxford University, and there secured the degree of doctor of music, subsequently winning fame as one of the great chorus masters of the United Kingdom, entered upon his brief but busy career in this State yesterday.

Chatting about his past doings and intentions for the future the new conductor began by explaining that the present Empire tour of the choir began on March 17, and that they had been almost ceaselessly travelling ever since. The 200 singers appearing at the festival this week were drawn from the famous choirs of Sheffield, Leeds, Huddersfield, and Newcastle. These Yorkshire choruses were generally recognised as the finest England could produce, and they frequently visited London. In fact, only last week Sir Henry Wood had been conducting a Leeds choir at Queen's Hall in Bach's "Passion Music" ("Saint Matthew"), whilst a Huddersfield choir had just represented England at the International Conference of Musicians, of which Mr. Balfour, leader of the Opposition, was president. From the four cities mentioned more than 500 singers were personally examined by him, and ultimately 200 came up to a very high standard in vocal quality and musicianship, including sight reading, mostly on the tonic-sol-fa system. This was now recognised as by far the best, and even so conservative an authority as Sir Walter Parratt had now consented to become president of the Tonic-sol-fa College. The Sheffield Choir, as appearing at the Sydney Town Hall, would be constituted as follows:—66 sopranos, 52 altos, 42 tenors, and 37 basses, total 197. The training for the tour had been carried on by himself in the most arduous manner by sections in each city interested, and then unitedly once a week until a repertory of about 160 pieces had been acquired. He considered it now the finest choir he had ever conducted. It was drawn from many different social classes, for the most part from people whose business could be carried on by relatives during their absence, but it also included some singers of the highest general education, and a score who were artisans. One of these, as they steamed down the harbour, joyously recognised H.M.S. Powerful, and explained that some years ago he helped to fashion her cranks and shafts at the factory.

An inquiry as to the relative warmth of the reception accorded the Britons in America elicited the astonishing information that it was, if possible, more enthusiastic than in Canada. "We opened at St. John's," continued Dr. Coward, "and then visited Montreal, and you have heard all about our visit to Parliament Houses, Ottawa, where we were invited to sing to the members, and were warmly cheered. Crossing over the border at Niagara, we gave concerts in the United States at Rochester, Buffalo, Detroit, Cleveland, Columbus, Chicago, Cincinnati, and other centres, and everywhere received a tremendous welcome. At Columbus the House of Representatives suspended its sittings to hear us sing, and Governor Harman—the Democratic candidate for the Presidency of America—delivered a splendid speech from the Speaker's chair, and an official vote of congratulation was recorded in our honour. There, and again at St. Paul (Iowa), the Governor called upon us publicly to sing "God Save the King" out of sympathy with our flag, and I assure you we all felt very close in heart to our American cousins, many of whom refer to England as "the old country," just as you do in Australia. Their financial support was equally hearty, so that at Waterloo crowds drove in to our concert from far afield, and an audience of 6000, probably as large as the entire town, attended. Americans have a great admiration for British law, and the inflexible administration of justice under our flag, and this fact largely accounts for the vast number of people who have emigrated from the United States into Canada. Recently, as you know, the Sitting Bull Indians crossed into American territory. There was some trouble, and 400 United States troops ushered them back again into British Columbia, where the Canadian escort consisted of—a sergeant and two constables! There was a great deal of good-humoured talk over this illustrative incident."

"What is the secret of Canada's progress?"

"Well, if you travelled there, you would see at once. It is this. They regard vacant tracts of land, worth, say, £1 an acre, as certain to become worth £10 an acre if they can persuade a crowd of good folk from Europe to settle on it. And they do persuade them. The poor settlers of 15 years ago have become rich from the natural increase of this process. When Australians get firmly hold of the same idea, their wonderful country will become more wonderful still. What we Sheffield people want to do is to see the land. We don't want only to see the harbour, superb though it is, because we have other ideas than those of a mere holiday picnic. We have moneyed people in our ranks, and keen business people in our ranks, and some of the latter, though not wealthy themselves, are agents for others at home who are. Our stay is short, and many generous arrangements have been made, and I hope these may happily include a few motor trips, or some such, of two or three hours, either morning or afternoon. In Canada, at Saskatoon, a settlement of 36 inhabitants five years ago, and now of 20,000, they took us out 30 or 30 miles one day, and several of our number bought allotments straight out. Others have similar plans in view; and I intend myself to invest a thousand pounds over there as soon as I can attend to the matter. All this is not music, but it has sprung naturally from the subject of the reciprocal advantages arising from such a tour as this.

"To-morrow your people will hear us in the opening oratorio of our festival, the "Messiah," in which we shall do our best, thoroughly accepting as well established the high excellence of your own choral and orchestral societies. In a very friendly spirit we come, learning many things wherever we go, and sowing the good seed of Empire knowledge in the old country on our return. We are bringing with us a group of approved soloists from England, namely, Misses Jennie Taggart and Maud Willby, Misses Gertrude Lonsdale, already a favourite artist in Australia, and Alice Heeley, Messrs. Henry Turnpenny, and Wilfrid Virgo, Robert Charlesworth, and Robert Chignell, and Lady Norah Noel. Mr. J. Edward Hodgson will be organist, and the festival orchestra has been trained by Herr Slapoffski."

TO-NIGHT'S CONCERT.

Business at the box office at Paling's for to-night's concert at the Town Hall was exceedingly brisk yesterday. The booking clerks were kept busily employed throughout the day, and when the office closed Mr. Southwell had the satisfaction of knowing that over £400 had been paid for seats. This he considers to be emphatic evidence of public interest in the enterprise, and as an assurance of a most successful season.

The vice-regal reserve at to-night's concert will be occupied by the Lieutenant-Governor and Lady Cullen, Vice-Admiral King-Hall and Mrs. King-Hall, the Acting Premier and Mrs. Holman, and the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress.

CONCERT IN BRISBANE.

BRISBANE, Monday.

A crowd of over 5000 people gathered at the Exhibition Ground on Saturday afternoon to hear the first concert in Australia by the Sheffield Choir. Dr. Coward had never led his forces in the open before, and it was rather unfortunate for the experiment that a strong westerly wind was blowing. The concert was largely a musical expression of patriotism. In a well-selected programme particularly fine was Knyvett Stewart's "Bells of St. Michael's Tower." It was fitting that the first performance should have been given in conjunction with the champion choir and champion band of Australia (Ipswich, Cambrian, and Brisbane Municipal Band taking a noteworthy part). A brilliant audience gathered in the exhibition hall in the evening. It was a keen disappointment to many that Brisbane was not permitted to hear the choir in one of the great inspiring works, but, nevertheless, a fine miscellaneous programme was given. The work of the choir was heard to much better advantage than in the afternoon, and the audience was roused to a high pitch of enthusiasm. The solo work was strikingly successful.

THE WEATHER.

LIGHT TO MODERATE RAINS.

Light to moderate rain was recorded generally, except in the northern border districts and along the coast, but only scattered in parts. Kiandra received the greatest amount, 132 points, being the result chiefly of snow. Low temperatures and squally winds were still the prevailing feature.

The lowest readings were:—19 at Kiandra, Kosciusko 22, Warialda 23, Queanbeyan 25, Crookwell 28, and Mount Victoria and Katoomba 30 degrees. The highest day temperature was 67 at Manning Heads and Kempsey, while the majority of the readings were in the fifties and forties (degrees).

BATHURST.—The prospect of further snow disappeared on Monday, and fine weather set in.

BYRON BAY.—Very cold westerly winds were experienced on Monday. Bush fires are prevalent in many parts of the district. A little rain would improve the weather conditions.

CLIFTON.—Very strong west to south-west gales were experienced here on Monday, with a very heavy easterly swell.

LITHGOW.—After a spell of extreme cold, accompanied by snow, sleet, and piercing westerly winds, the weather moderated on Sunday night, and Monday was comparatively fine and warm.

MILLTHORPE.—A very heavy fall of snow occurred here on Saturday. All sign of previous snow had cleared away when about 8.30 p.m. it commenced to snow very heavily. In about an hour the whole of the surrounding country was covered in a mantle of white, and in the moonlight it had a very picturesque effect. Snow continued to fall throughout the night and the greater portion of Sunday. About 4 or 5 inches must have fallen. Conditions on Monday were fine. The Canobolas mountains were entirely covered in snow.

MOLONG.—High winds with heavy rain and sleet prevailed on Saturday night, Sunday, and Monday. On Sunday morning there was a fall of snow, the first for years, but the ground being wet from the rain it did not remain long. A lot of water is coming into Molong rivulet. It is bitterly cold.

OBERON.—Heavy snow has fallen the past three days. The country is covered a depth of 4in to a foot.

TARANA.—Bitter cold westerly winds, accompanied with sleet and snow, have prevailed for a week.

BAD "GET-UP."

TRADE WITH DUTCH EAST INDIES.

Australian manufacturers have in the past been frequently reproved for falling behind in the matter of packing and dressing their goods. The Government Trade Commissioner in the East (Mr. J. B. Suttor) has recently written in strong terms to the Government on the subject. He states that shippers here are gaining an unenviable reputation in the Dutch East Indies for carelessness in the matter of quality and "get up" of certain products, and he advises that it is necessary that this state of things should be remedied if our trade is to expand. Mr. Suttor gives figures in his report for last year, showing the trade done by Australia with that part of the East. The imports were valued at £21,670,193, of which Australia supplied goods to the value of £327,019. The exports totalled £35,974,996, out of which £1,338,114 came to Australia. The bulk of the trade is in the hands of the Netherlands, the Straits Settlements, and Great Britain. Australia's share works out at 1.50 per cent. of the total imports, and 3.71 per cent. of the total exports. Australia supplies 9.23 per cent. of the food supplies imported into the Dutch East Indies.

The imports to the Indies are of considerable importance to the Commonwealth. Australia heads the list with flour (£158,781), horses (£5100), and fresh fruits (£3921). Biscuits to the value of £12,279 were sent, butter to the value of £49,382, bacon £4048, fresh meat £3181, cattle £2054, coal £56,888, and leather £2882.

Considering that we have a subsidised line of steamers carrying goods direct, Mr. Suttor does not regard the figures as satisfactory. He points out the importance of Australia being represented at the ports by some firm handling Australian goods only.

BALMORAL TRAMWAY.

CREMORNE VEHICLE FERRY.

MINISTER FOR WORKS AT NORTH SHORE.

SOME STRONG COMMENTS.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Griffith) paid a visit yesterday to Mosman for the purpose of inspecting the rival routes suggested for the proposed tramway extension to Balmoral Beach. He later in the day inspected sites at Neutral Bay and Cremorne which were proposed as admirably suited for wharf purposes in connection with a new vehicle service.

The Minister was received at the Mosman Town Hall by Dr. R. Arthur, M.L.A., the Mayor of Mosman (Alderman E. Macdonald), and a number of local aldermen and prominent residents interested in the Balmoral tram.

It is nearly 10 years since a movement was initiated to extend the present tramway to Balmoral Beach, which during that period of time has gained in popularity as a place of holiday resort. Several Ministers have been urged to undertake its construction, but through most of the time there has been a local division of opinion as to what route should be adopted. A section favoured an extension from the Military-road down Mandalong-street to the beach; another a line down Raglan-street; and yet another an extension from Avenue-road along the Middle Head-road, through a portion of the military reserve, and down an easy grade to the beach somewhere in the vicinity of the present septic tank reserve. The late Mr. E. W. O'Sullivan favoured the latter route, which would provide not only for the needs of residents and tourists, but also for military purposes of transport. He, however, went out of office before commencing the work, and an application was made to his successor to redeem the pledge previously given to grant tram communication with the beach. Mr. C. A. Lee was impressed with the necessity for the work, but asked those moving in the matter to leave the question of route to be decided by departmental experts. As a result surveys were made, and the route suggested by the officers of the department was a variation of all that had been previously proposed. It was suggested that a deviation be made at the junction of Military and Avenue roads, running along the Middle Head-road to Gordon-street, and down that thoroughfare to vacant land, through which it could descend to the water level in easy curves. The Ministry of which Mr. Lee was a member, however, went out of office without giving any effect to the proposal, and still Balmoral remains without its tram. Representations have lately been made to the present Minister for Works, and in redemption of a promise Mr. Griffith yesterday visited the district, so that he might personally inspect the various routes.

A visit was first made to the Gordon-street and Stanton-street routes. He was then driven along the Military-road, through the military reserve, to a point at which it was once proposed to turn round, and by easy grades reach the water level. The advantages or disadvantages of the two routes were pointed out, and the Minister was an attentive listener, but made no remarks as to the rival merits of the proposals, beyond intimating that he would be largely guided by the reports of the expert officers of his department.

The party then drove to Neutral Bay, and at the head of Shell Cove inspected a site which was suggested as an admirable one upon which to erect a vehicle ferry dock, and thus provide an alternative route for this class of traffic to those existing between Dawes Point, Bennelong Point, and North Sydney. It was pointed out that the cost of resumption would be slight, and that access would be gained to the heights by fairly easy grades. To the eye the rocky nature of the foreshores seemed to justify a remark which fell from the lips of the Minister, that it would cost £5000 a year to maintain the road. The spot is certainly deserving of consideration, as the trip would be a well-sheltered one, and considerably nearer than the proposed wharf at Cremorne.

Over rocky country, and through an abundance of undergrowth, the party made its way to Cremorne Point, where work is proceeding in connection with the Cremorne passenger ferry and tram. This point has been suggested as a good and suitable one for the terminus of a new vehicle ferry from Sydney, and it is urged that, beyond relieving the congestion on the two existing lines, it would benefit a large percentage of the traffic between the city and the north side of the harbour. The site was closely inspected by the Minister, who also showed great interest in the wharf and tramway work proceeding at the spot.

Mr. Griffith, though a keen observer, had very little to say, but when certain matters relating to the new Cremorne tram and wharf were mentioned, he said: "The longer I am in the department, and the more I know of it, I find that it is run by certain companies, and this company appears to be the worst of them all. The more I look at this work now being carried out, it seems to me that every mistake it was possible to make has been made." These outspoken remarks were endorsed by many of those present, who considered that the safety and convenience of residents had not received the consideration they should have received at the hands of the department.

The Minister promised to give careful consideration to the views placed before him, and have reports made before arriving at any conclusion.

DIFFERENTIAL TREATMENT.

NAVAL OFFICERS' PAY.

MILITARY OFFICERS AGGRIEVED.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Great dissatisfaction has been caused amongst the officers of the Commonwealth military forces by the promulgation of the rates of pay and allowances for officers in the Commonwealth naval forces. It is not that they think these rates are too high or too liberal, but they feel greatly aggrieved that while the naval forces have been dealt with properly, the military forces have been given niggardly and discouraging treatment.

The last important military regulation gazetted was one reducing the retiring ages of officers in the military forces, and compelling them to vacate their posts at unexpectedly early dates, and go out without pension or compensation, at a time when they are too old to embark on any new profession, and after years of military service have unfitted them for civilian business.

Naval officers are being cared for in a far different fashion. Higher comparative rates of pay are granted them, together with liberal allowances of all kinds, while a system of deferred pay has been inaugurated, which enables every officer on retirement either to provide himself with a substantial annuity, or invest a few thousand pounds in some other way, which will ensure him enough to live upon. Comparisons between the rates of pay and allowances provided for naval officers and those existing for military officers reveal remarkable differences.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLEMENT.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

A young man, Alexander Ironside, has been arrested in Dunedin on a charge of embezzling £700 from the Christchurch branch of the Public Trust Office.

LOSS OF YONGALA.

MARINE BOARD INQUIRY.

BRISBANE, Monday.

The Marine Board this morning continued its inquiry into the loss of the Yongala.

Captain Sim, commander of the Grantala, said he had charge of the Yongala four years ago, and would describe her as a very good sea boat indeed. He had no fault to find with her at all. He had heard outside rumours from people who had never been in her that she was "cranky." While he was with her she encountered several heavy gales across the Bight. On the night of the loss of the Yongala he was coming south with the Grantala, and, finding the weather dirty, put back to Cape Bowling Green and anchored. The wind veered round from SSE to NW, which proved that he was on the right western margin of a right-hand semi-circle cyclone. He did not believe the Yongala went on the reefs. He had formed no idea as to how she met her fate. He did not think it likely that Captain Knight could have taken the inside course between Armit and Gumbrell Islands after passing Dent Island, because he could not have seen the islands. He thought it possible for the Yongala to have run across the vortex of a cyclone, but she might have struck something before getting clear. The weather was very thick that night. Captain Knight gave witness a course inside the islands, but he did not know if it was true, as had been stated by a second officer, that Captain Knight always used that course in all weathers. A few more tons of cargo on one side than on the other would not give the Yongala a list. If the cargo was well stowed it could not shift. Neither could the coal. Where he was on the night of the storm the wind was not travelling more than 70 or 80 miles an hour. The storm was at its worst from 11 o'clock at night till 3 o'clock next morning. There was nothing in the storm, as he experienced it, to make the control of the vessel impossible. He noticed nothing abnormal in the tides and currents. All the ships of the company were well equipped. He did not think the Yongala could have been overcome by the elements alone.

By Mr. O'Shea: The Yongala ranked with the very best boats on the coast. She was very easy to manage.

Wm. Kenneth Saunders, chief officer of the Grantala, said he was for two years second mate on the Yongala. She was a first-class ship, well found in every respect. It was Captain Knight's practice to go inside the islands, except when the weather was very bad. If he could see at all he always went that way. He did go outside on a few occasions, while witness was with him. His opinion was that the Yongala hit something.

Frederick Kirket Blown, chief engineer of the Grantala, said he had been second engineer on the Yongala. He had never known the coal to shift. The ballast tanks filled and emptied independently of each other, so that the ship could be trimmed just as required. The Yongala had an easy roll, and was a good ship in a seaway. There was no question about her having been an excellent sea boat. The machinery was first-class. He knew Captain Knight as a careful and reliable man.

Henry Adamson, superintendent engineer of the Adelaide Company, said the Yongala was built by an excellent firm to good specifications. She had excellent machinery, and all her engine shafting was from 20 to 25 per cent. above requirements, so that it could not break. He never had the slightest fear of her under any conditions. He said her funnel was peculiar, in having been built into the ship. It would have stood alone, even if the guides were blown away. The Yongala was tested for stability as well as speed, the specification requiring the builders to ascertain the centre of gravity experimentally by inclining her, and the curves of stability were to be calculated up to 90 degrees inclination at intervals of not more than 10 degrees, and for five different conditions of loading. This was faithfully caried out in the presence of the representatives of the Adelaide Company. The Yongala had never a break down, nor had there been one with the company's other vessels. He did not think the Yongala disaster could have been due to any mishap to the machinery, which was the strongest he had seen on the Australian coast.

By Mr. O'Shea: The loss of the funnel would not necessarily mean disaster to the Yongala. He came up from Sydney to Brisbane in the Yongala on her last trip. He estimated at the time of the disaster the Yongala had a free board of 11 feet to the weather deck. Witness was in England throughout the building of the Yongala, and saw the specifications carried out by the builders responsible for the design of the ship, which was registered in the highest class of Lloyd's, and remained in that class up to the time of her loss.

Captain Mackay said he thought the board were perfectly satisfied as to the stability of the ship.

Edward Northcote, general manager of the Adelaide Company and a master mariner, said when the pigiron was placed in No. 2 hold of the Yongala for the Western Australian run he was not concerned about her stability, which had been established by the experience of several voyages. It was put in to make the vessel more comfortable, and to increase her draught when returning from the west without cargo. It was found it increased her draught six inches forward and one inch aft, and she was less lively in a sea way. The iron was removed when the ship was placed on the east coast, because sufficient cargo was obtainable. The masters of the company's boats had instructions on no account to race. Captain Knight was one of the most experienced men in the service, and enjoyed the company's perfect confidence. He was a particularly cautious man. The Yongala had less superstructure than most modern ships. In the absence of facts he hesitated to express an opinion which would be academic as to what happened to the Yongala.

George Dibble, master mariner, said he was familiar with the coast, and had worked out a theory as to what might have happened the Yongala. He thought Captain Knight followed the usual inside course between Armit and Gumbrell islands, because all the masters he knew took that course in all weathers. After passing Cape Gloucester, six or seven miles, he probably found the weather so bad that he anchored in 10 to 12 fathoms of water. After lying some time his anchors would have dragged till the cables parted and she went on to Nares Rock and sank in a few minutes. If ever found she would be found within a five-miles radius of Nares Rock. He placed her at four and a half to five miles WNW of Nares Rock.

Captain Mackay: Surely the £1000 reward offered for locating her should be sufficient inducement for you to try to find her.

Captain Dibble: I have been in hospital for two months. I have laid my theory and chart before the Treasury.

Captain Mackay: I should strongly recommend you to try to find her. Don't you intend to do anything?

Captain Dibble: Not more than I have done. It's only my opinion.

By Mr. O'Shea: He did not think for a moment that Captain Knight was guilty of negligence. He had done his best under the circumstances by anchoring.

Captain Mackenzie, commander of the Wollowra, said he was in charge of the Yongala for six months. She was the finest sea boat he was ever in. Captain Knight was an officer of wide experience and very capable. In 20 years on the coast he had never gone outside Armit and Gumbrell islands more than three times, and he was confident Captain Knight took the course between the islands because he agreed it was the safest. His information was that the storm in which the Yongala was lost came from the south-west, and not the north-east. He was told the wind was south and south-west all that night. He did not think any ill befel the Yongala in passing the islands, and believed it got past Upstart safely. He thought she was blown away to leeward among the reefs.

Captain Mackay: What? With the wind blowing from the north-east?

Captain Mackenzie: But I don't agree with you as to the direction of the storm.

In further evidence the witness said the passage between the islands was hours off the vortex of the storm, and if anything happened there Captain Knight could have got round Cape Gloucester and lowered his boats. He reckoned the Yongala struck somewhere about Flinders Passage. This cyclone was peculiar, but there were records of cyclones working the wrong way, namely, from the south-west.

Captain Mackay: Since the offering of the reward all the reefs from Flinders to Bowen have been thoroughly searched by the Japanese, and that does away with your theory.

Captain Mackenzie: She would slide back into deep water. She certainly would not capsize. I believe she was blown to the north-east on the reefs. He added that he had seen cyclones in which a ship was helpless, because no one could do anything more than hold on. A drop of rain or sea water would cut the flesh, and one could not even speak.

Mr. Johnston: What would you make your starting point of search.

Captain Mackenzie: Broadhurst Reef.

Captain Mackay: It was well searched for a week.

Captain Mackenzie: It would take six months to properly search. He thought a captive balloon would be of value for the search.

Mr. Johnston: Do you think that part of the coast sufficiently lighted?

Captain Mackenzie: There should be a light on Gloucester or Middle Island.

Captain Mackay said that a great many recommendations had been made for lights, but Gloucester had never been mentioned.

Mr. Johnston: Would additional lights have made any difference that night?

Captain Mackenzie: It all depends what the night was. It might have cleared for a moment just when the light would have been of use.

Captain Mackay: Would wireless have been any good that night?

Captain Mackenzie: No. I think not. In answer to further questions, he said Captain Knight probably kept on thinking he was north of the storm.

The inquiry was further adjourned until to-morrow morning.

PREPARED TO RESIGN.

THE BOTANY ELECTORATE.

MR. PAGE REPLIES TO HIS CRITICS.

Interviewed yesterday afternoon in regard to the resolution adopted by the meeting of the Political Labour Leagues of the Botany electorate, that he should tender his resignation to that body, Mr. F. Page, M.L.A., stated that he did not intend to take any notice of the resolution until such time as it was confirmed by the central executive.

Replying to the remarks passed by Mr. Munger, one of the Labour members in the local municipal council, and an active worker in the local branch of the league, Mr. Page remarked: "Your report states that it was not so much on account of my attitude towards the referendum that they were so much annoyed as it was in regard to the stand I took over several local matters. The construction of the tramway from Botany-road to Rosebery Park is mentioned as a grievance against me. Well, all that I can say is that there is no ground for complaint in that direction. The line was constructed long before October 14 last, and Mr. Munger had plenty of opportunities of going on the public platform and placing his views before the electorate. If he considered he had a grievance it was his bounden duty to have placed his objections before the electors, but he failed to do so. If I was in such bad odour as he would make out, does it not strike one as strange that I should get such a large majority in that particular division. In fact, I got a larger majority than at the previous election, so with all my faults the electors still believe in me.

"As far as the Zetland extension was concerned, I have nothing to charge myself with. A deputation waited upon Mr. Lee when he was Minister for Works, and he informed them that he would not consider the tram extension from the Zetland to King-street, North Botany; that there would be a proposal submitted to the Public Works Committee for a tram from Dowling-street, through the Cooper Estate, and to King-street, North Botany. The present Minister of Public Works (Mr. Griffith) submitted that proposal to the Public Works Committee last session of Parliament, and no doubt that committee will be taking evidence on that particular tram line as well as others.

"I am quite prepared to resign if the Executive Council desire it. The Council endorsed my nomination, and that is the only body I look to. If they say that I have broken my pledge towards the Labour party I will resign. As far as I am concerned, I am leaving it to them and failing any action on their part it is not my intention to put the country to the cost of an election."

INTERSTATE UNIVERSITY BOAT RACE.

WON BY MELBOURNE.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

The twenty-fourth annual Australian Universities eight-oar race was held over a course of about three miles on the Port River to-day. Sydney, Melbourne, and Adelaide were represented, and as Universities have now been established quite recently at Brisbane and Perth, there may be more crews in the near future. The race was inaugurated in 1888, partly to mark the Centennial year of Australia. The first contest took place on the Yarra over a course of two miles on Humbug Reach. Melbourne won easily, with Adelaide second, and Sydney third. Next year Sydney was not able to get a crew, although the race was fixed for the Parramatta, consequently the contest took place on the Port River, and Adelaide won from Melbourne. Sydney won on the Yarra in 1890, from Melbourne, and Adelaide was not represented. In the following year the race was for the first time on the Parramatta, and the win went to Sydney, all three Universities being in the competition. In 1892 the "old blues" of Oxford and Cambridge provided a very fine silver cup for a challenge prize, and the first holders were Melbourne. In the following year this University also had the honour to retain the cup, but in the two next years Sydney scored the wins.

Adelaide was not able to get a crew in 1894, and was unrepresented in 1899 and 1901. Adelaide won in 1896, Sydney in 1897 and 1898, and Melbourne in the following year. The contests have been very interesting to University men in Australia and England—indeed, it is one of the few fixtures in Australian amateur rowing which find a place in records of foreign rowing in English sporting newspapers. Adelaide won last year on the Yarra, and the scores to date are Sydney 13, Melbourne 8, and Adelaide 3. The course is three miles in Sydney on the Parramatta, 3½ miles on the Yarra at Melbourne, and three miles on the Port River at Adelaide.

The water was beautifully smooth. There was practically no wind, and the tide was in favour of the oarsmen. Melbourne won by one and a half length.

At the start Sydney went to the front, but the Melbourne crew quickly overhauled them, and, getting a lead, kept it for practically the whole of the race. Sydney and Adelaide kept level for about half a mile, after which Sydney drew away. Melbourne covered the three miles in 16m 29s. Sydney was a length and a half away second, while the Adelaide crew, who were disorganised on account of one man not being able to take his place in the boat and having to be replaced by an emergency, thus causing the positions of the others to be altered, finished seven lengths behind Sydney.

Melbourne.—C. C. Halkyard, 10st 4lb; S. P. Little, 11st; A. F. Dobson, 10st 10lb; F. H. Moran, 11st 8lb; H. Rabling, 11st; J. L. Doubleday, 12st 4lb; H. Ross-Soden, 12st 9lb; C. S. Steele, 11st 3lb; F. L. Gill (cox) ... 1

Leaving Fremantle on the 3rd inst, a fine run was made to Albany. From the latter port to Adelaide the time occupied was slightly over 65 hours, which works out at an average speed of 16 knots for the run. She experienced fine weather with smooth seas until nearing the island of Crete, when a moderate easterly gale was encountered, which lasted about 24 hours, after which fine weather prevailed to Port Said, at which place she arrived May 16. A somewhat tedious passage was made through the Suez Canal. For some days of the passage from Colombo to Fremantle unsettled cloudy weather, with heavy rain and moderate wind, was met with, which freshened to strong ESE winds, accompanied by heavy rains and considerable sea and swell. The vessel reached Fremantle on 6th inst, and left the same day. She had a SW swell to Cape Borda, arriving at Adelaide on Saturday.

CELTIC RACE FROM LIVERPOOL.

The ship Celtic Race, 125 days out from Liverpool, which arrived in Port Jackson last night, anchored in Chowder Bay with a cargo of general merchandise. She had a pretty fair passage until crossing the Australian Bight. There she encountered heavy weather, during which one of the boats was washed away, and some amount of damage was sustained to deck fittings. The vessel passed Cape Otway on Saturday, and made a smart run up, aided by the wind. In the haze she passed some miles to the northward of Sydney Heads.

R.M.S. ZEALANDIA.

Zealandia, R.M.S., left Vancouver on May 19 at 1 p.m., and berthed at the Orient Wharf yesterday at 4.45 p.m. Fine weather prevailed throughout the voyage to Brisbane, except that at Smoky Cape the vessel had to face a strong south-west gale and heavy sea. OIL v. COAL.

Oil-burning vessels are fast becoming popular in America, says the "New York American." Vessels of this character are frequent callers at New York, and every week brings a report of more vessels being converted from coal burners to oil burners. Especially is this the case on the Pacific Coast, where the Pacific Mail Steamship Company has converted three of its big freighters to oil burners at an estimated saving of 100,000 dollars a year. Seven big passenger vessels of the same line also will be altered if the oil-burning experiment with the freighters bears out the estimate.

Moana, from Wellington and other N.Z. ports.
Atua, from Auckland, Tonga, Samoa, and Fiji.
Sangola, from Calcutta, via ports.

NEW ZEALAND LINERS.

The new twin-screw cargo steamers Rangatira and Pakeha, which were added to the Shaw, Savill, and Albion Company's fleet during 1910, having fully answered expectations, a new steamer of the same type, to be called Waimana, has been ordered from Messrs. Workman, Clark, and Co., Ltd., Belfast, and is to be completed at the end of August. She will be jointly owned with the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, Ltd.

LEAVING THE BRIDGE.

The report of the Court of Inquiry held at Durban into the loss of the steamer Tottenham, on the island of Juan de Nova, in February last, contains several points of interest. More especially is the action of the third officer deserving of close consideration by shipmasters, having regard to the fact that it was almost on all-fours with the procedure of the second officer of the steamship Othello when she stranded on the Indian coast last August. At sea a vessel is "never to be left without an officer on the bridge," says a prominent instruction issued by the North of England Protecting and Indemnity Association. It is added, an officer during his watch believes the ship to be "in imminent danger he is expected to act on his own responsibility, but he must call the captain at the first available opportunity." Such a rule, properly carried out, makes for the safety of life and property. An officer in charge of a vessel's bridge is not to quit it until he is relieved. Should danger threaten he is to act on his own initiative.

BISHOP DOYLE MEMORIAL.

LISMORE, Monday.

The ceremony of blessing the Bishop Doyle memorial bells yesterday was attended by a large crowd in the cathedral grounds, notwithstanding that the day was bitterly cold. A boisterous westerly was blowing all day. About 2000 people came by special trains from Murwillumbah and Grafton. The river boats from Ballina and Coraki were also crowded. It is estimated that 10,000 people were in attendance, including a great many visitors from the adjoining towns and a few from Queensland.

The ceremony commenced at 10.30, when a procession of the bishops and the clergy marched from the Bishop's house to the tower, Bishop Carroll led the procession. Bishops Dwyer (Maitland) and O'Connor (Armidale), and all the priests of the diocese were present, also the visiting clerics, including the Very Rev. M. J. O'Reilly, C.M. (Bathurst), and the Very Rev. Father Cleary, C.SS.R. The bells were blessed and consecrated on Saturday. After the tower was blessed the procession entered the Cathedral and proceeded to the sanctuary. High Pontifical Mass was celebrated. "The Angelus" rang from the bells. Mr. M'Donald, of St. Mary's, Sydney, being in charge.

The Rev. M. J. O'Reilly preached a sermon on the message of the bells. He referred to the life and work of the late Bishop Doyle. Whenever they heard the bells they would remember him.

Bishop Carroll spoke of the finances. The cost of the bells and tower was £8700, of which the bells cost £1600 at the foundry. The cost landed here was £2100. The tower cost about £6600. The sum received prior to Sunday was £4950, and the collection taken at the conclusion of the Bishop's address, announced this afternoon, brought the total to £8788.

A banquet was held in the afternoon, when several hundred persons attended.

CHOKED AT SUPPER.

William Henry Kebble, 49, a labourer, lately residing at 30 Nithsdale-street, Sydney, died suddenly on Sunday at the residence of Samuel Sykes, Gardeners-road, Kensington. Deceased, who had previously had two glasses of rum, had sat down for a supper of roast pork at about 9.45 p.m., and had just taken a mouthful when he fell back in the chair and died. The body was conveyed to the Morgue, where an internal examination appeared to show that death had resulted from choking of the larynx.

AMUSEMENTS.

ARRIVAL OF MR. C. A. WENMAN.

Mr. C. A. Wenman, producer and general manager of Clarke and Meynell's Opera Companies, arrived in Sydney yesterday morning by Brisbane express, having left the steamer Zealandia in Brisbane. Mr. Wenman has been on a visit to Europe and America in search of plays and artists. In the course of his travels Mr. Wenman succeeded in securing several productions suitable for Australia, and also engaged a number of new artists. He left for Melbourne by last night's express, but returns at the end of the week. During his absence he has travelled in France, England, and America, covering 30,000 miles in 13 weeks from leaving Australia—something of a record.

A TRIP TO HOBART.

The magic carpet of the Arabian Nights was again outrivalled last evening at the Lyceum Theatre, when Mr. C. Spencer took his audience for a trip to Hobart. The new film is entirely of local production, and is undoubtedly equal to any film imported from other countries. Clear, detailed, and taken with a true eye for artistic effect, the pictures leave on the beholder's mind a distinct and coherent impression of the most beautiful and interesting spots in the Isle of Apples. The busy stir of Elizabeth-street, Government House, with its towers, the still, winding reaches of the Derwent River, formed a kind of crescendo of interest; but the sight of the great balloon jibs of a large yacht on Hobart harbour, sailing straight towards the proscenium, aroused the spectators to wild applause.

FINANCIAL.

GERMAN-AUSTRALIAN SHIPPING COMPANY.

The report of the Deutsch Australische Dampfschiffs Gesellschaft for 1910 states that the traffic between Australia and Europe was very brisk in both directions, and the company had frequently to put on extra steamers to meet the demand. A much better trade was also done with South Africa, and with the Dutch Indies the result was satisfactory. Since the autumn of last year the Scandinavian-Australian line has been worked independently by the Swedish-South African line. The service from New York to Australia yielded a fair result, but the traffic from Australia to Boston was very unsatisfactory. Five new steamers were built, and orders for another six steamers have been given out, including three which are being built at Flensburg, two at Geestemunde, and one at Newcastle-on-Tyne. These six steamers are of about 9500 tons carrying capacity, and two of them will be refrigerated. Their names will be Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Fremantle, Brisbane, and Albany. The accounts show that gross earnings amounted to 5,122,099 marks, or £256,155, against £190,826 for the previous year; and after deducting outgoings the balance is £225,507, against £162,789. Depreciation absorbs £147,031, against £102,229 for 1909. The dividend is raised from 7 to 9 per cent., and absorbs £72,000. Other appropriations include £3,924 transferred to the reserve fund, and £2553 paid to the directors. The company has a share capital of £800,000, statutory reserve £63,461, and repairing fund £40,000. The insurance fund stands at £157,435. Liabilities include the 4 per cent. priority loan, £70,000, in addition to current liabilities. The fleet stands at £1,328,316, against £1,220,559 at the end of 1909.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

The business done in the markets yesterday was of a normal character, with a few changes in prices, mostly advances. Linseed oil was firm, in spite of a slight fall in London following on falls in two previous weeks. Little business was done, however, beyond ordinary distributing trade, in which the quotations for B., S., and Co.'s raw was 5/5, and double boiled 5/7. These prices were /1 below Melbourne quotations. Turps was distinctly easier, and prices were lower /1 a gallon all round, the cause apparently being a belief that stocks were heavier than was generally anticipated a few weeks ago, and the lower prices in America. It may be, however, that stocks before the cheap spirit arrives will be found to be actually short, in which case prices will firm. Fifty cases of Pratt's turps sold at 5/6, and for small parcels of Pinetree 5/4 was wanted. Distributing prices were 5/7 and 5/5. A good business was done in locally manufactured zinc, white, at unchanged prices. Altogether the uncertainty regarding the future is having a disturbing effect on business in paint oils. The knowledge that cheaper material is on the way in both linseed and turpentine, and the probabilities of further falls in prices encourages the retailer to live from hand to mouth, and prevents speculation on the part of the merchant. In woolmarking oils and in tar the busy season has now been entered upon. One hundred and fifty drums of Morrison's wool-marking oils sold last week, and 200 drums of Morrison's Stockholm tar, both local productions. The price of the tar has advanced /3 per gallon to 6/3, distributing. Coconaut oil was selling at £41 per ton net.

Most lines of metals were quiet. Tin, in sympathy with the record price in London, advanced sharply, all houses asking 2/3 per lb, a rise of /2 on the former price. Barbed wire, both locally manufactured and imported, was in good demand, and large quantities were sent away to the country. Fencing wire was also in request. Wire nettings remained dull, with only a small outgoing. No change in price was reported.

All lines of Eastern produce were quiet, but there was a steady demand. The only change was in cloves, which were put up /1 per lb to 1/3. Singapore advices showed that for peppers and tapiocas the tendency was upward, and still higher prices were looked for. Rice also was reported high at the centres of production, but locally the price was suffered to remain without change.

Tea was firm, and it would seem that blenders recognised that high prices prevailing the last few months had come to stay for a long time. The auction sale to-day should confirm this view. Private business was done in Ceylons to the amount of 200 packages, at prices up to /11.

The jute market was very quiet. No business was done between merchants. Fifty bales of branbags sold to the country at 4/4½ per dozen. Prices of woolpacks and cornsacks were without change. Regarding woolpacks, a good deal of uneasiness was manifested. Sales to the country should now be proceeding in large quantities, but, so far as can be learned, only small lots have been sent forward to the pastoralists. There exists a suspicion that someone may be supplying the sheep stations unknown to other importers with woolpacks below the market price, but no evidence has yet been forthcoming to turn the suspicion into reality, but what lends colour to the suspicion is that even inquiries for woolpacks have been very few. If the country were holding back hoping for lower prices, inquiries, if not orders should have been received by this time.

For the winter season the demand for all kinds of timber was heavy. Hardwoods were perhaps in better supply. Oregon and Baltic descriptions were without change.

Business in brewers' goods was a little more active than for the past two or three weeks, though prices were without quotable change.

THE TEA POSITION.

IMPORTS INTO AUSTRALIA.

The price of tea paid by the importer, and paid by the blender all over the world, has increased considerably the last twelve months. Within the last few months the retail price has advanced in England, yet in this State no change has occurred. There must be a loss somewhere. The question is, On whom does it fall—the merchant, the blender, or the public? That there can be no reasonable relief from the present high prices for a long time to come is well known to all who have watched the tea trade closely. The production in India may increase a little beyond the great increases which have marked the last few years, but not much, for even in populous India shortage of labour is threatening. Ceylon, it is believed, will also remain at a standstill as far as production is concerned. Calcutta, without doubt, has rapidly improved the output of tea in recent years, this improvement being due to two allied causes—first, the better knowledge obtained of the requirements of the culture of the tea bush, in general treatment, and especially in pruning; and, secondly, the greatly increased use of artificial and natural manures. But as against this there must be put only a small extension of acreage under tea, about 5 per cent., due to the difficulty of procuring labour, and so any increased yield will depend almost wholly on the better cultural methods noted above. Ceylon being so many years ahead of India in the scientific culture of tea, there is not much to be hoped for in the way of heavier yields because of improvements in treatment. Though the Javanese crop is increasing, it is not doing so as rapidly as at one time seemed probable, and every increase is at once taken up by importing countries. Rubber, too, both in Java and Ceylon, proves a greater attraction, not only to capital, but also to labour, on account of more profitable returns. Hence it is another factor which will tend to restrain any increase over present crops. China is not now looked upon as a serious competitor, the public taste having been weaned from the teas of that Empire. With all these facts telling against larger supplies, the consumption of tea throughout the world steadily grows. Our own consumption last year showed an increase of over two million pounds, which is shown in the table of exports from Colombo, Calcutta, and Java to Australia in 1910, 1909, and 1908, prepared by J. Thomas and Co., of Calcutta, as follows:—

	lb.	lb.	lb.
Colombo	23,312,217	24,169,947	22,057,067
Calcutta	10,373,402	7,566,261	8,969,554
Java	1,276,341	701,082	297,229
Total (excluding China teas)	34,961,960	32,437,290	31,355,850

LONDON BUTTER MARKET.

A SUPPORTER OF FORWARD SELLING.

Criticising the manner in which some companies have disposed of their butter on the English market Mr A. Welch, of 141 Fenchurch-street, London, E.C., writes, under date May 12:—

Now that the colonial season is well nigh finished in London, it is as well to look round and see how things have turned out.

The Australians have had a big output, but they have by no means taken advantage of the markets. They were advised early in the season by the so-called committee, who are such great experts, to consign all their goods.

It did not want much seeing at the time that the Australians were in for a huge make, and consequently prices would rule rather low on this side of the water. Therefore, it would have been so much better if they had sold forward, but, of course, according to this energetic committee's account, that is an altogether wrong policy.

We hear from several sources that some of your dairies have had a bad season, and that it is difficult for many of them to make both ends meet. Perhaps it will set them thinking for another season, and be able to see the value of selling their goods week by week. At the moment managers and directors do not appear to be able to see the value of turning their stock over as many times per year as possible.

When the cream and milk are delivered to the factory, the farmer is sometimes paid in the 14 days, sometimes in three weeks and often in a month, so when a manager can tell approximately about the number of boxes he can make per week he should be able to make an offer to somebody for frequent sales, say, say 200 boxes. He could promptly sell them, send them down to Sydney, get his money immediately, and consequently have this money to play with practically for three weeks.

By those means he hardly wants any capital at all to run his factory, and what is more, he is sure of his money. Perhaps he will say there is one big objection that the speculator gets some profit, well, supposing the speculator does, what is that to do with the man who has sold his goods? The man who sells goods wants to know nothing about the speculator's losses.

By the time this letter reaches you the various managers in your State will be coming down to Sydney for their annual week's beanfeast. I hope they will have an enjoyable time, and not forget to put in two hours in the evening listening to the blessings which the so-called colonial committee has showered upon them.

BREADSTUFFS.

The wheat market was weak yesterday, and prices showed a slight easing. Shippers' limit was 3/3, ex trucks Darling Island, and with Adelaide down to 3/2 it was expected that by this morning there would be a further fall. London was cabled dull and lifeless, with a complete absence of buyers. Millers also were not inclined to buy, and would offer no more than 3/4 per bushel for best. At this price about 2000 bags were purchased. No business was doing in parcels.

Flour was quiet and unchanged, nominally at the association quotation of £8/10/. Some flour of lower grade sold for export at £7 3/6 per ton.

At Darling Island yesterday 1088 tons wheat and 79 tons flour were manifested to arrive.

TRADE IN SUSSEX-STREET.

MANY CHANGES.

There were quite a number of changes to be observed in the prices quoted on Monday, and on the whole they were in the nature of increases. Potatoes were quoted on Monday at £8 10s, a very considerable advance on last week's prices, which stood at £7. There were only 3000 bags for Sydney in the last two shipments, and as the quality is generally good and demand very active, there is a very good reason for the advance. Swede turnips were also advanced considerably, being at £5 and a steady sale, which constitutes an advance of something like £2 on last week's quotes. This highly nourishing vegetable is finding very good demand lately, and there are prospects of good trade to be done during the week. Onions were selling very steadily at £4, an advance of 10/ on the prices that were ruling on Friday last, and there is every indication that the prices will sustain the advance throughout the week. Peas were quoted at an improved rate on Monday, and were finding ready sale in most lines though there was not quite so much activity in the lowest grades as in the higher, which is only to be expected. The advances were generally in the neighbourhood of /3 per bushel. Chaff was improved in value on Monday, and there were prospects of a rise when the boats arrive with the new shipments. This forage has been selling very well at the railway for some time past, and the effect of this good demand is being made manifest in "the street." Maize, contrary to the general trend of trade in the produce end of Sussex-street, was easier, and was finding the price of 2/7, meeting with much better attention than has been the case with the eight-penny market; whites were finding buyers at the same price as that given for reds and yellows, and generally there are indications of good steady business being done in this line of trade for some time to come. Other lines of trade found things practically unaltered, but there was no lack of business in any of them, and prospects were generally good.

BUTTER UP.

There was a further advance of 2/ on the price of butter on Monday, and generally there is activity manifest in the best butter trade. Seconds and other lines are absolutely dead, and the only hope for the business in these lines is in decreased supplies. The present increase in the price of butter serves to show the instability of the market as at present conditioned. Some time back there were large accumulations of butter that looked dangerous, and, as matters then stood, there was little prospect of any advance, and the general trend of opinion was that the price would have to come back to bring trade on to a sound footing. The winter had started late, and there were heavy supplies coming in on all sides, with no prospect of substantial decreases. But even the Weather Bureau cannot predict more than a few days ahead, and, as it has turned out, the cold snaps coming late have played up with the milk flow, and a falling off in supplies has resulted. Even as matters stand too much attention is not to be payed to the quick rises that have taken place during the last few days. It is a well-known fact that human beings are, to put it broadly, "panicky," and that where one leads others will follow, and even go farther than the leader. This is what seems to be the case in the butter trade as it now stands, there has been a rise and there are many who fear a still further rise, and as a consequence there has been an increased demand for best butter by those who fear that the end of the week will see the price of butter over the 100/, and who want to get in their supplies at the present rates. Also there has been a lot of buying done to covers orders that were taken a month or so back, and this has aided the demand and the increase of price that has resulted. The cold weather is having a good effect on the quality of the butter coming to hand, and unless further unforeseen circumstances intervene there should be brisk trade done in butter for some time.

There was a remarkable rise in the price of river and railway eggs on Monday, when the price of the former stood at the figures of 1/8 and 1/9, and that of the latter was as high as 1/10. New-laids were very scarce and practically nominal in price, as there were no new-laids to be had. There is a general reluctance on the part of sellers to push the price of the higher-grade article up to the 2/ line, as they see that this will force the retailer to ask 2/3 at the very least for his commodity, and when eggs reach the price of /2½ apiece, they have gone beyond their value as a food, and then enter the domain of luxuries, and it is very well known that a sound trade cannot rest on such a foundation. The quality of best rivers and most railways at the present time is so good that there is practically no advantage to the consumer in taking the higher-priced egg, and the general public are to be advised to forget for a while the magic of the name "new-laid" and turn their attention to "fresh country eggs" without hesitation. Reliable firms of retail grocers will always offer a reliable article for the lower price, and the advantage of the higher-priced egg is practically only imaginary at present. Other lines of trade in the dairy section were unaltered. Bacon was finding very ready sale, and there are prospects of a rise in price, if the price of eggs does not cross the danger zone. Activity is apparent also in ham and lard, and generally the products of the pig are to be found in very good demand, and with a healthy tone prevailing. Best honey, was finding ready sale, but dark and candied were hanging fire considerably. Cheese was active, with hopes of still further animation if present conditions continue, and the quality keeps on improving as it seems to be doing at the present time.

LUCERNE HAY DOWN.

There was a large number of buyers present at the sale at the Redfern yard on Monday, but bidding was not as brisk as it usually is at the beginning of the week. FRUIT MARKETS.

There was a very quiet tone prevailing in the fruit markets on Monday, the boisterous weather of the week-end having a deadening effect on trade. The new shipments of bananas seem to be pointing to a scarcity of that nourishing fruit, and, as there is only a half shipment coming in the next boat, the prices may improve.

Current quotations were:—

HOMEBUSH STOCK MARKET.

SHEEP.

A moderate supply of sheep was forward at yesterday's sales. Out of 17,810 sheep (including lambs) listed for sale from 70 consignors, 16,238 head were penned, as compared with 17,746 head out of 19,468 advised on Monday of last week, from 39 consignors. There were fewer large drafts yesterday than on the corresponding day last week, only two lines of over 1000 being forward, and the bulk of the consignments, as usual, being in lots of 100 to 300 head. The pennings comprised a large proportion of useful quality merinos, with fair wethers, ewes being considerably in evidence. There was a sprinkling of prime and odd small pens of tops, out of fair-sized drafts of both wethers and ewes, carrying early-shorn skins. Among the notable lines of wethers were drafts from J. J. Nolan (Beanbri), W. Lax Willcox (Beanbah), D. Cameron (Trangie), that sold at 19/11 to 20/ per head. In ewes, a line from executors T. Walker (Warren), sold to 17/3; while in crossbreds, wethers and ewes from R. Jardine (Cooma) sold to 19/ and 16/ per head respectively. There was a fair representation of crossbreds, ranging from useful quality to occasional pens of prime. The general run of the sheep was barely up to the average of Thursday last; certainly there were not any inferior ewes forward yesterday, but then there was not such a good showing of extra prime wethers and ewes.

Buyers were in full attendance, including exporters and the Sydney Meat Preserving Company, Limited. The market opened to free competition at firm rates; but the tone generally, was not so strong as on Thursday last, when there was an occasional advance of /6 to 1/ per head. Ewes, especially, were not realising such extreme values as during the best part of last sale day. Quotations: Prime merino w (early-shorn), 17/ to 18/6, late-shorn 16/ to 17/6; extra prime 19/6 to 20/; good merino w and h (early-shorn), 13/6 to 15/6, (late-shorn 11/ to 13/); medium merino w and h 7/6 to 9/6; prime merino e (early-shorn) 13/6 to 15/, extra prime 16/ to 17/3; good merino e 9/6 to 11/; medium merino e 5/ to 7/6; prime xb w and h 17/ to 18/6; extra prime 19/6 to 20/; good xb w and h 13/ to 15/; medium xb w and h 10/ to 11/6; prime xb e and h 14/6 to 15/6; extra prime, 16/ to 17/; good xb e and h, 12/ to 13/6; medium xb e and h, 9/6 to 10/6.

LAMBS.

A fair supply of lambs proportionately to the sheep was penned. Useful trade sorts, both crossbred and merino, formed the bulk of the pennings, with occasional pens of prime and a sprinkling of medium and light. Extra prime were very scarce. A pen of 45 from J. Peard (Curlewis) sold at 15/ per head. There was a good demand for all qualities, and values were without change. Quotations:—Prime woolly lambs and suckers 13/ to 15/; prime shorn lambs and hoggets 10/6 to 12/6; good lambs and suckers 9/ to 11/, medium and light sorts 6/6 to 8/.

CATTLE.

Upwards of 2162 head of cattle were listed for sale from 53 consignors, and 2101 head were yarded. The consignments included two drafts from Queensland aggregating 260 head, the bulk coming from the northern and north-western districts, with sprinklings from the south, and two or three representative drafts from the west. It was a rather mixed yarding, ranging from quite a sprinkling of calves and yearlings to a capital showing of prime medium weight and heavy bullocks. A draft of 122 bullocks from C. and S. Officer Propy., Ltd., Kallara (Louth), trucked at Bourke, was quite the admiration of buyers. They were certainly the best consignment for the number that has been forward for a long while, one large buyer remarking that they were the finest bred lot of shorthorns that he had seen at the yards. They sold up to £10 16/ per head, and averaged £9/4/. There was a fair showing of useful quality bullocks and steers, and good to useful cows and heifers. The market was occasionally weaker than on Thursday last, while at times it was well up to previous rates, closing firm for all useful qualities. Quotations:—Yards prime medium-weight bullocks £8 10/ to £9/5/, yards of prime heavy bullocks £9/15/ to £10/16/; yards prime light bullocks and steers £7/5/ to £8, yards of good bullocks and steers £5/10/ to £6/10/, yards of medium and light bullocks and steers £3/10/ to £4/10/; yards of prime cows and heifers £5 to £5/10/, yards of extra prime £6 to £6/5/, yards of good cows and heifers £3/15/ to £4/10/, yards of rough sorts lower; best light beef 19/ to 20/, heavy beef 17/ to 18/, useful beef 14/ to 16/ per 100lb.

MAGNIFICENT SHORTHORN BULLOCKS AT HOMEBUSH.

Dalgety and Co., Ltd., report having sold in the Homebush market yesterday 130 prime bullocks from Messrs. C. and S. Officer, of Kallara, Bourke, to £10 16/, averaging £9/4/, the three top yards being purchased by Messrs. Thos. Playfair, R. Walker and Sons, and Silvester Bros. These bullocks easily topped the market, and were voted by agents and buyers as the finest lot for weight, quality, and breeding that has been yarded for a very long time.—Advt.

MINING.

SILVER SHARES VERY BUOYANT.

TIN VERY FIRM; COPPER DULL; GOLD QUIET.

With silver stocks yesterday morning it was a case of "Eclipse first: all the rest nowhere." The continued improvement in the prospects of the British Broken Hill, as shown by our Broken Hill correspondent in to-day's issue, caused a buying rush that anticipated the London Stock Exchange. The result was a large number of transactions booked, starting at 28/, or 1/ above Saturday's firm closing rate, and going up to 30/6 at noon.

Naturally enough, other Broken Hill stocks were sympathetically affected, sales being booked in B.H. Junctions at 3/1 (/1½ rise); B.H. Proprietary at 40/3 (1/3 up), and B.H. Junction North at 23/ (or /6 better); whilst B.H. Block 10, B.H. Block 14, pref. and B.H. South Blocks were unobtainable even at Saturday's firm closing rates. Buyers of B.H. Souths, paid and contributing, though offering advanced prices, were not accommodated; whilst firm offers were made for North Broken Hill, but sellers were silent. Buyers of Sulphide Corporation, ordinary, quoted close up to the last sale, but sellers were undeclared.

The copper division was exceedingly quiet, not one transaction being recorded. Partly owing to a slightly better "middle" price for Mount Elliotts on the London Stock Exchange on Saturday, and partly owing to the reassuring statements from the directors, published in the "Herald," the shares steadied. Buyers at 78/ were met by sellers demanding 80/. The statement of the directors about the "creep" in the mine is of a reassuring character, for they state that:—"So far there is nothing which cannot be overcome, and except for postponing the output for two months, no damage is done." Outside steady offers for Queen Bee and Mount Morgans, there was very little strength in the demand for other copper stocks.

Gold stocks were very listless, only two being dealt in, whilst the quotations generally were of a formal character. The phenomenal price ruling for tin was followed by very strong business in Tongkah Harbour Tin and Vegetable Creek Tin at advanced rates.

The market was again active in the afternoon, both silver and copper stocks commanding attention. The former continued the strong movement of earlier in the day, and at the close the market was firm. Tin shares were represented by good business in Tongkahs and Vegetable Creek tin.

MINING NOTES.

The gold won by the Araluen Valley Gold-dredging Company last week was 48oz 15dwt.

Last week the No. 5 west level of the Harden gold mine was advanced a further 10ft, making a total of 202ft. The face assays 3/ per ton over a width of 24ft. The mill ran 72 hours, crushing 160.4 tons. There were cyanided 140 tons of sands, of an assay value of 6/10 per ton.

The Harrietville Gold-mining Company, situated, as the name indicates, at Harrietville, in Victoria, across the border, in the Mount Kosciusko region has recently acquired a quartz reef mine on the Jindera-road, about six miles from Albury. A considerable number of the shares (the company is in 25,000 shares) are held in Sydney. Consequent on a recent change in the management of the mine at Harrietville, work ceased for a time. A new manager having been appointed, the mine has been unwatered, and a rise started on the lode from the bottom level. The directors decided to purchase the mine near Albury on the result of a crushing of half a hundred-weight of quartz taken from various parts, and which gave an average of about 3oz per ton. The manager appointed has been instructed to break and crush a 50-ton parcel of stone from the reef, which ranges from 1ft 6in to 3ft 6in wide, and prospects well.

MINING IN THE STATE.

COFF'S HARBOUR, Monday.

The lode was struck in the Mount Brown copper mine this morning. It is of high grade, and very rich. The shares are very firm.

BATHURST, Monday.

The local broker to the Amalgamated Hill End, Ltd. (Mr. H. C. Slade), who has just returned from Sydney, states that all the initial difficulties in connection with the flotation of that company have been overcome, and that all is now plain sailing. Active mining operations will commence soon. The withdrawals of applications for shares were fewer than anticipated. Two Sydney syndicates have taken up ground on the southern end of the company's leases.

NUNDLE, Monday.

The Travena Gold-mining Company is about to do prospecting work. The Peel dredge pumping machinery arrived to-day. Operations will now be proceeded with to float the dredge. A prospector named Henry has succeeded in locating the old alluvial run in Scrubby Gully.

THE GUNDAGAI FIELD.

NEW DISCOVERY REPORTED.

GUNDAGAI, Monday.

What is stated to be a run of the Mount Parnassus line of country, which in the past gave big gold yields, was applied for to-day by Victor Battye, son of the man who discovered the rich Prince of Wales mine 15 years ago. Battye was fossicking on the brow of a hill overlooking the rifle butts, and in close proximity to the old Asbestos mine, when he came across a reef 40ft wide at the surface. He sank a shaft, and at 16ft came on ferruginous clay slate, showing rich flaky gold, while on the walls spotty gold was in evidence. Mr. J. M. Dodd, well known here in mining circles, looks upon the find as one of importance. The ground will be thoroughly tested.

On Kimo Hill G. Marshall is sinking on the old line of reef which he worked seven years ago. He got several crushings out, which went 1oz 15dwt, when a fire destroyed the timbering of the shaft. The mine was abandoned till some months ago, when Marshall cleaned out the shaft to 20ft, and drove 46ft along a small reef which came out on the surface. He is now sinking a new shaft higher up and getting a little gold, but has great difficulty in dealing with the water.

The one-time rich Prince of Wales mine at Reno, which gave employment to several hundred miners, but closed down about six years ago, has been let on tribute to a Victorian party, who start work next week.

The Long Tunnel mine is still looking well. It is expected that some rich stone will be got out this week.

BRITISH BROKEN HILL MINE.

DIAMOND DRILL IN 74FT. OF PAYABLE ORE.

BROKEN HILL, Monday.

The good development reported from the British mine continues. The diamond drill going west on the 600ft level in the Thompson section is now in 83ft, the last 74ft being in payable sulphides. The core still shows good ore. No assays have yet been taken of the core, so that the silver values are unknown, but the lead and zinc contents are both high. This development is in the southern end of block 16. The easterly development recently reported is in the centre section. They are distinctly separate.

IMMIGRATION.

BOOM IN OVERSEA TRAFFIC.

When the mail left London quite a boom was being experienced in emigrant traffic to Australia and New Zealand, and the resources of the steamship lines were being taxed to the utmost to cope with the demand for berths. There was, in fact, not sufficient accomodation at the moment for all the passengers offering, and this applied particularly to Western Australia. There the easy terms and grants of land free to settlers had proved so attractive during the last year or two that immigrants, having surmounted the initial difficulties, were (says "Lloyd's Weekly" summary) sending home for their wives and children, causing thereby a great demand for passenger space. "A great deal is being written just now about the exodus from Scotland and its cause, real or supposed. It is surprising, however (this paper goes on to say) that comparatively little notice is taken in this connection of the extraordinary and powerful attractions held out to labourers and small farmers by the Australian Governments and their agents. Considering that a free grant of 160 acres of land is made to settlers with assisted passages and advances of capital are forthcoming on ridiculously easy terms, it is by no means wonderful that emigration on a large scale to the Antipodes should have set in."

GOLF.

THE MUNICIPAL LINKS.

READY NEXT YEAR.

THE BEGINNING OF GOLF IN SYDNEY.

THE FIRST GOLF COMPETITION.

In view of the fact that the City Council proposes to establish municipal links on part of the old Sydney common, or, as it is better known to-day, the southern portion of Moore Park, it is interesting to recall the fact that Sydney's first golf course was on another portion of the same park.

The game was instituted in New South Wales about 1884, under the patronage of Mr. Alexander Stuart, M.L.A., himself a native of Edinburgh, and the Australian Golf Club was formed, the first competition being held on July 20, 1884, two silver cups being the trophies. Unfortunately, the weather was wet in the morning, and evidently golfers were not as keen then as now, for only nine competitors appeared in the afternoon when the rain had cleared off.

An account of the competition, which appeared in one of the newspapers of the day, mentions the fact that one of the players was fortunate enough to secure as a caddie a son of a well-known professional in Scotland, to wit, Bob Kirk, and, for the benefit of the uninitiated, explains that a caddie is a club-carrier, and, where competent, an exponent and guide to the game. Present-day golfers would, perhaps, define the word differently, and quite probably the pioneers of the game here did also after a round or two.

We read that the course had been well chosen, and that money had been spent in the formation of the requisite putting greens, but it was expected that the occupation would only be temporary, as, indeed, it was. Evidently the club had its early troubles, for we find: "If a new and permanent course has to be selected so that players may be free from straying men, women, and children, and the never-failing larrikin, it is to be hoped the change will give the club an equally suitable place of ground."

The course was of 6 holes, they being played over twice in the opening competition. The tee for the first hole was "near the intersection of the tram siding to the association ground," the hole itself being on top of the hillock facing the ground. The second hole was of 260 yards or so, and was "towards the neighbourhood of the tramway, and a road and second tram siding formed by no means easy hazards. A 450 yards hole followed, "but here again," to quote the account, "the necessary hazards come in to bother the careless, and while a 'sliced' ball from the tee will assuredly land the best in a capacious waterhole, that danger passed, and a fair second drive effected, the third or fourth requires considerable power and accuracy, or the marsh will spoil the players' chance of a good hole." The fourth hole of 300 yards had the marsh as a hazard for the drive, while the fifth to the foot of the hill again crossed the "stony tramline" and the road. The sixth and last hole ran along the side of the tramline to somewhere near the first tee.

The competition was over 12 holes, and the first cup was won by W. R. Campbell, M.L.A., who, with an allowance of 38 strokes returned a card of 65. The second cup went to G. J. Lewis, handicap 26, with a card of 70 net. A. Gray, a member of the Royal and Ancient Club, started from scratch, but could not do better than 76. Some liberal handicaps were allowed, notably 50 strokes to H. C. Dangar.

What strides the game has made since those early days! There are now probably 4000 golfers in New South Wales, and the number is increasing each week. When history repeats itself, and the new municipal links are opened, which it is expected will be in time for next season, it will mark the greatest forward step since the formation of the first links in 1884. It will popularise the game as nothing else could do, or has done, for it will make golf available to the public, and that without injury to the interests of the established clubs.

N.S.W. AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP.

C. H. Reading beat H. M. Stephen in the first round of the New South Wales amateur golf championship by 2 up and 1. Reading was 2 up at the end of the morning round, and in the afternoon increased his lead to 4 up at the 29th hole. Stephen, however, won the next three holes. A win to Reading at the 33rd, and a half at the 34th, made Reading dormy 2, and he won the match on the 35th green, after laying Stephen a stymie. Both played good golf.

MARRICKVILLE CLUB.

The sixth annual report of the Marrickville Club has been issued, and shows that the club has had a good year. The membership stands at 98; 18 members joined within the 12 months. One pleasing feature is that the club has now a greater number of active playing members than ever before, and consequently has had a busy time in catering for them. The report showed a credit balance of £104 18s 2d on the year's working. The club premises and grounds have been well looked after during the year, and many improvements have been effected. During the year 81 matches were played, of which 41 were won, 37 lost, and 3 drawn; the points scored being 6088 for and 7092 against—a deficiency of 164 points. The club entered a pennant and two B teams (10 rinks) in the association competition. The pennant team won their section, and was one of the first eight clubs, being subsequently beaten by City. The B2 team also won in their section, and reached the semi-final, and the B1 team tied with Warringah for first place in their section, and in the play-off lost by 1 point. Several of the members had represented the State in interstate matches.

As usual, several club competitions were carried out. The Cousins trophy was won by T. Donnelly, the Blackwood trophy by A. C. Gill, the winter rink competition by Messrs. Laverack, C. M'Coy, Hardy, and Seymour; the holiday rink contest by Messrs. Thornley, Groundwater, Renwick, and Kelleher. The championship of the club was secured by a promising young player, Mr. J. MOTOR NOTES.

A Niagara marine motor, to be installed in a specially designed hydroplane, is reported as on order by Mr. Jas. Clark, of Brisbane, who purposes contesting the motor boat speed championship of Australasia during the next season. To date this makes three boats in the field for the ribbon, and the events should prove of more than usual interest. It is understood that Mr. Clark has already thoroughly tested the merits of Niagaras, and feels every confidence in his selection of this make for the purpose in view.

Although the Chalmers car has only been a few months on this market, the agent, Mr. Roy W. Sandford, is well pleased with his new venture, and reports a brisk demand, both in New South Wales and Victoria. In this State, among recent buyers, are—Messrs. J. O. Fairfax, of Sydney, and A. Stockman, of Temora, both of whom have purchased the latest models, 30-h.p. Chalmers, fitted up to their own specifications. It is worthy of mention that Mr. Squire Morgan, of Scone, has purchased five Chalmers cars in the last few months. The little Empire runabout is also going well, and among recent buyers are Messrs. Blackett and Co. (Coonable), L. G. Thompson (Strathfield), E. Dodd (Goulburn), and Dr. Machattie (Bathurst). Mr. Sandford is more than satisfied with the list of purchases lately recorded for the Chalmers, as the majority are motorists of considerable experience in the car world.

A very interesting machine to those in the motor industry is an automatic bevel gear-cutting machine, lately installed by the B. and B. Co. In working order once it is set to any size of wheel or angle of gear, the machine works with extreme accuracy. For bevel gear-cutting it is claimed to be the "last word," and the only one in this State.

J. S. Leeds and Co., stock and station agents, of Orange, have just purchased a 12-h.p. Imperia runabout from Moulder Bros., and their last report was that they ran through from Sydney to Orange in 8 hours on the trial trip, and that the car was giving every satisfaction.

Messrs. Davies and Fehon are upholding the reputation the Renault cars enjoy. This is being borne out by the fact that, although deliveries have only been available during the last ten days, they have almost exhausted their stock. Amongst the buyers are Messrs. Hayes Bros., of Coonamble, and Mr. J. Gordon, of Tumut. Both these gentlemen have bought the 1912 4-cylinder model, and are now well on their way home. Mr. R. Cust, of Waverley, also has a 10-12, while Mr. H. L. Mann and Dr. M'Master, of North Sydney, have 8 hp. Messrs. Davies and Fehon are now unpacking another lot of the 10-12 and 9-16 models, in both two-seated and touring bodies, also a shipment of the Crossley and Metallurgique.

Angus and Son report good business in their motor agencies, especially the "Armstrong" and the "Flanders," and state that they disposed of 16 of these cars in a little under a fortnight. A 15-9-h.p. Armstrong recently purchased by Messrs. Stubbs and Co., stock and station agents, put up a good record in the Wyalong and Cootamundra districts and across country to Bourke. During the trip the car was loaded up with five passengers and luggage, spare cases of petrol, spare wheels, tools, etc., estimated at two tons net weight. They were never in trouble during the whole trip, and in the black soil outside Wyalong the car easily pulled through places that simply blocked all ordinary horse traffic.

LINDRUM DEFEATS REECE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The closing sessions of the match of 16,000 up between Lindrum and Reece were played to-day. Early in this match it was evident that the losing hazard would make it impossible for Reece to win, but the interest in the play was maintained to the end, and at both sessions to-day there was a large attendance.

The afternoon was a dull one. The evening session was marked by splendid close cannon play by Reece, who in one break made 64, and these shots with only one hazard between. Lindrum played consistently in the evening, and never made use of the losing hazard at either session. The best breaks were:—Lindrum, 140, 124, 134 (full), 104, 86, 75, and 172 (unfinished); Reece, 101, 91, 96, 82, 140, and 238. Throughout the match Lindrum averaged 61.5, and Reece 38.7. The concluding scores were:—Lindrum, 16,001; Reece, 10,040.

Lindrum will not accept Reece's challenge to play on a table with 3¼in pockets; but he offers to meet Reece in a match of 16,000 up level for £100 a side, on a standard table, and to limit the consecutive red hazards to 100.

MATCH AT SYDNEY.

Lindrum and Reece will commence their return match at Messrs. Alcock and Co.'s tournament hall on Monday next, and will continue till July 1. Since Lindrum left Sydney he has made some wonderful breaks, and put up an Australasian record by scoring 1230, and his play will be watched with interest. Reece may be expected to exhibit better form in the forthcoming match than in that which was concluded last night. Particulars will be advertised in due course.

BOXING.

DOUGLAS v SULLIVAN.

THORN v ELLIOTT.

Frank Thorn, Vic., beat W. Elliott, of Sydney, on points, in a 20-round contest at the Melbourne Athletic Club to-night. Both men gave clever exhibitions of boxing.

GILGANDRA, Monday.

Gipsy Walker and Ike Jacobs fought in the Coronation Hall on Saturday night to a moderate house. Up till the sixth round Walker appeared to have the better of the battle, when, for some reason, he threw in the towel.

THE SHORTAGE OF LABOUR.

At yesterday's meeting of the executive of the Chamber of Manufactures Mr. H. Sparks was appointed the representative of the Chamber at the Royal Commission of inquiry into the alleged shortage of labour, and manufacturers are requested to send the fullest particulars to Mr. Sparks.

ON CORONATION DAY.

SCHOOL CHILDREN'S FESTIVAL.

OVER 20,000 TO ASSEMBLE.

A number of naval men are practising for a display to be given at the school children's afternoon entertainment at the Royal Agricultural Society's Grounds, Admiral King-Hall having consented to their joining with the military and local naval forces. The children are on this occasion to be spectators only. An attractive programme has been framed, the first event being scheduled to start at 1.5 p.m., and the last to conclude at 3.30 p.m. This early conclusion is imperative, and the times for the respective events must be rigidly adhered to, in order to clear the traffic from the ground in such time as will permit of the tramcars being available for the heavy holiday traffic to be carried later in the afternoon.

It is estimated that some 21,500 children, from 10 years of age upwards, representing the State and the denominational schools, in charge of 700 teachers, will be present. The general public will be excluded from the ground.

Special traffic arrangements are being made by the railway and tramway authorities, and the children will all be landed at the ground before noon. Immediately upon entering each child will be presented with a commemorative bronze medal, and, passing along, will pick up from a table a luncheon package.

The ground has been divided into four sections, representing the respective inspectorial districts, and the schools have been grouped accordingly. After the members of a squad have received their luncheon package they will proceed, under the charge of their teacher, to the vicinity of their section, and there have lunch. A depot will be provided for each section, where liquid refreshment will be served to the squads as they come up, and a separate pannikin will, for hygienic reasons, be supplied to each child. Provision has been made to provide the teachers with luncheon, the arrangement being that half the teachers go at one time, and the other half at another. The tender of the A.B.C. Company has been accepted for the catering.

A committee of lady and gentlemen officers of the Public Instruction Department, together with representatives from the denominational schools, under the presidency of Mr. J. Dawson, Acting Under-Secretary of Public Instruction, is dealing with the schools organisation; while the arrangement and carrying out of the programme are in the hands of a committee representing the naval and military officers, with whom is associated Mr. H. M. Somer (secretary of the Agricultural Society). Major G. F. Wilkinson, R.A.E., is chairman. Mr. T. B. Cooper, of the Public Works Department, represents the Government on the committee, and is executive officer of the festival.

CELEBRATIONS AT BOTANY.

The Mayor of Botany, Ald. W. Hale, presided over a meeting of residents in the Botany Town Hall for the purpose of making arrangements to celebrate locally the coronation of King George. The meeting was well attended, and an energetic committee was formed, with the Mayor as chairman, and Mr. M. J. Ryan, of Matraville Public school, as hon. secretary and treasurer. A sum of £30 was promptly subscribed. It is expected that this will be much further increased. The children of the municipality will be entertained on Booralee Park, Botany, with refreshments, toys, races, and merry-go-rounds, and each will receive a souvenir of the occasion.

FEDERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

POST OFFICE TO BE IN DARKNESS.

Arrangements are being pushed on for the illumination of the buildings, public and business, in the city. A gap will be noticeable, however, in that the G.P.O. will be in darkness. The Postmaster-General, Mr. Thomas, stated yesterday that arrangements had been made to illuminate the Federal Parliament House in Melbourne only. To light up the Post Offices and Customs-houses in each State, he said, would run into thousands of pounds, and it had consequently been decided to confine the Federal contribution in the way of illuminations to Melbourne.

DINNER FOR PRISONERS.

"SOMETHING TYPICALLY BRITISH."

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Acting Premier, Mr. Watt, said on Saturday that a special dinner was to be given on Coronation Day to the prisoners in the gaols and the inmates of the benevolent asylums and orphanages. It would, he added, be "something typically British—roast beef and plum pudding, with indigestion to follow."

COUNTRY NEWS.

THE CORONATION.

DUNGOG, Monday.

A public meeting, convened by the Mayor, was held on Saturday night to consider the question of celebrating Coronation Day. It was decided that a basket picnic should be held on Victoria Park, and a programme of sports carried out. A committee was appointed to carry out the arrangements, with Mr. Horler, town clerk, as secretary. It was also decided that, in addition to the people of the town and district, all public bodies, heads of various denominations, and public schools be asked to co-operate in the movement; also that citizens and business people of the town be asked to have their premises decorated on that day.

SINGLETON, Monday.

At a meeting of citizens held to consider what steps should be taken to celebrate the Coronation of King George V. a letter was read from Mr. A. A. Dangar offering to assist in the celebration by expending £25 to £30 in fireworks, which he proposed should be let off in the showground before the commencement of the hospital ball, and the generous offer was accepted with thanks. It was also announced that a united church service would be held on Coronation Day, at which the military would attend. The question of providing a picnic for the children was left to a meeting of ladies.

DISGUSTED SOLDIER.

REFUSES TO APOLOGISE.

WILL LEAVE NEW ZEALAND.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

Ex-Captain Knyvett, whose case has been before the public for a long time, has decided to leave New Zealand. Knyvett was dismissed from the volunteer service for an act of insubordination. He obtained a retrial by court-martial. That body confirmed the dismissal, but considering his previous good service the commandant offered to place Knyvett on the reserve list if he apologised for the offence.

Knyvett now replies he cannot sacrifice his manhood by apologising, and since he cannot wear the King's uniform in New Zealand, he intends to leave the Dominion.

KILLED IN A STORM.

SHELTERING UNDER A TREE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

William Rowe, aged 58 years, while driving from his home at Stawell to Wal Wal station on Saturday morning was forced to take shelter under a tree during a violent storm. The tree snapped off 20 feet from the ground, and fell on Rowe, who was seated in his buggy. Rowe was found by his nephew after he had been exposed for two hours in the rain and wind.

A doctor was telegraphed for, and he motored out to the spot. He found that Rowe had both thighs fractured, his right leg and ankle smashed, and his right arm broken, in addition to numerous abrasions on the head. He died in the evening. The buggy was smashed, but the horse escaped injury.

FOOTBALLERS IN TROUBLE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Early in the third quarter of the football match between Fitzroy and Essendon Holden, of Fitzroy, and Martin, of Essendon, were in collision. Holden seemed to come out of a crush with the ball, and dash right into Martin. The next instant he was on the ground disabled, and had to be carried to the dressing-room. Several men leaped the fence, and it looked for a moment as if there was going to be a disturbance. Play was stopped, and finally the ground was cleared. Many demonstrations were made against Martin, and after the game it was stated that Clarke, the umpire, intended to report him to the league for striking Holden. Holden did not reappear until the beginning of the final quarter.

Schiedel, a carter, residing at 86 Surrey-street, Darlinghurst, while driving over Pyrmont Bridge, fell from his cart, one of the wheels passing over his right leg and inflicting a compound fracture. After administering first aid, the Civil Ambulance conveyed him to Sydney Hospital, where he was admitted by Dr. Parry.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

At about 8.20 on Saturday morning a man of about 40, named MacGregor, a carpenter, living at Ryde, and an employee of Messrs. Mackenzie, wharf contractors, Drummoyne, was working on a wharf at the end of George's-crescent, Drummoyne. A number of piles were being hoisted out of a punt in a sling, when one fell and struck MacGregor, knocking him into the water. He struck his head against the punt, crushing the skull badly. Alexander Brown, the second officer of the North Coast S.N. Company's steamer Orara, had a narrow escape from death at Byron Bay on Saturday. He was standing on the vessel's deck when the pitching of the vessel, which was moored to the wharf, caused one of the steel mooring hawsers to break. The loose end of the hawser flew back, and striking Brown on the left leg fractured it. The injured man was brought on to Sydney by the Orara. He was met at the wharf by the Civil Ambulance Brigade, who took him to the Sydney Hospital.

FOUND IN DARLING HARBOUR.

An inquiry was held yesterday afternoon, before the City Coroner, concerning the death of Stephen Nestor, the engineer who was found drowned in Darling Harbour last week. Deceased was an engineer on the steamer Aimee, and was seen to go on board about 6 a.m. on June 6, about half-an-hour before his body was discovered. Evidence was given that he was under the influence of liquor when he went on board, and had been drinking overnight. The coroner returned an open verdict.

COLLAPSED IN THE STREET.

Shortly after 4.20 yesterday afternoon an elderly man, whose name is unknown, collapsed and fell on the footpath in Sussex-street, near Liverpool-street. The Civil Ambulance Brigade conveyed him to Sydney Hospital, where Dr. Martin certified that life was extinct. The body was then removed to the morgue.

RUN OVER BY A MOTOR.

An inquiry was held at the City Coroner's Court concerning the death of Sammy Sammy, a native of Madras, aged about 60, which occurred on Sunday morning last at the North Shore Hospital from injuries received through being knocked down by a motor car on June 3. Eric Napier Binks, motorist, gave evidence that he and a friend were travelling along Gordon-road, Chatswood, towards North Sydney on that date. Just near the junction of Howarth-road, a very bad and ill-lighted section of the road, deceased suddenly appeared right in front of the car, and was knocked down before they could stop it. They were travelling slowly, on the left-side, and with all lamps alight. They conveyed deceased, who smelt of liquor, to the hospital. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

KARORI'S THIRD ENGINEER DROWNED.

The man received terrible injuries to his head, which caused his death shortly after his removal to the hospital.

CRUSHED BY LOG.

PERTH, Monday.

William Chetham, aged 50, died on Friday as a result of a shocking accident in the Swan mills at Lowden on the previous day. He also sustained internal injuries.

BROKEN HILL, Monday.

VICTORIA.

THE THEATRES.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The production of "Nobody's Daughter" at the Princess Theatre on Saturday night by a company whose excellent acting all round went far to establish its success furnished a delightful entertainment for a large audience. "A Woman of Pleasure" was revived at King's Theatre before a crowded and enraptured audience.

FIRE AT A JOINERY WORKS.

A fire broke out in Mr. W. Brooks' joinery works at Malvern railway station on Sunday afternoon, and resulted in the destruction of about £2000 worth of property. The premises immediately adjoin the line which was swept so menacingly by flames and smoke, and was so obstructed by the hoses as to cause a block of the railway traffic for nearly half an hour, whilst telephonic communication between Melbourne and Oakleigh was indefinitely suspended through the destruction of the overhead wires, which were eaten through by the flames. How the fire originated is not known. The property is insured.

THE MOTOR TAX.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I feel sure you will grant me space in an endeavour to dispel some misconceptions arising out of the above matters.

I can only marvel at the attitude taken up by the president and hon. secretary of the Automobile Club of Australia, as reported in your issue of 9th inst, when they contend that "it is nonsense to say that motor cars damage the roads to an appreciable extent, and to compare the damage done by motor cars with smooth-surface tyres to that occasioned by heavy waggons with iron tyres, and drawn by iron-shod horses," unless they really desire to throw dust in the public eye.

It is now fairly well known that smooth motor tyres do not appreciably wear, at any rate, metal roads; but that the bellows-like action of low-set high-speed cars has an all-destructive power on all roads in dry weather by lifting blinding and dust, which is scattered over adjoining properties—a power unpossessed by other vehicles—is beyond all question.

In your issue of April 7, 1910, you published an article of great value on "Dustless Roads," containing part of the report of the Dust Committee of the Royal Automobile Club, England, in which Mr. Walker Smith (city engineer of Edinburgh) is quoted thus:—"But whatever may be the cause or causes of the creation of dust, there seems to be little or no difference of opinion, even amongst motorists themselves, as to the enormous power of raising and dispersion of dust possessed by fast-travelling motor cars." It is an interesting fact that the Automobile Club of Australia, on June 10, 1910, forwarded to councils for their information some choice extracts from the above report, carefully putting in the case against iron-bound wheels, but omitting the Edinburgh city engineer's opinion above quoted.

If Mr. Samuel Hordern and Mr. J. H. Harris can spare time in passing to pull up at our Town Hall, May's Hill, Parramatta, I will undertake to show them, as motor cars and horse-drawn vehicles pass, the respective powers of each, in reasonably dry weather, to disperse dust, as well as to point out the costly strip of tar-surfaced road—paid for by our ratepayers—necessitated solely by the action of motor cars.

A tarred, or solid, matrix to metal roads frequented by motor vehicles has become a necessity, and it is towards the great cost of this transformation in road construction, along with other highway improvements, that the local authorities by a strong deputation aswed the Hon. the Minister for Works on Thursday last to collect a substantial motor vehicle tax—not a paltry license fee, as referred to by Mr. Harris—handing it over to a road board, together with a tourist road grant, and fees from licenses to sellers of petrol, to be equitably distributed to councils in proportion to their length of roads and the use motor vehicles make of all classified and tourist roads throughout the State.

A road board, for the purpose of improving the roads in every direction, was established in England after 10 years of an uphill fight for it on the part of the Roads Improvement Association, a body largely composed of motorists, which seems now to be working well, and I feel sure such a board would go far to solve our road troubles under enlarged territorial conditions here.

The Minister was assured by the deputation that it was councils' desire to make up-to-date roads if funds were obtainable, as well as to have them used with consideration by all; and I hold, Sir, that it would be far the wisest plan for the representatives of the Automobile Club of Australia to assist the local authorities towards these desirable objects, instead of denying that motor cars have a very special capacity for road destruction, which, with the present state of knowledge in the matter, they will find it difficult to prove.

I am, etc, GEO. D. RINGROSE,
Prospect and Sherwood Council,
May's Hill, Parramatta.

June 10.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—From your report of a deputation to the Hon. the Minister for Works, and his reply to same, it is gathered that he contemplates increasing the present annual charge for motor vehicles from £1 to £5. Whilst sympathising with aldermen and shire councillors in their difficulty in keeping decent roadways within their districts, and freely admitting that in some circumstances motor vehicles cause a certain amount of injury to the surfaces of roads, I beg to submit that vehicles of any description injure the roadways more or less, and that bullock drays, traction engines, and heavy vehicles generally do much more injury than motor cars. If there is to be a charge for this purpose, why not impose it all round in accordance with estimated damage, and let all contribute? We might then have better roads than we have, but to single out the class of vehicle is inequitable. Again, what would the revenue amount to? The total number of motor cars registered in this State is less than 3000, and at £5 each the total revenue would only amount to £15,000, from which should be deducted the cost of inspection, printing and issue of licenses—say, £3000—which would leave only £12,000 for distribution amongst all the municipalities and shires in the State—a mere drop in the ocean. Either let each body bear its own burden, or make it applicable to every wheeled vehicle, when the revenue would be something appreciable. It must not be overlooked that every motor car owner pays rates to maintain the street where he resides, and that the visit of motor cars adds materially to the revenue of many of the resorts which their owners visit.

I am, etc.,
HARRIE SKINNER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I read with much satisfaction your article in the leading columns of your paper, under date June 9. I think you have admirably crystallised the whole argument in your concluding words, which people who live in this enlightened age would do well to remember: "After all, the road exists for the traffic, and not the traffic for the road."

But you appear to be under a slight misapprehension as to the precise effect of motor traffic upon the roads, and in view of the enormous importance of the motor in the traffic of the immediate future, I think that you would be rendering a service to the country in crushing once for all the false statement that motor cars damage the roads. It has been conclusively proved in England and France—particularly at the International Road Congress—that the pneumatic tyres of the motor car do not damage the road surface. The blame has been fixed at the door of the iron-tyred cart and the steel-shod horse. The popular mind, of course, blamed the motor car, because it was a new method of conveyance, and one time almost exclusively used by the rich, who could afford to experiment therein—just as with aeronautics at the present time. The experiment stage has passed, and the motor car is now the trusted conveyance of many a hard-worked professional man, business man, or needy clergyman. For this reason any idea of extra taxation should be scouted. Motorists already make a very handsome contribution to the national treasury in Customs duties. This is taxation enough. The importance of good roads cannot be over-rated. Those countries which have persecuted and fleeced the motorist are now biting their fingers! The motor traffic should be encouraged in this young country; the motor is a source of wealth, progress, and advancement in any country. The motorist should not be overtaxed. If money is needed for the roads, let the Government find it; let some of the heavy Customs duties be spent upon improving the roads, thus developing the country and paving the way for advanced civilisation. Civilisation to-day is travelling by road. The high road is returning to its position of pre-eminence. But the road must be a good one, or civilisation will avoid it. It is absurd and preposterous to think of loading the already overburdened motorist with extra taxation, and for the upkeep of such vile apologies for roads as are to be seen in this country. I repeat that a solution of the problem of road improvement and maintenance must not be sought in extra taxation. The whole nation benefits by good roads. The motorist should not be asked to provide them. Meanwhile the Automobile Club of Australia sleeps.

I am, etc., IXION.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

INDUSTRIAL ARBITRATION BILL.

There is a degree of uncertainty in the minds of many trades unionists in regard to some points in the new Industrial Arbitration Bill. In the schedule of the bill, a separate group is given to enginedrivers and firemen. The Enginedrivers and Firemen's Union however, thinks it might be claimed that enginedrivers and firemen engaged in various industries, such as the iron trades, etc., come under the board appointed for each group of industries. The intention of the bill is obviously to deal with the enginedrivers and firemen as a separate calling, irrespective of what industry they may be associated with; but it is considered that a clause might be inserted to make that intention definite, so that no difficulties could be created. Representations are being made to the Government.

The position of the Clerks' Union is similar, as it is probable that that body will also draw the attention of the Government to the matter.

BEDSTEAD MAKERS' EMPLOYEES.

At the last meeting of the Bedstead Makers' Employees' Union, consideration was given to the case to go before a wages board. It was reported that the union was in a very solid position financially and otherwise.

EIGHT-HOURS DEMONSTRATION COMMITTEE.

The Eight hours demonstration this year will be from a spectacular point of view, considerably improved by the displays to be put forward by many newly-affiliated unions. The Sydney branch of the Australian Federated Theatrical Employees is one of the latest unions to affiliate, and it proposed to make a very elaborate turnout. The display of the branches in Melbourne and Adelaide have been a feature of the eight-hours procession in those cities during the last few years.

HOSPITAL AND ASYLUM EMPLOYEES.

GOULBURN, Monday.

A branch of the Hospital and Asylum Employees' Union has been formed at Kenmore Hospital. At the close of the inaugural meeting 84 members had been enrolled.

FREE WORKERS' UNION.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

An excellent beginning has been made with the movement initiated during the agricultural implement trade strike to establish a free workers' union. It was proposed at first that the organisation should be called the Society of Free and Accepted Workers. The name has been amended to that of the Society of Free Workers. A secretary and organiser have been appointed, each at a salary of £250 a year. The secretary began his duties on June 1, and 300 workers have been enrolled as members of the society.

GAS EMPLOYEES' CONFERENCE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The first interstate conference of the gas employees of Australia is being held in Melbourne. A new constitution has been drafted, to suit the requirements of the different States.

QUEENSLAND COALMINERS.

BRISBANE, Monday.

The determination of the Coalmining Industry Board for the State of Queensland, exclusive of the southeastern division, has been approved. It is provided that before there shall be any stoppage of work at any colliery in the event of a disagreement between the manager and the men the question shall be submitted to local arbitration, and the manager and men shall each appoint two arbitrators to settle the matter. In the event of their disagreeing the four arbitrators shall have the right to appoint an umpire, whose decision may be accepted as final, either side having the right of appeal to the wages board against the decision of such umpire. In the event of an umpire not being appointed, and no settlement being arrived at, the matter shall be referred direct to the board.

ALLEGED STABBING.

William Henry Anderson was charged with, at Liverpool, on May 29, inflicting grievous bodily harm on a Chinaman, named Ah Foy. Mr. W. H. Atkinson appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Passmore for the defendant. The evidence of the Chinaman was to the effect that the accused lived near his garden. On May 29 he saw accused in his garden cutting cauliflowers with a long sheath knife. He told accused he must give him in charge. Accused said, "I don't care," and afterwards attacked him, stabbing him in the stomach, twice on the left arm, and once on the right arm.

Accused, who pleaded not guilty, was committed to take his trial at the next Parramatta Court of Quarter Sessions. Bail was allowed, self in £80, and one surety in £80, or two in £40 each.

THE WINTER SHINE.

In winter you want a specially good Boot Polish. You want one which will keep your boots shiny in wet wintry weather, and that keeps the leather waterproofed.

DRUMMER BOY BOOT POLISH
("for men's boots, for boys' boots, and ladies' dainty shoes") is the great winter weather Polish. It is waterproof itself, and helps to keep the leather the same. It is quick and easy to put on—you don't want to linger over the job on these cold mornings—and only needs a wipe over with the Polish once a week and a brisk rub over every morning.
It is cheap. Try a 6d Tin—Black or Tan—and see how far it goes.
If your storekeeper does not stock it, send us his name and address, and we will forward you a free sample tin.
